CHICAGO POLICE DRIVE CRIMINAL GANGS TO COVER

Courts Back Rout of Underworld.

MAKE CHICAGO THE FIRST CITY IN THE WORLD

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Chicago's police force seems to be living up to its ancient reputation as "the finest," as witness the downward curve of crime. Official federal figures show a 22 per cent decrease last year in larcenies, burglaries, robberies, and other crimes of violence in the city as compared with 1933.

Back in the gangster era under Volsteadism, Chicago had a reputation as crime ridden and whenever a Chicagoan traveled he ran into a stereotyped wisecrack the world over, "Where's your bullet proof vest?"

Today Chicago stands in 34th place in aggregate crime rate among 87 of the larger American cities reporting to the bureau of investigation of the department of justice at Washington. This ranking takes account of robberies in which Chicago's rate is highest because, according to experts, all cases are made public instead of being concealed on the police blotter. The Chicago crime commission rates Chicago as one of the safest cities.

All Law Agencies Help.

The change has come through concerted action among the courts, public officials, and the police force.

The old dictum was that although it was easy enough for the police to apprehend a criminal it was difficult to keep him out of circulation after arrest. It was nothing unusual for an officer, marching an offender into a station, to be met at the desk by a lawyer with a writ of habeas corpus. Through loopholes of the law convicted criminals walked out upon the streets while millions in bootleg money placed crime on a highly financed basis unprecedented in history.

The new coöperation of all the law enforcement agencies gives the police a real chance.

Courts Work at Top Speed.

Courts have been working at top speed, criminals have been swiftly prosecuted, while the police have constantly increased the speed of their teamwork. It has been a constant campaign, nothing like the old "crime wave" activities which used to come in with the blizzards.

"It has not been spasmodic. This continuity of close coöperation of the various officials has brought the great reduction in the crime rate," said Police Commissioner Allman.

When crime was on the grow a few years back the criminals got the advantages given by fast automobiles in the new speed era, and of fast shooting guns. The police were a lap behind, appropriations were hard to get. Now, however, the police have all the modern speed at their command. And still more speed has been given by a reorganization of the force.

Radio Blow at Crime.

Chicago was one of the first cities to put in police radio. It aids in the arrest of criminals at the seat of the crime. During 1934 18,663 persons were arrested as the result of 162,892 emergency broadcasts.

To indicate the speed, the average time last year was two minutes between the telephone call at headquarters and the arrival of a squad car at the scene. Calls are put on the radio fast. Recently a citizen was still at the telephone when three squads came in the door bringing the robber.

Some 54 suburbs now have their emergency calls broadcast to their squad cars over the Chicago police radio. There were 33,600 of these calls last year.

Second Line of Defense.

Thus the city has a second line of defense covering all gateways. In a zone of forty miles radius from the city hall the police force is organized for fast action. Repeal broke the old criminal gangs financially, now they are pushed around. There are 140 squad cars and 12 accident prevention cars in Chicago, and about the same number in the suburbs, giving about 300 squad cars moving by radio call.

Relatively Chicago's is a small force. It ranks eleventh in size among the larger cities. It has 6,512 members, or one policeman to every 518 inhabitants, while New York with 19,611 has a policeman for every 355 people. Boston has a policeman for every 324 inhabitants, St. Louis one for every 320. The department here has 392 fewer men than it had five years ago.

EIGHT WOUNDED; 13 ARE CAUGHT; WOMAN WARDEN

Gun Smuggled Into Reformatory.

Granite, Okla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Thirty-one prisoners, most of them convicted of violent crimes, killed a tower guard and broke from the much investigated state reformatory here today.

Peter [Uncle Pete] Jones, the tower guard, was killed by a charge from a prison shotgun as the young convicts fled behind a shield of visiting women and children.

Eight of the fugitives were wounded in a shotgun blast fired by Deputy Warden M. R. Gallion. They and two others were captured outside the walls. Three men were arrested at Sayre, Okla.

Eighteen, one of them the killer of the tower guard, were hunted tonight over the rough terrain of western Oklahoma.

Mrs. G. A. Waters, warden—the only feminine head of a male prison in the nation—directed the work of the guards, exposing herself to the fugitives' gunfire.

Steal Cars to Escape.

Twenty desperate youths flourished weapons and stopped cars traveling along the highway in front of the prison. Some roared away in the stolen machines. Others took two cars owned by prison employés and parked near by.

Two packs of bloodhounds were used as possible hideouts were hunted in the nearby mountains.

"The break was made with guns smuggled into the prison," declared Mrs. Waters, warden since 1927, whose administration recently was investigated after reports of cruelty.

"There were two pistols," she said. "The break was led by two or three hard boiled inmates. One of them was Malloy Kuykendall, another was Henry Stewart. Buster Nichols was in on it, too."

Leader Serving 75 Years.

Kuykendall, serving seventy-five years from Pottawatomie country for robbery with firearms, had staged a break with two companions last Aug. 20 from the jail at Tecumseh, Okla., locking up the jailer and members of Sherif W. A. Roberts' family and stealing the sherif's motor car and machine gun.

The break, evidently planned for days, started after lunch. The leaders threatened the inside turnkey, a prisoner himself, with their smuggled pistols.

They took his keys, rushed Day Sergeant Walter Ford, and locked him and all the turnkeys in a cell.

Visitors Herded Downstairs.

Howling insanely, the mob of plotters ran upstairs in the administration building to the visitors' room. More than 15 women and children waiting there to visit with friends were herded downstairs by the convicts, who kept in the rear for protection.

At the front door Walter Moore, the door guard, was disarmed.

The fugitives dashed for the highway upon which the prison fronts. The road was crowded with Sunday excursionists.

Tower Guard Jones was at his post, in the fugitives' pathway. One of them leveled a stolen prison sawed-off shotgun, fired, and killed Jones instantly.

Mrs. Waters was in her home just outside the prison walls, attending her son, Victor Waters, Greer county attorney, ill of influenza, when the break started.

Woman Orders Firing.

She heard the shot which killed Jones and ran outside. Taking in the situation at a glance, she signaled a guard in the northeast tower to commence firing. Heedless of danger, the woman warden maintained her position and directed the counter attack.

Gallion, the deputy warden, also was at his nearby home. He grabbed a shotgun and started shooting.

Slugs from his gun struck eight convicts. He made them prisoner again, and two others besides.

A guard captured another fugitive outside the wall.

Several of the men who escaped today had signed a petition less than a fortnight ago, when Mrs. Waters' administration was under investigation, praising her humanity toward them and defending her administration from charges of alleged brutality.

Jones, the slain guard, was 60 years old. He formerly lived at Chickasha. He had been an Oklahoma peace officer 25 years, and had been at the reformatory three years.

His wife also worked at the re-

HIGHEST COURT TO PASS ON NEW DEAL SCHEMES

Exchanges "Stand By"

The board of governors of the New York Stock exchange has been ordered to "stand by" at 9 o'clock this morning ready to act in case of any emergency that might arise should the Supreme court announce its gold decision today.

Any action taken by the New York exchange would be followed by the other leading security exchanges. Officials of the securities and exchange commission can order closing of the country's stock exchanges only on order of the President and it is presumed he would not issue a closing order unless advised to do so by the SEC.

It has been indicated that officials of the New York Stock exchange would stop trading only if the gold decision were to start wild fluctuations in the market.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—There is an air of tension tonight in official Washington. The White House, the treasury, the department of justice, and New Dealers and anti-New Dealers breathlessly are awaiting the expected decision tomorrow of the gold clause cases by the United States Supreme court.

Not only our own country but the whole civilized world is alert to the profound significance of what those nine black robed men will have to say, whether tomorrow or later, about the Roosevelt monetary policies, the devaluation of the dollar in particular, and the abrogation of the gold payment clause in government and private corporation bonds.

The decision the court will hand down in the gold clause cases will make history with a capital H, will determine the validity of some of the most important phases of the New Deal, will chart the future course of the country's recovery efforts, will influence foreign trade and affect the world's money marts from New York and London to Shanghai. The decisions, if they come today, are expected about 2 o'clock Chicago time.

Ranked with Dred Scott Case.

It is already being ranked in importance with the court's decisions in the Dartmouth college case in 1818 which upheld the sanctity of contracts and in the Dred Scott slavery case in 1857, which it took four years of bloody civil conflict to overrule. No impending event since the outbreak of the war in Europe in 1914 has been awaited with such world-wide suspense.

(In the Dartmouth case the court held that a charter granted the college by the king of England and setting up a private trust was a contract which New Hampshire, on obtaining independence, was bound to honor; that a state law designed to control the college and its funds impaired that trust's inviolability. The winning side was argued by Daniel Webster. It always has been regarded as the precedent, in America, for the inviolability of private contract.

In the case of Dred Scott, a slave taken by a master from Missouri, then a slave state, to free soil, the court not only decided the slave was not free, but held in principle that congress had not the constitutional power to abolish slavery in the territories. This decision was regarded as upholding the hated "fugitive slave act," which called upon free states to seize and return runaway slaves.)

Of course, there is no certainty that the decision will come down tomorrow. All that is known outside the council chamber of the nine whose secrets have seldom leaked, is that the court will be in session tomorrow and that Monday is the regular decision day.

On two successive Saturdays Chief Justice Hughes took the unusual step of announcing that the decision would not be rendered the following Monday. He said he did this to obviate a needless crowding of the Supreme court room on decision day. The court, he explained, was not ready with its opinion.

Believe They're Now Ready.

When, at the conclusion of the court's conference in chambers yesterday afternoon, the chief justice failed to repeat this announcement it was generally inferred that the court is now ready and intends to deliver its decision tomorrow. At the conclusion of this session the court will take a recess for two weeks. So, if the decision does not appear tomorrow it cannot be expected before March 4.

The world is poised. When the court meets at noon its tiny semicircular chamber, the scene of so many of the great episodes of our history, will be crowded with the great men of our government. The President will

3 DECISIONS ON SECURITIES WILL BE HANDED DOWN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The gold clause cases on which the Supreme court is expected to make its decision tomorrow involve different facts and different questions of originality. As a result some of the decisions may be favorable, some unfavorable, to the government. They fall into three classifications.

1. Gold certificates. This is the yellow currency with which every one was familiar until the government called it in along with gold coin as one of the first acts of the Roosevelt administration.

A twenty dollar gold certificate, for example, stated on its face: "This certifies that there have been deposited in the treasury of the United States of America $20 in gold coin payable to the bearer on demand."

Gold Begins to Climb.

By gold coin the government meant actual gold, the value of which, when the gold certificates were issued, was fixed by the government at $20.67 an ounce. But in November, 1933, the President began raising the official price of gold gradually to $35 an ounce, at which it has remained since he proclaimed the 59 cent dollar a year ago.

F. Eugene Nortz of New York had $106,300 in gold certificates. When the President called for the surrender of all gold and gold certificates Nortz turned his into the treasury. On that day gold was valued at $33.43 an ounce and he demanded payment at that rate, which would have given him $170,634. The government, however, refused to pay him more than the old gold rate of $20.67 an ounce. Nortz promptly sued the government in the Court of Claims for the difference, $64,334, and the Court of Claims asked the Supreme court for a ruling on the question.

Weight of the Dollar.

2. Corporation bonds. Until a year ago the standard weight of the dollar was 25.8 grains of gold. Then the President, acting under the Thomas amendment, reduced the standard to 15.23 grains of gold, the 59 cent dollar. At the same time the congress had decreed that all debts should be payable in the new 59 cent dollar.

There are about 75 billion dollars worth of corporation bonds outstanding, each of which states it is payable in "gold dollars of the present standard"; that is, the standard at the time of issuance of the bonds, which was 25.8 grains of gold to the dollar. A holder of one of the bonds sued the Missouri Pacific railroad for payment in 1,000 of the old dollars, or the equivalent in the new dollars, which would be 1,693.

The question before the court in this case is whether congress possesses the power to alter such a contract between citizens.

U. S. Bonds at Stake.

3. Liberty bonds. John M. Perry owned a $10,000 bond he purchased in 1917. This bond states: "The principal and interest hereof are payable in the United States gold coin of the present standard of values"—that is, 25.8 grains of gold to the dollar. Perry demanded payment in 10,000 of the old dollars or 16,931 of the new 59 cent dollars.

The question in this case is whether congress can alter a contract between the government and a citizen. This differs from the question of the power of congress to change the terms of a contract between two citizens.

GIRL, 10, SMILES ON 'LIFE OR DEATH' JOURNEY TO EAST

A ten year old girl, smiling and cheerful despite the pain of an ailment that may prove fatal, saw Chicago for the first time yesterday. Most of her sightseeing was done from a cot or from her mother's arms, but she expressed delight with a great many things that she saw, and never once referred to her illness.

The visitor was Alyce Jane McHenry of Omaha, Neb., and for a week she has had no food other than a little ice cream, and no water for the past two days. She is suffering from an unusual ailment that has caused her stomach to turn upside down and has pushed her heart to one side, closing one lung.

Accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Luella McHenry, Alyce is en route to a Fall River, Mass., hospital where specialists wil endeavor to save her life.

"Look, mother," she said when the train rolled to a stop at the station, "we don't have tall buildings like that in Omaha."

As porters rolled her cot into the station hospital she turned with a smile to her mother, and said, "Don't worry, mother, everything is going to be all right."

A few moments before she had smiled and posed willingly for newspaper photographers.

EXPLODING TIRE CAUSES SERIOUS INJURY TO FIXER

Henry Bolanowski, 35 years old, of 2518 North Long avenue, was the victim of an unusual accident last night, when an automobile tire exploded in his hands, hurling him to the ground, and causing a broken leg, two broken ribs, possible fracture of the jaw, and lacerations of the face and arms.

Bolanowski, a mechanic, had been sent out to change a truck tire for Floyd Robertson, 8007 Ridgeland avenue, at Ballard road and Milwaukee avenue, Morton Grove. Discovering the spare tire was flat, Bolanowski had it pumped up at a nearby filling station. He was about to put it on the wheel when it burst, hurling the steel rim against him.

Order 1,000 N. Y. Building Lifts Halted

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Secret orders for a strike in 1,000 office and apartment house buildings effective at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow were sent out to strike captains by the Building Service Employés' union late today. Meanwhile Mayor F. H. La Guardia and the federal government were making last minute efforts to avert the walkout.

Federal intervention was indicated with the arrival tonight of Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor. He went into conference with James J. Bambrick, president of the union; its counsel, Edward C. Maguire, and George Scalese, international president.

Mr. McGrady will confer with Mayor La Guardia early tomorrow.

Asks for Clarification.

In a communication to the realty advisory board, the organization representing the realty interests in the dispute, the mayor sought to bring about a clarification of the award of his arbitration committee in a manner that would satisfy the union.

Lawrence B. Cummings, chairman of the realty advisory board, replied that a prompt effort to bring about such clarification would be undertaken.

The proposal revolves around the question of wages and working conditions for building service employés in accordance with classifications of buildings and classes of workers, which, the union charges, the arbitration committee's award failed to include. The union fears present wage differentials will be jeopardized.

Mayor Warns Union.

In a statement accompanying publication of his proposal the mayor again warned against a strike and insisted that the union was bound to accept the arbitration award, having promised to do so as part of the arbitration proceedings.

"The city expects immediate compliance from both sides of the controversy and peace in the industry," the mayor said.

With tomorrow's strike movement planned to involve ultimately 10,000 buildings, Mayor La Guardia was prepared to man elevators and other services in the city with policemen and firemen.

Some of the building owners feared, however, that police plans would not be sufficient in case the strike spreads to 10,000 buildings, and they sent a letter to Gov. Herbert Lehman asking him to be prepared to send state militia.

CUBAN CARNIVAL PARADE BOMBED; 40,000 IN PANIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Feb. 17.—At least six persons were seriously injured today when three bombs exploded during a gay carnival parade. Ten thousand marchers and 30,000 observers were thrown into a panic by the blasts. Women and children leaped from floats and sought refuge.

Elena Gonzales, 9 year old boy, lost both eyes and his left arm in one explosion. Raquel Hernandez, 16, and her fiancé, Manuel del Real, 26, were among those seriously injured. Many persons struck by fragments of bombs did not go to first aid stations because of fear of arrest.

Anonymous letters to officials and broadcasts over pirate radio stations during the past week warned that if the parade were held it would be bombed. A similar parade planned for last Sunday was abandoned because of threats.

be in his office awaiting the verdict on his policies. Congress will be in session, ready to start the legislative machinery to cope with any crisis that might be produced by a decision adverse to the government. And throughout the world millions of men and women will be watching the newspapers and listening to the radio for the first flash of the news.

Only Two Others Know.

Presumably only two persons outside of the nine justices know the court's momentous secret. One is the secretary of the justice who has written and will deliver the decision. The other is C. E. Bright, the taciturn, secret-laden owner of the little print shop, established in 1805, which for seventy years has printed the decisions of the court.

For be it known that the Supreme court is the only agency of government that does not entrust its printing to the government printing office. To no one compositor does Mr. Bright give more than a small portion of the opinion to set in type and the final paragraph which contains the ruling he sets with his own hand.

There never has been a leak from this printing office. Since the civil war there have been two leaks, for both of which secretaries to justices were responsible. In one case the secretary was discharged, in the other convicted.

Despite all the secrecy, however, there is much wondering whether President Roosevelt has been informed of the tenor of the forthcoming decision. It would not be unprecedented if he has been. President Buchanan was informed by a member of the court of the finding of the approaching ruling in the Dred Scott case and President Grant, there is strong reason to believe, was forewarned of the first decision in the legal tender cases of which the gold clause cases are reminiscent.

Grant Adds Two to Court.

While Chief Justice Chase was reading the decision President Grant sent to the senate the names of two new justices to fill places created by an enlargement of the court. Reversal of the decision followed in a few months.

In 1917, on the eve of our entrance into the world war, the railroad employés were threatening to strike. At the instance of Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio and chairman of the advisory commission of the Council of National Defense, Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane asked Chief Justice White to disclose the tenor of the court's forthcoming decision on the Adamson act, establishing the 8 hour day for railroad employés.

He represented that a tie-up of our railways would give aid and comfort to our prospective enemy, Germany. The chief justice told Secretary Lane that the court would hand down its decision the next day, upholding the Adamson act. Armed with this information Mr. Willard met the leaders of the railway employés and succeeded in averting the strike.

Silent at State Dinner.

It was only within the last fortnight that the members of the court were the guests of honor at a state dinner given by President and Mrs. Roosevelt. But the justices as usual were so many sphinxes and the conversation about the table touched on every subject under the sun save the one thing everybody wanted to know and only the eminent jurists could have told. It would have been a grave breach of the proprieties for any one to bring up the subject.

Not long ago at a social gathering a Supreme court justice hastily moved out of a group in which some remote reference to a pending Supreme court case flashed out of the conversation.

But whether the President knows or does not know what the court has decided, he and Attorney General Cummings profess the utmost confidence that the opinion will be favorable to the government. At the same time Mr. Cummings took occasion only a few days ago to state that the administration is fully prepared with a course of action to avert a panic or other disturbances that might be caused by a decision holding the abrogation of the gold payment clauses invalid and requiring the payment of 100 billion dollars worth of bonds with 169 billion devalued dollars.

But He Keeps It Secret.

What the projected course of action is Mr. Cummings would not so much as hint and the Democratic leaders in congress to whom he is said to have communicated the plans were no less reticent. It is supposed to call for legislation forbidding any government agency to pay out gold and denying holders of government bonds access to the court of claims, and for an amendment to the constitution validating the abrogation of the gold clauses. At any rate the statement of the attorney general produced a steadying effect and put an end to the talk of closing the stock exchanges in the event of an adverse decision.

The administration would have twenty-five days—the court's rulings become effective at the end of such a period—in which to forestall this and other unpleasant economic consequences by legislation or otherwise.

The momentous character of the impending decree and the significance of its implications have been strikingly attested by happenings at home and abroad since the court heard the arguments in the cases and stirred apprehensions of an adverse decision by the embarrassing questions the justices propounded to the government lawyers on the constitutional warant for the Roosevelt monetary measures.

Business men so generally halted commitments, pending the decision, that it was said recovery was marking time. After some days of hectic speculation on the outcome, the stock market entered upon a gradual sag. Wheat bobbed up and down. The foreign exchange markets became jittery, the dollar slumped and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was compelled to bring his two billion dollar stabilization fund into play to restore the price of the dollar abroad.

MRS. ROOSEVELT FOR INCREASING REALISM IN PEACE ADVOCACY

Aurora, N. Y., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt believes world peace advocates need to be "more realistic, harder headed."

Her remarks were made at conclusion of an address here on "Women in Washington" in answer to a question put to her by one of her student audience.

"College women having studied history, economics and international affairs, should endeavor to convince others of the need for peace, not by an emotional appeal but by the presentation of a factual and historical explanation," the wife of the President declared.

"We may be different from people in other countries, but we are not superior," she added.

Canary Breeders to Open Convention-Exhibit Today

Hundreds of canaries and other pet birds will be an exhibit in the Congress hotel this week. The National Canary Breeders' federation opens its six day convention there this morning. Among the exhibits will be a whistling canary circus, with the birds whistling "Yankee Doodle," "Sidewalks of New York," and other songs which they were taught by Miss Lillian E. Hayes.

Sorority Girl Identifies Gold Coast Purse Thief

James Turner, 27 years old, 1340 Sedgwick street, colored, was identified last night by Miss Margaret Price as a purse snatcher who has been operating for two weeks in the heart of the Gold Coast. Miss Price said Turner snatched her purse containing $40 two weeks ago near the Zeta Kappa Psi sorority house at 1440 Astor street, where she lives.

MACON INQUIRY BOARD TO HEAR NEW EXPERTS

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Testimony that a failure in the dirigible Macon's expensive metal structure last Tuesday sent her whirling down into the Pacific with a loss of two lives gave new impetus today to the naval court investigation.

Champion of this theory was Lieut. Calvin S. Bolster, construction and repair officer of the Macon, who was aboard.

Apparently dissatisfied with this theory, Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley, skipper of the Macon, and other naval authorities indicated evidence would be sought this week from other airship construction experts.

Although he was not permitted to express his opinion when he testified, Wiley indicated he did not attribute the loss of the Macon to structural weakness.

In view of the divergent theories, observers viewed the turn of testimony with new interest, because the government has suspended, temporarily at least, its judgment on the advisability of proceeding with a lighter-than-air program.

U. S. INVESTIGATES CHARGE JAP COPS ROPED 3 YANKS

TOKIO, Feb. 18.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Upon instructions of Joseph P. Grew, United States ambassador, Howard Donovan, consul at Kobe, went to Osaka today to investigate alleged brutal treatment of three Americans by Osaka police. On the basis of Donovan's report the ambassador will decide whether to take diplomatic action.

R. S. K. Irvin, managing director of the Nippon Corn Products company, an American, said he and two of the company's employés were roped and led through the streets last week by police and detained four hours at the police station.

Irvin said he had called in the police when two Coreans came to his office and attempted to extort money from him. The Coreans attacked him in the policemen's presence, he asserted.

VANDERLIP FOR A MANAGED U. S. CURRENCY PLAN

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Frank A. Vanderlip, banker, declared himself tonight in favor of a managed system of currency for the United States.

The Supreme court gold clause decision, he said, "whatever it may be, is far less important than the far-reaching economic questions it has raised in the public mind."

Vanderlip proposed a supreme currency court to exercise complete jurisdiction over monetary matters.

REVISION OF NRA ROOSEVELT AIM BEFORE CONGRESS

Plan Faces Fight Over Past Policies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—In the face of a growing movement in congress to investigate the NRA, President Roosevelt within the next day or two will ask congress in a special message to extend the recovery administration in a slightly modified form for another year trial period, the White House indicated today.

Mr. Roosevelt, unperturbed by the pending senate resolution calling for an NRA investigation, is ready to demand that the NRA be continued until June 16, 1937. He will ask also that "certain simple principles" be inserted or emphasized in the existing law at the same time that it is extended.

Roosevelt's Probable Requests.

Some of these "principles," which it is reported President Roosevelt will ask congress to insert in the loosely drawn NIRA, are:

1. A declaration against price fixing except in emergency situations and, perhaps, in the natural resource industries such as coal.
2. A declaration against production restrictions in codes, except for the natural resource industries.
3. A more explicit grant of power for the President to impose what are known as "limited" codes on industries which cannot agree on codes. These "limited" codes would cover only wages and hours, excluding trade practices.
4. Lightening and better definition of the penalties for code violations in order to bolster sagging NRA compliance, the weakest link in the chain.

Forty Hour Week Maximum.

A prohibition against any code authorizing more than a 40 hour work week and increased labor representation on the NRA governing board are other revisions which may be asked. There has been a growing movement within the NRA to cut all code work weeks to 40 hours, and the NRA was frankly disappointed when the President before extending the automobile code did not make the first move by cutting that code's week from 48 to 40 hours. A definite statement to this effect in the law may be asked.

The American Federation of Labor has been driving for increased labor representation on the five man board which runs the NRA. Revisions in the NRA high command, however, can be made by President Roosevelt by executive order and may not be included in the new law. The President is reported to be under pressure to junk the board and return to one-man rule such as existed when the NRA was under sole direction of Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

Despite a growing insistence from Republicans and radicals in congress that the NRA be investigated, the President is determined to stand behind his recovery administration. The proposed declarations against price fixing and production control through codes are both sops to the NRA critics in congress, most of whom insist that these two devices have been used to promote monopolies. A resolution is now pending in the senate to investigate the NRA.

The President is standing behind the NRA also despite the fact that now, with NRA compliance in virtual collapse, business is enjoying one of its best booms. Pointing out that the NRA never made a serious dent in the national unemployment, many are arguing that if business were let free from it recovery would be more rapid. The President does not agree.

HOOVER AND 16 OTHER GUESTS STAY NIGHT WITH EDITOR WHITE

Emporia, Kas., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, his son Allan, and 15 others partook tonight of a "plain staple" dinner in the home of William Allen White, then decided the event should become an overnight visit.

"While we won't say where we're sleeping," said the celebrated publisher of the Emporia Gazette, "it's a safe bet we will have pallets under the grand piano."

It was a reunion of Republican compatriots, but the purpose of the dinner was social, not political, as the suggestion of Mr. White to midwest guests —"Bring your tux"—indicated.

All the guests stayed for the night and Mr. and Mrs. White not only had one house full but they also took over the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William L. White, across the street. The guests will depart tomorrow for their homes. The former President and his son will continue on to Palo Alto, Cal.

MODERN HOME EXHIBITS DRAW 10,000 IN 2 DAYS

Everything for the modern home from portable streamline kitchen units to the latest in insulated roofing is on display at the Modern Home exposition in the Coliseum. Harry H. Potts, operating manager of the nine day show, estimated last night that 10,000 persons had attended the show since John Bowers, president of the Chicago Real Estate Board, opened it officially on Saturday.

Three hundred nationally known manufacturers staged the exposition to stimulate the building industry and allied trades in this area. Stores of State street and outlying districts have displays of interior furnishings.

Among the exhibits can be found demonstrations of air conditioning for summer and winter, modern applications of building materials, and an explanation for the housewife of how best to light her home.

ICE BOATER DIES AFTER ALL NIGHT BATTLE FOR LIFE

An ice boat adventure on the thin ice of Wolf lake near Hammond Saturday night ended yesterday in the death of one man, and a perilous experience for his friend who survived him. Reinhard A. Hiss, 31 years old, 7339 Yates avenue, the victim, died in St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, where his friend, David S. Hillis, 30 years old, 6939 Jeffrey avenue, was treated and later brought to the Passavant hospital here.

The two had planned to sail their homemade ice boat at daylight Sunday, but they decided to take it out for a short test at 8 o'clock Saturday night. The ice gave way and Hiss and Hillis began a desperate struggle for life. Finally, half frozen, they managed to pull themselves up on the crumbling ice. Hiss was too weak to stand. His friend reached the cabin of Charles Thamm on shore.

Thamm wrapped him in a blanket, and went out with a wheelbarrow to bring Hiss in. Meanwhile the wives of the two men had become worried and had driven to the lake after notifying the Hammond police. Six hours after the accident they took the two men to the hospital where Hiss died of exposure.

WIDOW'S SUITOR DETAINED IN QUIZ OF CLUB MURDER

Faces New Gun Inquiry; Doubt Cast on Alibi.

Peter Brickie was the only person detained in custody last night in the investigation of the Saddle and Cycle club murder as police and prosecutor tried to unravel the maze of conflicting stories told by Mrs. Helen Straub, blonde widow of the slain victim, and Brickie, who was her erstwhile clandestine suitor.

Brickie was held prisoner on the statement of Mrs. Straub that she had sold him a .380 caliber automatic pistol, an unusual type of weapon, and the kind used in slaying of her husband, Louis K. Straub, night bartender at the club, on Feb. 3. The widow also told the police that Brickie once said he would like to take a shot at Straub so he and Mrs. Straub could be together always.

Questioned on Alibi.

Brickie's wife, and another man and woman were questioned at the Summerdale station last night by Assistant State's Attorney Morris Meyers on the alibi which Brickie had established through his wife.

Mrs. Brickie had stated that she was with her husband from 9 p. m., Feb. 2, several hours before the murder, until the afternoon of Feb. 4. Those questioned last night were George E. Gibney, 1904 Ainslie street, and his estranged wife, Mrs. Betty Swanson Gibney. Gibney is said to have told of seeing Brickie near the De Luxe hotel, 1809 Lawrence avenue, where Brickie lived, on Saturday night before the slaying.

Brickie, meanwhile, continued his denials that he had ever possessed such a pistol as Mrs. Straub declared she sold him. He has admitted, however, that he visited her while Straub was at work as a bartender in the exclusive club at Sheridan road and Foster avenue.

The Women in the Case.

Mrs. Straub, Brickie, Mrs. Zoe Platt, sister of Mrs. Straub, and Mrs. Ellen [Billy] Edlin, the widow's closest woman friend, had been taken into custody early Saturday when police learned about the pistol. Mrs. Straub, who had previously employed two attorneys, was promptly "rescued" by them through filing of a writ of habeas corpus and a subsequent agreement with the state's attorney's office that she would be freed by 6 o'clock Saturday if no reason developed for placing a charge against her. When she was released Saturday she agreed to appear voluntarily at the detective bureau yesterday. The three others had been held at a hotel by the state's attorney's office.

At 2 o'clock yesterday Mrs. Straub and her attorneys walked into the office of Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan. Present there were Assistant State's Attorneys Charles S. Dougherty and Morris G. Meyers, and Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the prosecutor.

Refuses to Leave Attorneys.

"We wish to question Mrs. Straub outside the presence of her attorneys," Mr. Meyers stated. The attorneys said they would not consent to this procedure. Mrs. Straub was asked if she intended to do as the investigators wished or as her attorneys wished. She said she would accept her lawyers' advice.

A dispute followed as to whether she had been well treated on the three previous occasions when she was questioned concerning the murder of her husband. The answer was that she had not been ill treated, but that she had noticed the agitated condition in which her former admirer emerged from a session of questioning in which she thought he had been given a lie detector test. Brickie was not required to submit to the test, however, because of the weak condition of his heart, the prosecutors said.

The Story of the .380 Pistol.

The story of the mysterious .380 caliber pistol and the investigations which it inspired is as follows. Police learned that Mrs. Straub's father, Charles Springer, had once owned a gun of the type used in killing Straub. They questioned him and his wife, step-mother of Mrs. Straub, and learned the weapon was turned over to Mrs. Straub last October. Mrs. Straub admitted receiving it but said she sold it to Brickie.

Brickie, a man of 51, who denied emphatically that he ever had the gun, lives not far from the Straub home at 901 Argyle street.

He and Mrs. Straub both admitted having carried on a secret affair for years, Brickie having known her before her marriage to Straub in 1927. It was admitted by both that he called at her home a week after the murder of her husband and had advised her to be careful in her disclosures.

Tells of Warning Note.

Mrs. Straub also said she had received a note which she recognized as one written by Brickie warning her against the possibility of a dictaphone being planted in her apartment, and her maid, Patsy Heard, testified that she saw such a note. Brickie denied writing or sending it.

It was admitted by Mrs. Straub and Brickie, and Mrs. Straub's sister, Mrs. Platt, that Brickie had been invited to Mrs. Platt's home last Tuesday and it was admitted by Brickie and Mrs. Platt that mention had been made by Mrs. Platt of a gun. They disagreed on what was said.

Brickie declared Mrs. Platt had said "Melba [the name used by Mrs. Straub when she was employed as a cabaret entertainer prior to her marriage] is worried about a .380 gun she obtained from father." Mrs. Platt said she merely asked him if Melba ever talked to him about such a gun.

Prosecutors Dougherty and Meyers, believing they were on the trail of the gun used in the murder, said they wished to see what the reactions of all concerned would be under lie detector tests. Brickie, they said, was suffering from high blood pressure and could not take the tests. Mrs. Straub, on her attorney's advice, had refused to undergo the test. Mrs. Platt was the only person who was subjected to the test Saturday.

Decide to Free Others.

That was the situation when the investigation was resumed yesterday. When Mrs. Straub walked out with her lawyers the officials decided to release Mrs. Edlin and Mrs. Platt. Mrs. Straub's attorneys had said they now were authorized to represent those two women and they wished to talk with their clients.

Chief Sullivan said there would be nothing gained by questioning women who had been advised by lawyers to tell nothing, in explanation of their release. Mrs. Edlin, because of her close friendship with Mrs. Straub and the fact she was with Mrs. Straub the evening of the murder, had been questioned several times. Mrs. Platt was not brought into the investigation until Saturday.

"We're going to hold Brickie, and the investigation will be resumed Monday in the state's attorney's office," said Chief Sullivan in announcing the release of the two women. "When Mrs. Straub is willing to aid us in investigating the murder of her husband we will be glad to have her return, but without attorneys."

NURSE LOCKS HOUSE; LOSES HER MEMORY; PATIENT STARVING

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary L. Philo, 90, blind widow, was discovered today to be starving in her home, in which she was locked Tuesday by a 70 year old nurse who subsequently lost her memory.

The discovery of Mrs. Philo by Leon Comstock, Fullerton rancher, also revealed the identity of a woman amnesia victim found last Tuesday.

Comstock came to Los Angeles to visit his mother, Mrs. Mary Comstock, who had been caring for Mrs. Philo at the latter's home. When no one answered his knock, he broke a window pane and found Mrs. Philo, too ill to care for herself, starving to death.

He notified police and Mrs. Philo was taken to a hospital. Comstock then discovered his mother was the amnesia victim.

PREDICT REGULAR COAL DELIVERIES DESPITE STRIKE

Outlaw Union Walks Out Today.

The strike called by the coal teamsters' union headed by Milton Booth Jr., to become effective this morning, will not tie up the delivery of coal today, according to forecasts made last night by coal merchants and officials of other unions.

A survey of coal yards was made yesterday by Tom Cronin, president of the Coal Teamsters and Handlers' union, local No. 704, an affiliate of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and a unit in the American Federation of Labor. Cronin said few of his men would join in the walkout.

Jobless Members Available.

Secretary-Treasurer J. Bray of the A. F. of L. local, speaking for President Cronin, asserted that his union had a membership of nearly 5,000 drivers and helpers and that his men would be able to handle all deliveries.

"There are a number of unemployed teamsters, who can be furnished by our union to fill the places of the strikers," he exclaimed.

The striking union is the Chicago Coal Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers' union, local No. 704. It has been referred to as the "outlaw union" because of its affiliation in the past with the Trucking and Transport exchange [TNT], a racketeer organization, and because of its former domination by gangsters.

Merchants Evince Indifference.

Officials of the outlaw union have predicted that between 2,000 and 3,000 men will join in the strike. The union demands recognition and an increase in wages. The police have refused to allow the union to meet.

John D. Rooney, secretary of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association, whose members have a contract with the A. F. of L. local which does not expire until April 1, said that he did not expect the strike to affect members of the association.

J. C. Hoskins of the Lake Coal and Dock company announced yesterday that his company had signed a contract with the striking union, including the higher wage scale, and that deliveries would be made as usual.

Police Prepare for Trouble.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's police, and Supervising Capt. Ira J. McDowell were making preparations last night to prevent any trouble in the event of a clash between the rival unions.

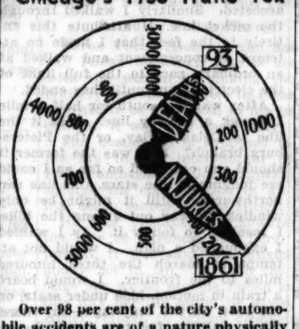
AVOIDABLE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile accidents are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

AH, A BEDSTEAD IN YOUR POCKET, MR. SHOPLIFTER!

Shoplifting in a furniture store comes under the head of difficult jobs. Consequently, David Eisenberg of 722 Bittersweet place was both puzzled and annoyed because divans and buffets and bedroom suites kept disappearing from his store.

He kept a close watch on his customers, but failed to see any of them going out with even so much as dining room tables under their arms. Mr. Eisenberg went to Capt. Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall police and confided in him.

"I have two detectives," said the captain, "who can spot a man carrying a Queen Anne coffee table as far as you can see. Trust Detectives Clarence Sweeney and Frank Hopkins."

The detectives, deducing that some vehicle would be necessary in the thefts, kept an eye on George Berger and Roy Sievert, truck drivers who delivered orders for Mr. Eisenberg. Sure enough, they found the two delivering furniture to places not listed on the order book.

Questioning cleared it up. The two sold furniture to friends and acquaintances cheap, representing they could "get it wholesale." They had sold $4,000 worth of goods for only $400, they confessed.

Lion Quadruplets at Zoo Die of Undernourishment

The four cubs born to the pair of young Nubian lions at the Lincoln Park zoo last Tuesday were found dead in their cage yesterday morning. Supt. Floyd Young attributed their deaths to undernourishment. He explained that lions which bear young in captivity seldom feed them. Zoo officials tried vainly to keep the cubs alive with cow's milk.

WOMAN IS KILLED AS SHE STEPS OUT OF PARKED AUTO

Two Others Hurt; Police Absolve Driver.

Miss Grace Smith, 38 years old, 5734 Winthrop avenue, died yesterday at the Edgewater hospital of injuries incurred earlier in the morning when she and two other persons were struck by an automobile as they were alighting from a car in front of 5720 Winthrop avenue.

E. J. Barron, 48 years old, 1517 Olive avenue, an insurance agent, incurred a fracture of the skull in the accident, and Elmer Echmann, 36 years old, 4200 North Campbell avenue, an accountant, was less seriously hurt. Miss Smith was a stenographer for the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Driver Is Not Held.

Charles V. Hildebrecht Jr., 37 years old, 1244 Farwell avenue, driver of the car that struck Miss Smith and the others, was not held by the Summerdale police. He is a patent attorney with an office at 53 West Jackson boulevard. The police said Miss Smith and the others had just alighted from the car on the side away from the curb when they were struck.

The death of Miss Smith and two others yesterday raised the 1935 motor death toll in Cook county to 115. Up to 3 p. m. yesterday, 93 had been killed this year in automobile accidents within the Chicago city limits, and 1,861 injured.

Trafic Toll Goes Up.

The other deaths yesterday:

Louis Kurill, 55 years old, 6222 Grace street. Killed last night when he was struck by an auto while crossing the street in front of 6547 Addison street. A. L. Buttman, 5604 Henderson street, the driver, was not held. Witnesses testified that Kurill walked into the path of the car.

Ray Devore, 48 years old, 3101 Washington boulevard, an unemployed bricklayer. Died at the County hospital of injuries incurred Friday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Louis Kulma, 22 years old, 2505 Kimball avenue. Police said Devore was crossing against the stop light at Sacramento and Warren boulevards when he was struck.

Andrew Andersen, 73 years old, 3220 Armitage avenue, an unemployed carpenter. Killed instantly when he was struck by an automobile at Cicero and Wellington avenues. Roy W. Nelson, 22 years old, 5927 North Rockwell street, driver of the car, was not held by the police. He said Andersen stepped from the curb directly in front of his car.

Seven Injured in Collision.

Seven persons were injured, one seriously, yesterday afternoon when two automobiles collided at Kean avenue and 143d street. Mrs. Margaret Eberling, 19 years old, of Orland Park, incurred a fracture of the thigh bone and of several ribs. The car driven by her husband, Victor Eberling, 18 years old, was struck by another driven by Bert R. Portlock, 30 years old, 109 19th avenue, Melrose Park, a store manager. Both were cut and bruised. The others injured are Miss Edna Thies of Orland Park, Mrs. Helen Portlock, 29 years old; Mrs. Bessie Gleason, 53, and Boyce Shelly, 42, all of Kankakee.

2D CHILD DIES FROM BLUNDER IN INJECTING TOXIN

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—A second child victim of what Dr. J. C. Geiger, city health director, said was a hospital interne's blunder in giving diphtheria toxin injections died here tonight.

The child, 6 year old Lois Lowden, was one of five who became ill after the injections. Five year old Natalie Rojnovsky died Thursday, a week after the inoculation with the undiluted toxin instead of immunizing diphtheria toxoid.

Physicians expressed belief the other three victims, all infants, would recover.

LOCOMOTIVE UPSETS: 2 DIE.

Cecil, Ala., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Two trainmen were killed today when a Seaboard Air Line freight locomotive overturned after striking a cow.

NURSES RESCUE 42 PATIENTS AS HOSPITAL BURNS

Carry All to Safety Down Stairways.

Murray, Ky., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Staf physicians and nurses today rescued all forty-two patients at the William Mason Memorial hospital here as the three story building was destroyed by fire with loss estimated at $150,000.

Crawling on hands and knees in smoke filled rooms to locate some of the patients, staf members carried all of them down stairways to safety.

One rescue was that of a 280 pound man, Will Kirkland of Murray, who was carried out by four nurses. Kirkland was wearing plaster casts for fractures of both legs.

Nurse Organizes Rescue.

Dr. W. H. Mason, president of the hospital, credited a senior in the hospital's nursing school, Miss Ruby Rose of Calvert City, Ky., with organizing the nurses quickly when the fire was discovered at daybreak. Miss Rose issued orders like an army sergeant and the others obeyed.

Although the fire spread quickly over the building by way of a waste chute, only a few of the patients and nurses came to windows to cry for help.

The hospital matron, Mrs. W. F. Skinner, was rescued by ladders from a precarious position on a second floor balcony. She attracted attention by her screams for help.

Two Nurses Injured.

Two nurses suffered sprained ankles when they jumped first from the third floor to a mattress on a second floor balcony and then to blankets outstretched by rescuers on the ground. They were Miss Anna Olson of Virginia, Minn., and Miss Norma Spaulding of Holly, Mich.

One other nurse who jumped to safety, Miss Lourine Young of Holly, Mich., was uninjured.

A group of CCC boys, hospitalized for measles but not seriously ill, helped with the rescue work.

NORMAN THOMAS HITS NEW DEAL AND ROOSEVELT

Ridiculing proposals for unemployment insurance as impractical and visionary, Norman Thomas, former Socialist candidate for president, criticized President Roosevelt and the New Deal yesterday in the Coliseum at a Socialist municipal election rally. The Socialist candidate also assailed the administration's plans for wage security, the National Industrial Recovery act, the administration rulings on labor disputes, the "brain trust" and "all the Father Coughlins, Huey Longs, LaFollettes, Olsons and 'Doc' Townsends."

CHAMBER URGES 4 BILLION WORK BILL CUT TO 2

Huge U. S. Deficits Cannot Continue, Is Plea.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Reduction of 2 billion dollars in the proposed 4 billion dollar program of President Roosevelt for work relief was recommended today by the federal finance committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce. The group urges the reduction as advisable from a fiscal viewpoint as well as from the light of experience.

The report points out that of the 8 billion 500 million federal expenditures proposed for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, approximately 4 billion 600 million is for emergency purposes. This is well in excess of what will be spent in the current fiscal year, it is said.

Have a Billion Left.

"About one billion dollars will be available for public works from money appropriated but which will not be expended by July 1 and which can be expended in the coming fiscal year," the committee said. "In view of this situation the 4 billion dollar appropriations for recovery and relief should be cut in half as the remaining 2 billion dollars, plus the 1 billion available would be sufficient to carry on recovery and relief on a basis comparable to present expenditures."

The committee reported that experience proves there must be an end sooner or later to government deficits. No complexities of disbursement, taxation, borrowing, or monetary policies can in the end prevent facing the task of balancing the budget, it said.

"The continuance of deficits means an increasing danger of impairment of the public credit and weakening of the whole economy of the country," the report states. "The need, therefore, for expenditures of any particular amount and for any particular purpose is to be measured against the greater need of the whole people.

Urges Taxes Be Limited.

"This requires that order be restored to the public finances by limiting expenditures to minimum amounts needed for indispensable purposes, while keeping taxes within a total that can be borne by a reduced national income.

"It is outstanding in the budget proposals before congress that the contemplated total of expenditures is greater than in any year of the depression, and that the only expectation of reduction rests upon the ability of business to provide enlarged employment. But even if business cannot recover sufficiently because of, or in spite of, various governmental policies, 4 billion dollar annual deficits cannot continue."

ROTARY TO MARK CLUB'S 30 YEARS HERE TOMORROW

The Rotary club of Chicago will celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of its founding at a luncheon tomorrow at the Hotel Sherman. Major John L. Griffith, president of the club, will preside.

Four men met in the office of the late G. H. Loehr in 1905 and the club plan was conceived there by Loehr, Paul Harris, Hirman E. Shorey, and Sylvester Schiele. The group soon grew to thirty members and from this nucleus Rotary has spread to 76 countries and approximately 4,000 clubs. The Chicago club now has a membership of 650.

Forty-eight pioneer members of the club will be honored at the luncheon tomorrow. Henry R. Paul and Arthur W. Glessner will be given 25 year membership awards which are exempt from dues. Paul Harris now is attending a Rotary International Pacific conference in Manila.

Batista Frees 200 Cuban School Teachers from Jail

HAVANA, Feb. 17.—(AP)—More than 200 public school teachers who were arrested yesterday on charges of "illegal assembly" in connection with a student strike were released today upon the order of Col. Fulgencio Batista, commander in chief of the army.

"MY LIFE," AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

A prisoner in the hands of the Boers, Churchill and his companions decide upon escape. Churchill alone is successful and goes on to new adventures in the war.

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

The Boers led their fifty prisoners a long tramp through the pouring rain to Colenso station, where we spent the night locked in the parcels office. The next day we marched through all the rough country beyond the Tugela river and slept under strict guard in one of the laagers of the Boers besieging Ladysmith. By a third march we reached Elandslaagte station, which was the Boer railhead, and were dispatched by train to Pretoria, where we arrived on Nov. 19. The soldiers were taken to the prisoners' cage on the race course, and we four officers went to join the fifty or sixty officer-prisoners confined in the state model schools. Up to this moment there had been no opportunity of escape, but now we naturally began to take the closest stock of our new abode.

Guarded by Sentries.

The state model school stood in the midst of a quadrangle and was surrounded on two sides by an iron grill, and on two by a corrugated iron fence about ten feet high. These boundaries offered little obstacle to any one possessing the activity of youth, but the facts that they were guarded inside by sentries fifty yards apart, and that the whole quadrangle was brilliantly illuminated by electric lights, made them a well-nigh insuperable barrier. There was, however, one obviously weak point in the bounds that held us. A small circular lavatory of perforated metal stood against the eastward wall. A sentry paced, close by, but one could go there freely at any time. There was no roof to this little round house, and from the inside it was easy to climb over the outer wall.

The danger consisted in the fact that one would certainly be visible, at the moment of climbing over, to the sentry only a few yards away. But he might not be looking, or he might be at the other end of his beat. It was possible through the perforations to see where he was, and what he was doing, before making an attempt. There was a chance; it was a grim hazard, but not without hope. Three of us resolved to try.

Decide to Try Again.

My two companions made an abortive attempt on Dec. 11. They claimed the right to go first, and I awaited their success or failure fifty yards away under the veranda of the schoolhouse. They did not think the conditions practicable, so we decided to try again on the 12th. I once again agreed to their having the first chance, but I made it clear that I was determined, when it came to my turn, to take the risk of the sentry seeing me and the second risk of his firing without parley at that close range.

Winston Churchill is the figure at the left center with luggage, shown with other prisoners as the train arrived in Pretoria after their capture by the Boers. The thrill of his escape is one of many interesting incidents in the accompanying instalment of his autobiography.

When my companions had tried again and had been frustrated by the vigilance of the sentry, they came back to the veranda, and I stole across the yard and secreted myself in the circular lavatory. Through the chinks I watched the sentry. Suddenly I saw that his back was turned. I saw that his comrade was also at the far end of his beat. Now or never! I stood on a ledge, seized the top of the wall with my hands, and drew myself up. Twice I let myself down in sickly hesitation, and then with a surge of resolve, scrambled up and over. My waistcoat got entangled with the ornamental metal work on the top. I had to pause for an appreciable moment to extricate myself. The sentry fifteen yards away was lighting a cigaret. I remember the glow on the inside of his hands as a distinct impression. Then I lowered myself lightly down into the adjoining garden and crouched among the shrubs. I was free; the first step had been taken and it was irrevocable. It remained to await the arrival of my comrades, assuming they tried again.

Awaits His Comrades.

I lay still for an hour in great anxiety and impatience among the bushes. People were continually moving about in the garden and once a man came and apparently looked straight at me only a few yards away. I remained motionless in the darkness. Where were the others? Could they not make an attempt? Suddenly I heard a voice within the quadrangle say quite low, "All up." I crawled back to the wall. Two officers were walking up and down inside, jabbering Latin words, laughing and talking all manner of nonsense—amid which I caught my name. I risked a cough. One of the officers immediately began to chatter alone. The other said slowly and clearly, "They cannot get over. The sentry suspects. It's all up. Can you get back again?"

But I could not climb the wall silently, if indeed at all. There was no helpful ledge on the outside. To go back was impossible. To walk round and give myself up would clearly have given away the method by which I had escaped.

Decides to Go On.

There was nothing for it but to go on. But this indeed seemed a forlorn hope. I had money, £75, but I had no food except a little chocolate and biscuit in my pocket. I spoke no word of either of the two languages, Dutch or Kaffir, ignorance of which would certainly betray me. I was in the heart of the enemy's country, in a town whose streets were patroled and whose outlets were picketed, and three hundred miles from the frontier. I said to myself, "Of course I shall be recaptured, but I will at least have a run for my money." I said to the officers, "I shall go alone."

Now I was in the right mood for this undertaking, failure being almost certain, no odds against success affected me. My fears fell away. The gate which led to the road was only a few yards from another sentry. I put my hat on my head, strode into the middle of the garden, walked past the windows of the house without any attempt at concealment, and so went through the gate and turned to the left. I passed this sentry at less than five yards. As I turned my back upon him I mastered with the utmost difficulty the impulse to run. But after walking a hundred yards and hearing no challenge, I knew that the second obstacle had been surmounted. I was at large in Pretoria.

Walks Through Pickets.

I walked through the suburbs, passing numerous people but without being accosted. Similarly I walked through the picket line. I attribute this entirely to the fact that I made no attempt at concealment and walked at an ordinary pace in the full light of the electric lamps until they ended.

After walking south for half a mile I struck a railway line. Was it the line to Delagoa Bay, or the Pietersburg branch? If it was the former it should run east, and so far as I could see judging by the stars, this line ran northwards. Still it might be only winding its way out among the hills. I resolved to follow it. As I walked I expounded a plan. I would not attempt to march the three hundred miles to the frontier. I would board a train in motion, hide under seats, on the roof, on the couplings—anywhere. After walking for two hours I perceived the signal lights of a station. I left the line and circling round it, hid in a ditch by the track about two hundred yards beyond the platform. I assumed that the train would stop at the station, and that it would not have got up too much speed by the time it reached me. An hour passed. I began to grow impatient. Perhaps no trains ran by night. Suddenly I heard a whistle and the approaching rattle. Then the great yellow headlights of the engine flashed into view.

Crouches by the Track.

The train waited five minutes at the station and started again with much noise and steaming. As I crouched by the track I rehearsed the act in my mind. I must wait until the engine had passed, otherwise I should be seen. Then I must make a dash for the carriages.

The train started slowly, but gathered speed sooner than I had expected. The flaring lights drew swiftly near. The rattle became a roar. The dark mass hung for a second above me. The engine driver silhouetted against his furnace glow, the black profile of the engine amid clouds of steam rushed past. Then I hurled myself on the trucks, clutched at something, missed, clutched again, missed again, grasped some sort of hand hold, was swung off my feet—my toes bumping on the line, and with a struggle seated myself on the couplings of the fifth truck from the front of the train.

It was a goods train, and the trucks were full of sacks, soft sacks covered with coal dust. They were in fact bags filled with empty coal bags going back to their colliery. I crawled on top and burrowed in among them. In five minutes I was completely buried. The sacks were warm and comfortable. Perhaps the engine driver had seen me rush up to the train and would give the alarm at the next station; on the other hand, perhaps not. Where was the train going to? Where would it be unloaded? Would it be searched? Was it even on the Delagoa Bay line? What should I do in the morning? Ah, never mind that. Sufficient for the night was the luck thereof. Fresh plans for fresh contingencies. I resolved to sleep, nor can I imagine a more pleasing lullaby than the clatter of the train that carries an escaping prisoner at twenty miles an hour away from the enemy's capital.

2 MAROONED ON ICE BLOCK REACH SHORE BY BOAT

ARCHANGEL, U. S. S. R., Feb. 17.—(AP)—After two days and three nights in which they were marooned on blocks of ice in the open sea, Nicholas Baiev and Peter Latkin, lighthouse keepers, reached shore at Intzy Point safely today in a small rowboat.

They were carried to sea on a 20 foot square island of ice Wednesday night when the block broke away from the frozen shore. In a small boat, which had remained in their possession, they managed to transfer to an icefield twice that size after clinging to their perch throughout the night, but were unable to negotiate toward shore against the driving wind and floating ice.

Latkin fainted from thirst and exhaustion. Baiev melted snow for drinking water while the ice block drifted 12 miles from the coast. They were protected from the cold only by sweaters and had but one loaf of bread between them. Airplanes and an icebreaker had sought them in vain.

BRITAIN ORDERS NAVAL SQUADRON TO SOMALILAND

Protection for Colony Next to Ethiopia.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Armed sloops and other British vessels in the East Indies squadron now in the Persian gulf, it was learned tonight, have been ordered to proceed under full steam to Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, in case Ethiopia takes the initiative in open hostilities while Italian reinforcements are en route.

There are several hundred British subjects in Addis Ababa, chiefly British Indians, and also Greeks and Armenians who have obtained British citizenship. Practically all are small tradesmen.

To avoid any sort of international incident in the event that the Italians use planes to bomb Addis Ababa, these nationals will be evacuated at a moment's notice.

Garrison Inadequate.

The present force in British Somaliland consists of 400 camel corps troops commanded by a British officer, Lieut. Col. H. B. Holt, and 300 native gendarmerie, commanded by British noncommissioned officers. This force is considered inadequate by the governor, Maj. A. S. Lawrence.

For reinforcement, a British Indian regiment 1,000 strong, supported by a machine gun detachment and mountain mule battery and a squadron of the air force, is standing ready at Aden, only 100 miles from British Somaliland, across the straits of Bab-el-Mandeb. The gravity of the situation is further emphasized by the fact that the British high commissioner at Cairo, Sir Miles Lampson, arrived in an airplane at Khartum, capital of Anglo-Egyptian Sudan bordering on Ethiopia.

It was learned here that the Ethiopians have equipped frontier posts with which they are able to keep in touch with the capital without using the French telegraph wire.

Italian Troops Moving.

ROME, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's soldiers moved southward today under pleasant Italian skies toward Africa, ready at Il Duce's own command for "any eventuality."

They departed from Italian shores yesterday with assurances from the nation's highest executive body—the Fascist grand council—that Mussolini had made every provision for their success in the event of hostilities.

A communique issued by the grand council gave no specific plans for a military program in East Africa, but it was learned authoritatively that 3,000 more men were to sail from Naples tonight for police work in Eritrea, Italy's colony on the Red sea.

Thirty thousand regular soldiers were expected to follow them into Eritrea and other points in East Africa close to the arid borders of Ethiopia. It was also understood that native troops in Italian Libya were being recruited.

Black Shirts to Embark.

NAPLES, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Two battalions of Black Shirts who arrived here from Rome early this morning will leave tomorrow aboard the steamship Grange for Eritrea and Somaliland. Today the ship was being loaded with war materials.

An actual count of the battalions revealed that each consists of 950 men, 50 noncommissioned officers and 24 officers, a total of 2,048 men. The concentration of officers at Florence has not yet begun to move for embarkation.

Last night's communique of the grand council of Fascism, published this morning, was the first news printed in any Italian newspaper regarding the mobilization and departure of troops since a brief communique last Monday.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., EX-MAYOR IS READY TO FACE CHARGES

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Legal machinery was set in motion today to return John S. Schnepp, "newsboy," to Springfield, Ill. There he once was mayor and he will face charges of embezzling $32,300. He slept soundly and awoke apparently happy this morning after having told Acting Captain of Detectives John Erickson that at last he remembered he was Schnepp.

When taken by the police he said he was John Mason, 68, a seller of newspapers. Word was received here today police would leave Springfield on Monday to take him back to that city. The charges involve the estate of Mark M. Ettinger, of which he was conservator.

"You know, my mind is getting a little better," he told his jailor today. Then he told Capt. Erickson:

"Yes, I am John S. Schnepp, former mayor of Springfield. Schnepp disappeared early in 1932 after serving three terms as mayor of Springfield. He later said:

"It is all interesting to me, because I have been trying for three years to find out who I am. I want to go back to Springfield and find out what it is all about."

He was told by friends he had a wife, two daughters, and two sons waiting for him.

"I would be most pleased to meet them," was his reply.

Knights of Columbus Induct Class of 400 in 4th Degree

Two hundred candidates received the fourth, or patriotic, degree in the Knights of Columbus at the annual meeting of Marquette province at the Palmer house yesterday. The initiation was followed by a banquet attended by 1,200 members of the Catholic order. Among those receiving the degree were United States Senator Francis T. Maloney of Connecticutt; Fred W. Brummel, member of the board of review, and Judge Peter M. Schwaba of the Supedior court. Senator Maloney and the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, spoke at the banquet.

20,000 GERMANS CHEER THE POPE AND CATHOLICISM

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Fervid homage was paid the pope and catholicism tonight in an impressive celebration of the papal coronation anniversary by 20,000 persons who jammed the sports palast. For the first time in the last two years the huge auditorium was shorn of all Nazi emblems except for one small swastika flag, visible amid the wealth of papal banners.

Cesare Orsenigo, the papal nuncio, and Bishop Nicholas Bares of Berlin addressed the multitude which cheered their veiled allusions to present relations between the church and the Nazi state, although neither Adolph Hitler nor Nazism was mentioned by a single word. The mere mention by the nuncio of Pope Gregory VII. drew frantic applause because the audience understood his apparent meaning—Gregory's successful fight against the political power of Emperor Heinrich IV.

Bishop Bares condemned the hierarchical principles of bolshevism as exalting the omnipotence of state. Here the audience cheered again—the similarity between bolshevism and Nazism in this respect being obvious. Most outspoken was another orator, Dr. Rick, Catholic Action leader, who said, "The popes have always combatted the control of religious life by political and state authorities. The holy Catholic church—that is the leadership principle which excludes any national or state controled churches."

EIGHT BALLOONS SNATCHED UP BY GALE; MAN KILLED

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Eight balloons, groomed for elimination trials for the next James Gordon Bennett international races, were torn from the hands of their landing crews at Darmstadt today as a severe westerly gale wrought havoc in all parts of Germany.

One man was killed and four others, hurled to the ground, were severely injured when the inflated bags escaped with the wind. Three airplanes at Tempelhof field were damaged.

In Berlin one person died and three were injured by falling chimneys and roof slates. Houses were unroofed in many places, telegraph poles torn down, and trees razed. Shipping on the North sea and the Baltic was paralyzed. Several air services suspended operations during the 24 hour blow.

HITLER DEBATES FATE OF 2 GIRL SPIES FACING AX

Decision Will Be Made Public Today.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Sentences for divulging military secrets, passed by the dreaded People's court upon four German society women and one man, will be made public tomorrow, an official of the propaganda ministry said.

He professed ignorance, however, as to whether the death penalty would be imposed. Apparently that rested with Reichsfuehrer Hitler himself, to whom the Nazi cabinet recently delegated the final word in death sentences.

Two of the women, Baroness Benita von Berg and Frau Renate von Natzmer, are to be beheaded, according to nonofficial sources, while Fraulein von Jena and Fraulein Zandersch, also said to be implicated in the plot, are to be sentenced to hard labor for life.

(Dispatches from Berlin Saturday said the two women would be executed this morning. Since then there has been no intimation as to their fate. Some observers in Berlin expressed the belief the official announcement of the sentences would be made after the execution had taken place, as was done after the June 30 "blood purge.")

Saved by Polish Envoy.

Baron Yurek [George] von Sosnowski, Polish nobleman who is accused with the women of making German military secrets available to Poland, is likewise to be sentenced to life imprisonment, it was said unofficially.

Von Sosnowski is supposed to owe his life to the intervention of the Polish ambassador, Josef Lipski, who secured the commutation of an original death sentence from Hitler.

He was unsuccessful, however, in the case of Baroness von Berg. Sosnowski, it was said, was anxious to marry her in jail. Through the marriage she would become Polish and in this way her life might be saved, but Hitler refused to extend clemency to her.

Espionage Is Revealed.

The story of how two attractive young girl secretaries in the reichswehr, or regular German army, were induced to impart official secrets to outsiders, became known piecemeal from various sources.

According to these unofficial reports, Baron von Sosnowski had been seeking to obtain knowledge concerning certain military documents through Baroness von Berg, whose social connections included the two young reichswehr secretaries.

Von Sosnowski and Baroness von Berg succeeded in worming out information on these matters from the two girls at an evening party, so the story goes. Subsequently the girls were entertained on a lavish scale and given valuable presents.

Caught in Spy Net.

Eventually they were stricken with qualms of conscience and refused to comply with further demands for information, but once caught in the net they found difficulty in extricating themselves. Yielding to threats of denunciation, they continued to supply information from secret documents.

The affair leaked out, according to officials, when the mother of one of the girls asked her where she got her expensive fur coat, and why she was always keeping such late hours. The daughter replied she was always kept busy and that the office where she worked paid ample money for overtime.

Unsatisfied with the explanation, the mother made inquiries at the reichswehr department and was told that her daughter was employed only very occasionally after office hours.

The high official with whom the mother consulted communicated his suspicions to the anti-espionage department, which had the girls watched. They were arrested at one of the gay parties.

SAAR-GERMAN TARIF WALL FALLS AND NAZIS CHEER

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Feb. 18 [Monday].—(AP)——One thousand Nazi storm troopers, headed by a fife and drum corps, marched to the new German customs house on the French border early today, heralding the fall of the customs barrier between Germany and the Saar.

At midnight, when the change became effective, the parade started. Several thousand Saarlanders, carrying flaming torches, accompanied the troopers. In front of the customs house the storm troopers presented arms while Nazi leaders told the crowd of Germany's joy at the new economic status of the Saar.

At the same time green uniformed customs officers of the reich began to enforce the new customs barrier that went up between France and the Saar. France and Germany started applying duties, in some cases quite high.

FRENCH POLICE FIGHT OFF VETS AND RIGHTISTS

Pensioners Lay Plans to Besiege Bourse.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Nationalists armed with canes fought with police today at the town of Tourcoing while crippled war veterans crowded the steps of the Paris Opera shouting their demands for larger pensions.

Three hundred veterans went to the Opera from a meeting where their national federation voted to besiege the bourse this week and hold a mass demonstration of monster proportions next Sunday if the senate fails to restore their pension reductions on Wednesday.

Ban Newspaper Sales.

The demonstration in Paris was dispersed by police without disorder, but one Nationalist and one policeman were injured in the fighting at Tourcoing. Three police sought to enforce an order against the sale of political newspapers in front of churches by rival banks of right and left extremists.

The Royalists and "Patriotic Youths" fought back when police sought to disarm them of the canes they carried for protection against communists. Four were arrested.

"I was the eldest of a large family," explained Arthur, University of Southern California sophomore. "Early in life I learned to take care of my baby brothers and sisters. So I'm qualified."

OIL SUPPLY FAILS; FLYERS LAND ON ATLANTIC ISLES

French Pair Halfway to South America.

PORTO PRAIA, Cape Verde Islands, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Threatened with disaster in midocean, Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi turned their 4 year old plane back early today, half way to a new world's distance record, and landed safely at Porto Praia after a thrilling flight against time.

They escaped a forced landing at sea and its consequent dangers after they had sent out an S O S at 8 a. m., G. M. T. [2 a. m. central standard time], which started a seaplane and ships to their assistance.

Faulty oil pressure in the engine caused them to turn back. The Joseph Le Brix, veteran of a thousand hours of flight, landed safely at the airfield here at 1:32 p. m. after the flyers had dumped out their still dangerously heavy load of gasoline.

Engine Overheated.

The two flyers, exhausted by their efforts to keep a diminishing oil trickle feeding into their overheated engine and hold the plane in the air, ate a small lunch and went immediately to bed. The fume-blackened fuselage of their plane bore witness to the mechanical difficulties they encountered.

Upon waking they planned to seek the exact cause of their failure to complete the hop from Istres, France, where they took off early yesterday morning, to Buenos Aires. This nonstop distance would have smashed their present record from New York to Rayak, Syria, which they made in 1933.

A huge seaplane flying France's mail route to South America, the Santos Dumont, had been ordered to the rescue of Codos and Rossi when their SOS came over the air. A dispatch boat also was sent, and the cruiser Emile Bertin turned from her course toward the area. The flyers called them off by radio when they approached land.

Halfway Across Ocean.

The Joseph Le Brix was about 500 miles off the Cape Verde Islands and halfway across the South Atlantic when their distress signal was picked up. They had covered approximately 3,870 miles of a total of 6,830 miles from Istres to Buenos Aires in 25 hours and 24 minutes.

Their distress signals were followed by a message saying the plane was turning back, presumably to avoid the added danger of fighting bad weather which had been reported off the South American coast.

Terse reports of their flight against time and trouble were sent out by the flyers who had been over the ocean since midnight.

FLYER TELLS HOW TRIO WERE SAVED IN ARCTIC WILDS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Pilot Donald Goodman and two passengers were safe today after a week in the wilds of the Kuskokwim river country—rescued by a searching plane which sighted their appeal "HELP," fashioned from evergreen boughs. All were bruised and scratched. Otherwise they suffered little from the harrowing adventure.

Telling the story today, Goodman related that a week ago yesterday, on a flight from McGrath here, their ship encountered a strong down draft. He set the plane down on a narrow stretch of river ice, between the trees, damaging it some. The trio fashioned their distress signal—green against ice and snow—and then began a wait for rescue planes.

Yesterday afternoon, Pilot Estol Call, accompanied by Cecil Higgins, mechanic sighted the evergreen sign. Call flew back to anchorage with Goodman and Paul Keating, one of the passengers. Bob Laurie, the other passenger, remained behind to be flown out today. The trio carried emergency food supplies.

JOSHES FIREMEN ON JOB AND GETS SELF ARRESTED

With the arrest of Luke McGuire, 28 years old, 6920 South Artesian avenue, on charges of making a disturbance at a fire, police and firemen yesterday launched a campaign against a new sport for the early morning hours—badgering firemen.

Such actions have become a menace in the Englewood and Chicago Lawn police districts, according to Battalion Chief Anthony G. Seaman, who ordered the arrest of McGuire at a small fire at 6953 South Western avenue. McGuire, it was charged, was one of a number of persons who followed fire companies to the blaze and annoyed the fire fighters with unasked advice, cheering, and jeering.

Chief Seaman said that a brush with firemen is becoming a popular diversion of south side residents after a tour of night clubs and taverns.

PARAGUAY OPENS DRIVE TO CAPTURE FOE'S MAIN BASE

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Heavy fighting was under way today at Villa Montes as Paraguayan forces launched a major offensive to capture Bolivia's major stronghold in the Chaco boreal and key to the region's rich oil wells.

Advices from the front described the action as "bloody." For a month or more the Paraguayan army, under the command of Gen. Jose Estigarribia, has been thrusting at various key points of the Bolivian defense at Villa Montes. Heavy cannonading was reported with casualties relatively large. Neither side, however, divulged its losses.

Bolivian reports said two battalions of Paraguayan troops were shattered in two attacks at Villa Montes Thursday. If Paraguay takes the stronghold many observers believe it may be the decisive turning point of the long jungle war.

Bolivia has massed the main body of her forces at Villa Montes.

BYRD PARTY REACHES CIVILIZATION AFTER 15 MONTHS IN ANTARCTIC

DUNEDIN, New Zealand, Feb. 18.—[Monday.]—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and a majority of his explorers of Little America returned to civilization today after 15 months in the antarctic.

The flagship bearing the bronzed band arrived at Port Chalmers early this afternoon and then proceeded to Dunedin for a medical inspection.

Commenting on his second expedition, Admiral Byrd said:

"What is most gratifying to me, overshadowing the accomplishment of the mission we set out to fulfill, is the fact that we are all coming back with no lives lost. No one was seriously hurt or crippled in spite of the hazardous nature of the operations."

SCALDED CHILD DIES.

NOW THEY FIND IT'S BETTER TO RIDE FEET FIRST

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Scully-Walton company, operators of a fleet of private ambulances, tonight gave out the disturbing information that the traveling public has been sleeping with its feet pointed in the wrong direction.

"Comprehensive inquiry into the practical and physiological premises for the custom of lying in passenger vehicles with the head in the direction of travel," said the announcement, "reveals that the practice had its origin in considerations now obsolescent and that there are numerous valid reasons for its reversal."

Will Try to Right It.

Willis G. Gray, president, said the company would take the lead in righting this wrong by recommending to its patients that they ride feet first hereafter.

"This change, the study established, will eliminate 'car sickness' of the type induced by sitting backwards, will minimize congestion of blood in the head and materially reduce the probability of injury in the event of accident," said the announcement.

"Numerous travelers, it is conjectured, must have lost their lives in nocturnal collisions because they were rendered insensible and unable to help themselves when thrown violently head forward against the front of their sleeping compartments. Rude bumps on the cranium familiar to railroad passengers from the mere careless handling in sleepers by switch engines are cited in support of this contention."

Started by Ventilation.

The company said its inquiry had shown that the practice of making up berths with pillow toward the engine had developed from the ventilation standpoint. With their heads toward the rear passengers would have been subjected to direct drafts and soot.

But with the advent of air conditioned coaches, Gray predicted that all travelers soon will be sleeping feet first.

POST MAPS LAST TEST FOR CROSS-CONTINENT STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—One more test flight that will carry the globe circling monoplane Winnie Mae into the upper reaches of the sky remained today as the final experiment demanded by Wiley Post before he starts Tuesday or Wednesday on his attempt to span the continent in the stratosphere.

Post hopes to fly from here to New York in seven hours by bulleting five miles or so above the earth.

On his final test Post will set his throttle at a 350 mile an hour pace, the clip at which he expects to travel over mountains and plains so high that he will be seen only at his departure and his landing.

Special oxygen and heating equipment will be used to conteract the effects of rarefied air and extreme cold on man and plane. Post plans to drop his landing gear after the take-off and land on a metal skid as a means of cutting down air resistance.

MELLON FIGHTS CIVIL CHARGES ON INCOME TAX

Stock Sales Losses Are Contested by U. S.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Andrew W. Mellon and the treasury department, which he headed during the Coolidge and Hoover administrations, will begin a knockdown fight here tomorrow with millions at stake.

Before three members of the board of tax appeals, sitting in a sixth floor courtroom of the new federal building, the man, whom Herbert Hoover, then President, sent as ambassador to the Court of St. James's, will have the first public opportunity to answer formally the government's charge that he cheated on his income tax return in 1931.

Counsel to State Issues.

The first session of the proceeding to determine whether Mr. Mellon owes the government $3,075,103 or whether he is entitled to a refund of $139,045, will be given over chiefly to the opening statements of the opposing counsel. Fireworks are expected.

Frank J. Hogan, chief of Mellon's counsel, is expected to charge that his client is being made the victim of political persecution by the Democrats, citing the government's former unsuccessful effort a year ago to start criminal proceedings against Mr. Mellon. At that time a grand jury voted "no bill."

Subpenas have been issued on Mellon's behalf for records of the treasury department and the office of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings. From them evidence will be sought to support the countercharge that politics is behind the tax case against Mellon.

Officials of the United States attorney general's office are expected to be called here to face Attorney Hogan's questioning.

Hopes to Limit Case.

Robert H. Jackson of Jamestown, N. Y., one of Secretary Morgenthau's ablest aids, will present the government's case against the 79 year old financier and statesman. Jackson will try to limit the issue to the question of Mellon's income and his taxes.

How far afield the proceedings will be permitted to go rests within the discretion of the three members of the board. They will hear the evidence and report to the full membership of the board of tax appeals in Washington, probably a month from now. Holdover Republicans still control that board.

The presiding officer at the hearings will be Ernest H. Van Fossan, an Ohio Republican. He presided over the hearing on the tax case involving Senator James Couzens of Michigan, when the senator won a $1,000,000 refund from the government. Sitting with him are Charles M. Trammell of Florida and Bolan B. Turner of Arkansas.

Notables May Testify.

The purely financial and non-political aspects of the case are expected to bring a score or more of the nation's business leaders into court as witnesses. Among those scheduled for an early courtroom appearance are James A. Farrell, former president of the United States Steel corporation; Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, and Chas. M. Schwab, chairman of the board of that corporation.

One of the first moves contemplated by former secretary Mellon's attorneys will be an attempt to quash subpenas issued for the records of the Union Trust company of Pittsburgh, the Mellon National bank and the Pittsburgh Coal company. All of those institutions are owned or dominated by Mellon interests. Counsel for Mellon and for those institutions contend that the government is on "a fishing expedition" among the banks' records to disclose information about the incomes of persons other than Mellon.

Mellon Likely to Testify.

Mellon is expected to take the witness stand in his own behalf. If he does he will be asked about an account he carried with the brokerage firm of Moore, Leonard and Lynch for trading on margin in the period after the stock market crash of 1929.

Another matter he will be called upon to explain is the letter he sent to the United States senate while he was secretary of the treasury. That letter contained assurance that he owned no bank stock and was not engaged in business in violation of the law. At that very time, Mr. Jackson says he can prove, Mr. Mellon held the controling interest in the Union Trust company of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Mellon's income tax return for 1931 showed income and profits amounting to $10,890,485.40, but of this, he maintained, only $1,927,116.40 was taxable. He paid a tax of $647,559, after claiming a loss of $7,277,851.30 through the sale of securities.

Dispute Over Losses.

Experts of the bureau of internal revenue disallowed $6,528,263.75 of the sums he said he lost. Those experts charged that Mr. Mellon had failed to report about $5,000,000 of the income he received in 1931. Fixing his true taxable income at $13,529,853.74, those experts computed Mr. Mellon's tax at $2,059,507.49. The bureau of internal revenue asked that fifty per cent of the tax due be added as a penalty for "fraud."

From this order Mellon appealed. He asked that the losses he claimed be allowed. He asserted that he did not receive the additional unreported income as charged. He demanded a refund of $139,045, the amount which he said he overpaid by failing to deduct all the funds he donated to philanthropic and educational work. As the petitioner Mellon must present his case first, thus giving the government spokesman the last word in this proceeding.

One of Sales Involved.

One of the transactions which the government describes as a "sham sale" for the purpose of dodging taxes, involves the sale of 123,622 shares of the common stock of the Pittsburgh Coal company to the Union Trust company for $400,000, or about $4 a share. Mellon said he had paid $6,177,956.25 for the stock and claimed a loss of $5,677,956.25 on the deal.

According to the government's case exactly 118 days after the so-called "accommodation sale" the Union Trust company sold the same block of stock to the Coalesced company, created by Mellon as a holding company for his interests. About $68,000,000 of Mr. Mellon's estate, the government's evidence indicates, has been transferred to the Coalesced company, a family corporation, in exchange for stock.

The government charges that the Coalesced company is merely a device for dodging gift and inheritance taxes.

MRS. RUDY VALLEE, HOME, PLEDGES NEW 'FIREWORKS' AHEAD

Santa Monica, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Promising "more fireworks," Fay Webb Vallee rested today in her family home after a round trip across the continent that failed in its objective of obtaining more alimony from Rudy Vallee, radio singer and movie actor.

"I am not discouraged," said Mrs. Vallee. "Far from that—there'll be more fireworks and plenty to say when my attorneys get back."

Mrs. Vallee was accompanied by her father, Clarence E. Webb, chief of police of Santa Monica. Webb charged the New York court was prejudiced against his daughter from the start, and that when Vallee took the stand Justice Cotillo told him: "Take it easy, Rudy."

Patients will be moved from the old to the new hospital tomorrow and demolition of the old building, vacated to allow for the widening of La Salle street, will start later in the week. ARTHUR S. ROCHE, NOTED NOVELIST, DIES IN FLORIDA

Began Writing Career as Newspaper Man.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Arthur Somers Roche, 51, well known fiction writer, died at his home here early today of heart disease after a two weeks' illness.

In the last quarter century Roche had contributed many short stories to magazines and newspapers. He had been a member of the winter colony here for the last twelve years.

Born April 27, 1883, at Somerville, Mass., Roche began his magazine writing career in 1910 after a few years spent in newspaper work. He practiced law for a few months after attending Holy Cross college and Boston college, from which he was graduated in 1904.

Captain in World War.

During the war the author served as a captain in the military intelligence division.

The writer had a long list of novels and serial stories to his credit, including "The Sport of Kings," "Uneasy Street," and "Four Blocks Apart."

Roche professed to hate work but literally drove himself to becoming one of America's hardest working and most prolific writers.

He was thoroughly unconventional in his ideas and protested all manner of reforms. He was, according to his friends, one of the gentlest and most generous of men.

People His Chief Interest.

Palm Beach, hearing of his death, echoed with stories of his quiet generosity. Interested in people in all walks of life he always was helping some down and out prize fighter and providing for some poor family.

He also was known for aiding struggling young writers and did much to develop the literary talent of his wife, Ethel Pettit, also an author of note.

Regarding younger people his opinion was "all this hullabaloo about the younger generation is all pious bunk. It is their manners we should worry about, not their morals. To be well mannered is merely making a material application of the Golden Rule and if we do that our morals and souls are pretty safe."

Opposed to Reformers.

Roche once suggested that all reformers and "professional meddlers" form a suicide pact and "walk the plank into the Atlantic ocean." He offered to furnish the plank.

Roche was noted as a host and was in constant demand at social affairs. He was reported to have been hard at work on a new novel when he became ill.

TWO KENTUCKY TOWNS PROTECT THEIR CRIMINALS

Covington and Newport Outlaws' Haven.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Covington, Ky., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The Newport-Covington area which lies at the juncture of the Licking and Ohio rivers across the big river from Cincinnati, and from which Canada just has picked two of a gang of kidnapers and extortionists who have been working on an international basis, is known to the criminal investigation department of both countries as a bad spot.

It may be that Canada, which sent David Meisner to the penitentiary for the kidnaping of John S. Labatt, London, Ontario, brewer, on Aug. 14 last, and which succeeded yesterday in gaining an extradition order for another gangster, "Piccolo Pete" Murray, will stir the majority of good citizens of the community into taking some action to throw off this evil reputation and to assert themselves against the ring of politicians and the gamblers who now operate with immunity on American soil.

Reform Is Doubtful.

This, however, is doubtful. An investigation of affairs in this community discloses hardly a ripple of surprise or indignation over the state of affairs revealed by the Canadian authority in the Labatt case. The astonishing action of two city detectives of Covington in rushing to the defense of the gangster, Meisner, with a bad alibi, and their quick departure from Canada by night to escape perjury charges, has failed to register here.

Few of the citizens interviewed knew anything about it, except the complaint of the detectives against unfair treatment in Canada by a "kangaroo" court.

The detectives in question, Leroy Hall and Albert Selter, still are on duty in Covington and there has been no move to dislodge them. Hall has withstood worse criticism than this. There was an indictment for grand larceny against him at one time and again he was under suspension for 18 months as a result of a witness fee investigation in which somebody had been grafting. He won an appeal on this and was reinstated on the force.

Frequenter of Gambling Joints.

Hall's own story to free Meisner in the Labatt case indicates the condition of affairs in Newport and Covington. Meisner, he admitted, was a gambler and it was part of his duty to keep such men under surveillance. This he did by wandering in and out of the gambling joints and noting who was there and particularly when they were absent. He knew Meisner was there on Aug. 14 last because he had brought in some crooks from Louisville on that day and had seen Meisner on the platform.

The trouble with this alibi was that it was a month off. The journey with the Louisville crooks, it was shown by the Canadian investigators, was on Sept. 14. It was about this time that Hall and his companion, who never testified at all, decided to leave Canada in a hurry. They sneaked out a back door of a hotel and thought they had eluded pursuit.

As a matter of fact they were trailed all the way to the border and could have been arrested at any time. The Canadian authorities decided it would not be good policy in view of the pending Murray trial.

City Manager Satisfied.

Theodore Kluemper, city manager of Covington, who has charge of the police department among his other duties, said of this affair:

"I saw no objection to the detectives going up to Canada if they knew what they were talking about. They said they did. The truth is they made a mistake of a month in time. I don't believe they went up there to tell a wrong story. They found it out up there and had a tough time. There is no feeling around here about it."

Mr. Kluemper, a heavy, Germanic type of official, serves under four commissioners who are elected by the people of Covington. There is a mayor, too, but he has been relegated to a minor sort of custodial position. The commissioners rule and the city manager acts according to their votes. The commissioners represent the two political factions, Republican or Democratic, a sort of bipartisan rule in which the sporting element plays a large part in controling votes. Latonia race track is hard by and gambling seems to be in the air. A slot machine syndicate reaps a harvest in the district. Handbooks are operating with little effort at hiding.

"We Are Liberal People."

"We are a liberal people," says City Manager Kluemper. "We have shut the big gambling places. There are only a few handbooks now."

The official attitude is that the people are getting about the kind of a government they want.

Circuit Judge John Northcutt told the county grand jury something of this sort recently. He drew attention to the gambling evil and intimated that it would be a good idea for the social and moral agencies of the community to set an example along these lines.

The fee system is responsible for the continuance of gambling establishments, the judge thinks. Under this system the officials do not get paid unless out of fines. If there was nothing to fine they would get no salaries. It is a vicious circle.

Everybody Has Sponsor.

The city manager form of government followed the reform movement across the river, when the charter group in Cincinnati became sufficiently strong to overthrow the Boss Cox ring. While the reform was apparently real in Cincinnati, however, it has been only a change in name in Newport and Covington. The same old rings control. Invisible political forces protect such detectives as Hall and even reach out to the defense of the gangsters Meisner and Murray.

The blue grass legend of old Kentucky, with its reputation for fine horses, beautiful women, and good whisky, becomes nothing but a legend here.

This is a smoky puddle of red brick houses and factories along the river, a community of 100,000, most of whom make their living in Cincinnati. They have little community identity. There are plenty of business men's clubs, and church steeples dominate the horizon. But these are mostly old buildings. The religious life seems at an ebb.

Recently one of the newspapers, the Kentucky Post, sent out a questionnaire to Covington ministers on the local gambling situation. Only two, the Rev. J. Howard Laughner, young pastor of the First Lutheran church of Park Hills, and the Rev. E. D. Edelmaier, pastor of Immanuel Methodist Episcopal church and president of the Ministerial association, came out with definite responses.

Sanction by Indifference.

On the question whether the church members sympathized with the attitude on gambling displayed by public officials, the Rev. Mr. Laughner said:

"There seems to be a spirit of apathy toward such matters among most church members. I don't believe they altogether sanction it except by their indifference. Possibly many are involved in various ways with its system of corruption. The general trend of human nature is to take everything you can get, especially if you can get it without working. This has cost much in the loss of moral fiber, civic morale, honesty, and progress."

The Rev. Edelmaier and the Ministerial association, while registering their opposition to gambling in any form, were cool about entering any crusade along this line and doubtful of results.

The Rev. Laughner said he could not even join the civic association because of gambling and drinking there. Church raffles and lotteries came in for criticism.

Newport Is "Little Mexico."

The Covington district, however, is mild in comparison with Newport, on the other side of the Licking river. They have a city manager form of government there, but the gambling element appears to have control. The police here and in Covington are efficient in the matter of holdup men and major crimes, but they have permitted to grow up in their town one of the best known hiding spots for criminals in the central part of the United States.

The gambling houses are large and flourishing. They keep touts in Cincinnati to draw wealthy visitors across the river. They have big bank rolls for the gamblers from Chicago, Cincinnati, and New York. They attract and shelter a vicious crew of dope peddlers and gangsters. The place is known as a dope center and a hideout. The notorious "Bottoms" hide all manner of vice and crime. The name "Little Mexico" has been given to the town.

A few weeks ago the Rev. H. C. Wayman, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Newport, spoke on "Crime—Our City's Most Costly Luxury." He invited all city and county officials to attend. He held up two clippings from daily papers which told of a holdup of a gambling place—"$21,000 taken—holdup men known—no arrests. Raid of gambling place—$85 taken—no prosecution."

"These and similar questions are on our minds," he said. "Add to this a statement I have heard dozens of times. Everybody knows that gambling is open in Newport. Now I do not know it. I am not a reformer. I profess to be a preacher of righteousness, but I must say that questions are raised in my mind. The daily press is taking the side of law enforcement. Public conscience will awaken. No city has a right to allow vice and disease and crime to breed. The people of Newport demand and expect to secure justice and law enforcement."

Grand Jury Ignores Gambling.

Last Thursday the Campbell county grand jury made its response to this plea. Seventy-two indictments were returned, including robbery, housebreaking, grand larceny, shooting, carrying concealed weapons, illicit still, assault and battery, etc. Nothing was said about gambling. The grand jury recommended repapering and painting the detention home. They called the chiefs of police and police officers before them and inquired into conditions, but found nothing to do about gambling. In the meantime the gambling houses were closed temporarily. When the grand jury reported they reopened and one of the largest is preparing to enlarge and beautify its quarters.

The Labatt case and its revelations as to Newport and Covington conditions has been but an incident here. It is hardly discussed. The fight of State Senator John T. Murphy of Covington to escape extradition to Ohio on an indictment charging him with forgery has, however, received attention. Senator Murphy is a political power in Covington. Ohio has been trying to get hold of him for forgery of checks aggregating $27,000. So far they have not been able to get him across the river. Covington protects her own.

EATS 20 DOUGHNUTS IN 18 MINUTES; WINS DOZEN MORE IN BET

Providence, R. I., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Alfred S. Howes of Troy, N. Y., Brown university freshman, won the intercollegiate doughnut eating championship here today, putting away 20 doughnuts in 18 minutes and 50 seconds.

Howes, who also once was the championship doughnut eater of his troop of Boy Scouts, claims the record because his time is better than that set Friday by W. Russell Pillsbury of the University of Vermont who ate 20 doughnuts in 29 minutes and 26 seconds.

The record was established before four other students, who bet Howes that he could not better Pillsbury's feat. While Howes doesn't get a letter for his achievement, he did win the bet—a dozen doughnuts.

ALDERMAN ASKS FARLEY INQUIRY IN NEW YORK CITY

Scanning of All Records Is Advocated.

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Ald. A. Newbold Morris, Republican, announced today that he would introduce at the meeting of the board of aldermen next Tuesday a resolution directing the commissioner of purchase to furnish the board with records of all negotiations and contracts between the city and the General Builders' Supply company or any firm in which Postmaster General James A. Farley is interested.

The resolution also will pledge the board's support of the investigation of the relation of firms in which Mr. Farley reputedly has a financial interest with government contracts. Mr. Morris added that the public also would be interested in knowing if one of Mr. Farley's firms had been involved financially in the development of the Bronx of the Hillside Housing corporation of which Charles E. Keegan, former secretary to Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, is vice president and general manager.

Farley Holds Many Jobs.

"Mr. James A. Farley is a man of many arts," Mr. Morris said in explaining the purpose of his resolution. "He apparently has had no difficulty in holding many jobs simultaneously. We have known him as state boxing commissioner, chairman of the Democratic state committee, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and postmaster general. Aside from his public duties, he has been a successful salesman of sand and gravel, gypsum, and of late an equally successful philatelist. Mr. Farley may well be congratulated on his versatility.

"The forthcoming senate investigation into the affairs of Mr. Farley's General Builders' Supply corporation bears directly upon the expenditure of public moneys in the city of New York. It is in this city that Mr. Farley has his home; it is here that the General Builders' Supply corporation has its headquarters; it is here that the post-office annex was built and that vast sums have been and will be appropriated in which the General Builders' Supply company has had both a direct and an indirect interest.

Promises Data on Contracts.

"I am prepared at a later date to give specific instances of contracts entered into. At present, I consider it the definite duty of the board of aldermen not only to coöperate with the senate investigation committee, but also to obtain information regarding bids submitted and contracts entered into by the Builders' Supply corporation or concerns in which it has an interest, in so far as such negotiations may affect funds made available by the taxpayers.

"I am furthermore interested, as I believe the public is in the Hillside Housing corporation, which in the Bronx is building, no doubt, some very pleasant apartment houses with PWA funds. Mr. Charles Keegan, former secretary to former Acting Mayor McKee, is the vice president and general manager of that particular PWA project.

"Without for a moment wishing to imply any criticism of this project or of Mr. Keegan's relationship with Mr. Ed Flynn, I nevertheless believe that the public might be interested in knowing just which one of Mr. Farley's concerns may or may not be or may have been financially involved in that public project."

Would Investigate Others.

Mr. Morris said that he did not know all the subsidiaries and affiliates of the General Builders' Supply corporation, and declared that the corporation alone, during 1934 received $3,000 in city funds and $30,000 through the TERA. He added that it might be instructive to ascertain to what extent other companies, whether Mr. Farley's or not, such as the Hudson Sand and Gravel company, had profited through use of public funds.

"The President in his charmingly delightful fireside chats over the radio," Mr. Morris continued, "has repeatedly emphasized—over the radio, that is—that he is not interested in such mundane affairs as political patronage or political preference. Therefore, I anticipate no difficulty in obtaining the hearty coöperation of the General Builders' Supply corporation and of Mr. Farley, philatelist ameritus."

VICTORIANS PROTEST PLAN TO RENAME ROAD FOR PRINCESS MARINA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Princess Marina, now the duchess of Kent, who is on a honeymoon with the duke of Kent, fourth son of King George and Queen Mary, may be very popular with most Britons, but many persons of the Southfields section of London prefer the late Queen Victoria. They have flooded the Wandsworth borough council with protests against a plan to change the name of Princess road to Marina road.

"If you must rename the street," they said today, "pick out a name that goes better with the locality than Marina. Our area is typically Victorian and we want to keep it that way."

The harassed borough council appealed for aid to the London county council, which will now attempt to honor Marina without hurting the Victorian susceptibilities of Wandsworth. A tenants' strike has been going on in this section since Christmas. The London county council condemned a row of houses. The landlords did not repair them, so the rear of the houses were pulled down with the tenants still inside. The tenants failed to get a reduction in rent, consequently they refused to pay. Kitchen sinks stand in the middle of gardens and tenants sleep with tarpaulins rigged up as roofs.

DIES OF CAR INJURIES.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Injuries suffered Thursday night when an automobile crashed into a team of mules he was leading down a highway caused the death last night of S. R. Cutteridge, 40, father of eight children.

TRUCKS AND COMMERCIAL CARS

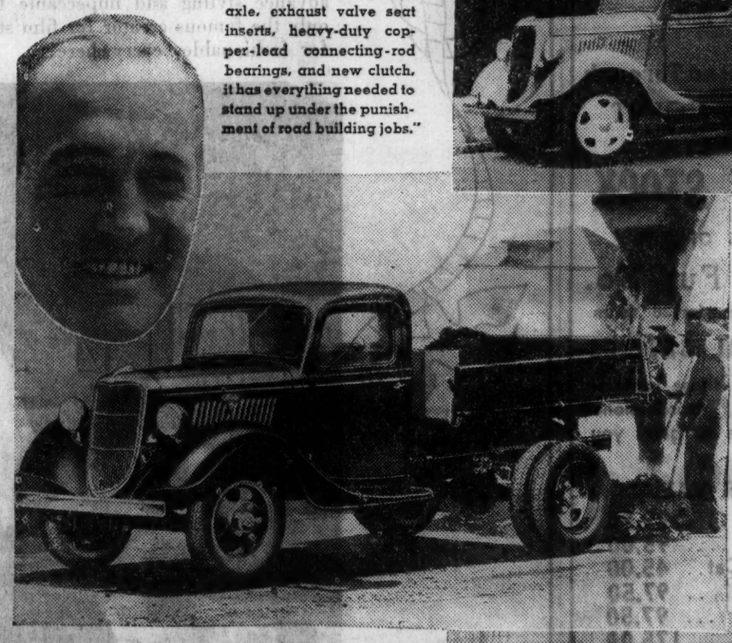
Three Men in Three Widely Different Lines of Business Bought Ford V-8's . . . for Three Widely Different Reasons

"V-8 ECONOMY CONVINCED ME" says this Heavy-Duty Hauler

"No more big expensive trucks for me. I can buy this 1935 Ford V-8 cab-and-chassis and a good semi-trailer for less money. With this combination, I get the full 80 horsepower I need to handle my loads. I make better time on the road and more trips a week. The money I save on gas, oil and repairs will enable me to lower my rates and get more business, because I can give my customers faster service at lower cost."

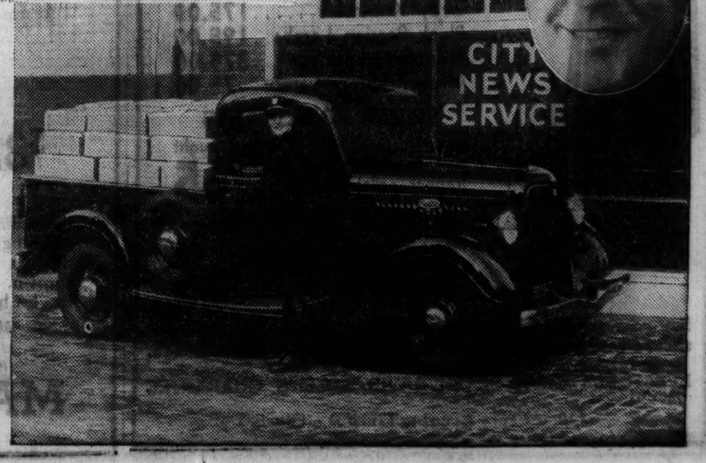
"V-8 RELIABILITY WON ME OVER" asserts this Road Contractor

"I won't have to worry about penalty clauses any more. This 1935 Ford V-8 Dump Truck stays ON the job and OUT of the repair shop and makes faster trips. This V-8 engine gives me the extra power I need for heavy loads. With its full-floating rear axle, exhaust valve seat inserts, heavy-duty copper-lead connecting-rod bearings, and new clutch, it has everything needed to stand up under the punishment of road building jobs."



"V-8 PERFORMANCE SOLD US" states this Circulation Manager

"We scoop the opposition on every edition since we started using our new 1935 Ford V-8 Pick-Ups. You ought to see them 'high-ball' out to the suburbs! We get our paper on the street in towns ten miles from the plant in a flat fifteen minutes and every mile is through heavy traffic. If we paid three times as much as the low cost of these units, we couldn't get better get-away, easier handling in traffic or greater value."



Statements like these are being made every day by enthusiastic owners of 1935 Ford V-8 Trucks and Commercial Cars. Owners of hauling and delivery equipment in every line of business, all over the United States, are looking at these new commercial units. They are trying them. And they are buying them. Ask your nearest Ford dealer for an "on-the-job" test, with your own loads, over your own routes, with your own driver at the wheel. Prove to yourself how V-8 Performance saves TIME . . . how V-8 Economy saves MONEY . . . how V-8 Reliability saves WORRY.

HAUPTMANN ONLY ANOTHER INMATE OF DEATH HOUSE

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, in the limelight for five months, sat in his cell in the death house of the New Jersey State prison today—"just another prisoner acting in a normal way."

State officials sought to remove "all dramatics" from the incarceration of the man convicted of killing the Lindbergh baby.

What Hauptmann—convict 17,400—did and said in his first 24 hours in cell 9 within six paces of the death chamber was known only to himself and his guards. He had no visitors.

"He's like every man who comes in here," Col. George L. Selby, acting principal keeper, said. "And he'll be treated like any one else."

HITLER TO FORCE GERMAN YOUTHS TO GIVE UP JOBS

Nazis Begin New Drive on Unemployment.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—(AP)—A new and more vigorous assault on unemployment lists in which the government will have the position of a feudal overlord begins April 1. There are admittedly more than 2,000,000 unemployed in Germany.

Most young people will be forced to give up their paying jobs and place their services at the complete disposal of the government labor service, which will send them to farmers needing help, construction projects, and "voluntary" labor camps.

Provides Drastic Punishment.

This plan, which provides for drastic punishment and admits of no loopholes, will be enforced particularly in the lower Rhine district, but parts of it are being used nationally. The complete scheme is expected soon to be a pattern for the whole country.

Its specific purpose is to open positions for older men and those with dependents. All positions for persons under 25 years will be state controled, and the whole labor market will be consolidated under state domination.

"In this way," officials say, "the state work department becomes part of the national reconstruction program, and the dole system will be pushed into the background."

Definite Goal Is Set.

Another feature of the intensified campaign is the setting of a definite goal—800,000—as the number to be left without work as "chronically unemployed."

No similar limit has hitherto been set in the employment drive, in which Nazidom claims one of its most signal successes. They point to the unemployment figure of 6,128,000 in 1932, and 6,014,000 in January, 1933, as compared to more than 2,000,000—the number Nazi officials now recognize as out of work.

To bring the latter total down even more will enable Hitlerism to boast about the fulfilment of its oft-repeated slogan: "Hitler furnishes bread and work."

PHIL KENNAMER.

Pawnee, Okla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Phil Kennamer, on trial for killing his chum, turned to the calm counsel of age today in his fight against the state's demand for his life. He is expected to take the stand tomorrow afternoon.

Kennamer, 19 year old son of a federal judge, talked for hours in the old Pawnee county jail to C. B. Stuart, 78 year old attorney. The aged lawyer will lead Phil tomorrow through his witness stand story of the shooting of John F. Gorrell Jr., 23, last Thanksgiving night.

Stuart also sat beside Kennamer during the first week of the trial, is a long time friend of the youth's father.

Dr. Karl Menninger, Topeka, Kas., psychiatrist, will be the first witness Monday. A hypothetical question which reviews the entire life history of Kennamer, concluding with a query as to whether Menninger believes the boy rational, has been framed.

Dr. Menninger will be followed by Dr. A. E. Werner, another mental disease specialist of Oklahoma City.

FASCIST REGIME TENDENCY SEEN IN JAPAN CRISIS

Fear Danger of Inflation in Eastern Nation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—With military and Fascist elements already powerful in many branches of Japan's national life, approaching crises in internal and international affairs of that country foster tendency to an outright Fascist dictatorship. This was reported today by the Foreign Policy association.

The association stressed the danger of uncontroled inflation in Japan, pointing out that the acute agricultural crisis in that country has in no way been relieved. The association questioned the permanence of the Japanese industrial revival.

Public Debt Mounting.

"Furthermore, although the bulk of new loans necessitated by the series of unbalanced budgets has been successfully absorbed," the association reported, "Japan's public debt has reached nearly 10 billion yen, which places an increasing burden on current revenue. With the mounting military-naval expenditures, it becomes a question how long Japan can continue to avert disastrous inflation."

T. A. Bisson, far eastern expert of the association, said army leaders have drawn close since 1932 to the highest bureaucratic and capitalist circles. Despite these contacts, he added, the decisive weight of capitalist influence has so far continued to be thrown against a complete monopoly of governmental power by military Fascist leaders.

Military May Act.

"The series of burocratic cabinets since 1932 may well provide the transitional stage to a dictatorship which would dispense with the parliamentary trappings of Japan's governmental system," he said. "A decisive move might easily originate with the military, around whom reactionary groups would then rally.

"A basic improvement in Japan's economic situation would be necessary to overcome the obstacles that stand in the way of a return to stable party government. On the other hand, the next serious internal crisis or international conflict would once more foster all the tendencies toward 'a strong hand in control.'

"The army shows no indication of relinquishing the vigorous political rôle it has played for the last three years. The new elements which the economic crisis pushed forward have increasingly strengthened their hold."

DEMANDS U. S. WITHDRAW FROM DISARM PARLEY

Tinkham Warns 'We' May Be Involved in War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—A resolution demanding the withdrawal of all American representation at the disarmament conference at Geneva will be introduced in the house tomorrow by Representative George Holden Tinkham [Rep., Mass.].

Congressman Tinkham declared that the present economic catastrophe in the United States was caused by the abandonment of the policy of strict neutrality in 1917 and that the country is now in the control of an international socialistic party.

Resolute Purpose of People.

"The recent passionate outburst of the American people against entry into the league of nations by way of the court of the league," Tinkham said, "has demonstrated the resolute purpose of the American people to re-establish the principle of strict neutrality in relation to foreign political affairs."

Proposals made at the disarmament conference, he contended, would involve the United States in the political affairs of Europe resulting in "a most treacherous entanglement of a political character."

The question of armament, according to the congressman's statement, is a political one, for should this country enter into any agreement in relation to the production and commerce in arms involving international supervision a breach of the agreement by one nation might lead to war.

Opposes U. S. in Europe's Affairs.

"A consultive pact under certain circumstances, such as has been proposed by the United States, would be a commitment to participation in the political affairs of Europe and unquestionably would involve the United States ultimately in war," he said.

"The selection, directly or indirectly, by the United States, would be a commitment to participation in the political affairs of Europe and well might lead to war."

Tinkham asserted that the American people would never again consent to an abandonment of their neutrality as was done in 1917.

THE SENATE AND JIM FARLEY.

Huey Long's persistence in getting an investigation of Postmaster General Jim Farley's works raises the question in the Democratic senate whether to shut Huey up by investigating and firing him or by investigating Mr. Farley. Mr. Long talks every day or every other day. Senator Wheeler says he is skeptical and cannot believe that the case is as Huey states it, but doubts that it can be ignored. Senator Norris, another New Dealer, has a brief against Farley.

The senate has protected Long himself against charges brought from his own state, and it might be embarrassing to investigate and disqualify him now merely because he is annoying the administration. Mr. Roosevelt's self-denying ordinance against two jobs did not include Two Job Jim, and if Huey lost his one place while the P. M. kept two, the matter would be ridiculous.

The honest way out is to investigate Mr. Farley.

WINSTON CHURCHILL IN THE WORLD WAR.

The memoirs of Mr. Winston Churchill, now running in THE TRIBUNE, make agreeable reading as the vivid record of an exceptionally colorful and adventurous life. They are important in presenting the thoughts and experiences of one of the most forceful figures in the public affairs of Great Britain in our time. Most significant, perhaps, of Mr. Churchill's experiences arose from the important part he played in the late war, and the significance is not lessened, though it is given the sharp edge of irony, by the fact that what history may consider his wisest inspirations were defeated. We have in mind especially his strategic conception for winning the war. Churchill did not accept the professional military theory that the war must be won on the western front. He was perhaps the ablest and most formidable of its critics. He held that it was unnecessary and inexpedient for the allies to keep butting their heads against the massive defenses of German power in France and Flanders. But French strategy was naturally influenced by the fact that French territory was held by German armies and Paris under threat, while the dominant British military thinking followed professional dogma or was unduly influenced by the defense of the channel ports. The classic tactics of the turned flank which had won so many epochal victories had lost favor and the common sense which favored attack at the weakest point of the enemy's line rather than at the strongest apparently did not impress the directors of British operations.

When Churchill was able to induce the government to launch a drive on the Turks by way of the Dardanelles it was so insufficiently mounted and badly carried out that it proved to be one of the most tragic failures of the war. For that he was not responsible and it is not bootless speculation to consider what might have been accomplished if the enterprise had been whole-heartedly supported and skilfully carried out by both the naval and army commands. Promptness and coordination of naval and land forces were essential to success and both were lacking. A successful advance would in all probability have not only eliminated the Turks but have saved Rumania, restored Balkan power to the allies, turned the Austrian-German flank, and by ending Russian isolation should have prevented the Russian collapse. In short, it might have ended the war in 1915 or 1916 and thus avoided its worst consequences. These advantages Churchill envisaged, and his military conceptions, masterful and sound as they were, should not be discredited by professional military influences so wedded to a ritual as to be unwilling or incompetent to exploit them.

HOT AIR AND SNOW.

The board of estimate in New York City has just appropriated another $1,750,000 for snow removal. A total of 4 million dollars has been spent this year in the attempt to clear the streets, but they were described a few days ago as "still in wretched condition" despite the outlay. Mayor La Guardia's toot system to bring the relief clients on the run with shovels in the alert position when the police and fire sirens sounded a long and short blast seems not to have produced the expected results.

Hot air, paradoxical as it may seem, will not melt snow.

It is interesting to note that the tax rate in New York this year is to be increased by some 8 per cent. Tax rates in Chicago and other well governed cities have been declining. It appears that hot air will not melt deficits, either. New York's controler reports that this year's deficit is more than 6 million dollars.

AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY.

The failure of the latest attempt to put the United States into the league of nations by way of the league court disposes of that question for the time being. It should not cease to be a matter of serious reflection by the American people. They ought to ask themselves why our entrance into the league system was favored by a large majority of the senators, almost two-thirds, in spite of the fact that the people have voted in almost the same proportion against this policy whenever discussed as a serious issue in a campaign. This is an extreme example of the persistent discrepancy between the will of the voters and the conduct of our foreign affairs, a discrepancy which has made our diplomacy in recent decades ridiculous or mischievous on occasion and in the main futile.

How come? Explanation seems not obscure. In the background is our preoccupation with home affairs which permits our foreign policy or rather the conduct of our foreign relations to be shaped or dominated by sentiments and theories not shared by the great majority of the American people. There is the organized pressure of pacifism, equipped with funds for propaganda controled by salaried professional altruists and supported by professors and clerical politicians and associations of comfortable men and women enjoying emotions unchecked by knowledge or reflection. And there are the prominent individuals with a colonial inferiority complex, tory-colonial minded, who regret the revolutionary war and would like to return the American colonies to their old allegiance and subservience.

That such influences should importantly affect the conduct of a great democracy's relations with other nations is an anomaly, and a dangerous and costly one. No other great nation suffers from it. Our own in its first great epoch did not. It is a perpetual handicap and threat to the security and prosperity of the nation, and it is for this reason that THE TRIBUNE'S Platform for the Nation carries the plank: Adopt an American Foreign Policy.

THE COUNTER-REVOLUTION IN RUSSIA.

Members of collective farms in Russia are now guaranteed the permanent use of their land. In theory the land, as in feudalism, belongs to the state, but in practice the farms will be assigned permanently to the peasants who now till them. To be sure, the peasants may not sell, mortgage, or lease their holdings, but the government has pledged itself not to expropriate the land or the improvements.

This is the counter-revolution. More than 80 per cent of the Russian population is peasant and a large proportion of the peasantry and most of the best land are included in the collectives. It follows that the private control of productive goods, which is the essence of capitalism and the negation of communism, is now granted by law to a great part and probably the majority of the Russian people.

The new regulation is put forward as a means of encouraging collective farm members to improve their property. The commissars seem to regard that as a great discovery. In fact, they have discovered human nature. They have learned, slowly and reluctantly, that ownership is the best incentive to improvement in methods of production and increase of output. They are learning that a nation that impoverishes its citizens is itself impoverished, and a nation that permits its citizens to own the fruits of their labor is itself enriched. They have learned that a nation which does not permit its farmers to own their farms and the improvements upon them is going to find its land exhausted, its farming equipment in disrepair, and its people constantly menaced by famine.

Hundreds of thousands of kulaks have been exiled or murdered for knowing what the commissars are announcing as their discovery. The kulaks were liquidated, but the idea which they represented refused to yield to the dogmatists. The nature of farm ownership, to be sure, has been somewhat altered, but the essence of ownership is incorporated in the new regulation. A peasant in a collective farm is not to be a private proprietor. Instead of owning his farm, he owns a share in a farming corporation. He is, however, a property owner and therefore a member of the hated capitalist class.

It is a curiosity of the times that as the communists have been forced to abandon communism as unworkable, our government has been moving in the opposite direction. What failed in Russia is being attempted in the Tennessee valley. What Lenin and Stalin could not do Prof. Tugwell wishes us to embrace.

FOREIGN TRADE OUTLOOK.

[Dallas Morning News.]

Reports of the efforts of the conference of southern senators to solve the problem of the dwindling foreign cotton market are not reassuring. The total tangible result of the conference apparently was "the appointment of a committee to go through the mass of information to ascertain what is necessary to revive the lagging exports." When in doubt appoint a committee and investigate. That seems to be the slogan of official Washington. It is a very good slogan when it applies to doubt about the facts of a confronting problem, but when it is merely doubt as to the best political policy to pursue, then there is not much reason for delay to dig out facts, excepting political reasons, of course. Southern senators know why cotton exports are lagging. In going through a "mass of information" the committee will thresh old straw.

The assistant secretary of state informed the conference that the efficacy of the present program of reciprocal treaties is expected to be proved or disproved within six months. If not effective, he said, downward revision of the tarif law will be necessary. This statement is not very reassuring, either. The program of reciprocal trade agreements offers the only way out; it will entail drastic revision of tarif provisions, and there is no need dallying.

Congress is face to face with what one Democratic senator has described as the "utterly impossible task of doing anything very materially about tarif reduction." By this he meant that when any important protected commodity or article was brought up for tarif reduction the political pressure was so great that it would be blocked. One of the inherent weaknesses of the representative democratic form of government is the effectiveness with which a vitally interested militant minority can block legislation which is in the interest of the majority. The need of tarif readjustment is an example. It is an "utterly impossible task" that must be accomplished, and the southern representatives and senators should be about it.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

HEY, INDIANS! YOU CAN HAVE IT.

It does look as though we would have to give the country back to the Indians. I've thought of that before, but again the dismal idea came to me the other day when I was driving my old gas buggy back through northern Indiana. I had to slow the car quickly, because in front of me trotted what I first thought was a pack of wolves. As I got nearer them I saw they were dogs that had gone native. They were a mean, wild, snarling looking lot of hounds, and I would hate to meet 'em single handed in a lonely woods. There were fifteen or so dogs of all breeds in the pack, and they were apparently ranging around the country hunting rabbits or sheep. They had probably lost their homes through their owners going on relief and not being able to keep them any longer. Funny that a dog can go downhill as fast as a human if he loses his self-respect. These dogs were as dirty and dissolute looking as any barrel house bum lurking down an alley hunting in garbage pails for scraps of food. Being very fond of dogs, I hold to the same idea that the Salvation Army adheres to regarding humans, and I am sure that a dog may be down but he's never out. But I didn't feel like going up to that pack to try any uplifting. They looked too mean. But here's the idea. With the numerous reports of wolves being seen around our cities and our dogs being turned out and going native we ought to think over whether or not to give the land back to the Indians. Our forefathers bought it for strings of glass beads, a blanket or two, and a bottle of bad whisky. Of course, we know now they got cheated, and the Indians ought to give those things back if we return 'em their land. But if they don't want to do that let 'em take the land and we'll say nothing more about it. Anyhow, after seeing those wild dogs and hearing about wolves being all around I wouldn't be surprised the next time I went out in the country to see Apaches or Comanches or something like that doing a war dance on the top of a hill. Those wild dogs have certainly got me all jittery.

ANTARCTICA SPEAKING.

And now those puny, strange, heroic men
Have sailed away again—
Those men who, to this barren, frozen clime,
Brought color, warmth and sound; brought, also, Time,
Time, meted out in months, in moments, too,
Before their last precarious adieu.
Cold, white Eternity unchallenged reigns,
And cold, white silence settles on these plains
And mountains once again. Those men are gone
From here, but never can oblivion
Encompass them. In vain the winds shall sprea
The snow upon their camp untenanted.
Always above the snowy waste shall rise
Mute remnants of their daring enterprise.
Always the echo of their deeds shall call
Across the lands and seas antipodal.

Now they have sailed away to meet the acclaim
Of other men; to know the thrill of fame;
To greet all green and growing things, and lie
Relaxed beneath a smiling azure sky,
Where love and laughter are, and joyous friends,
Where day is bright and night so shortly ends.
But, wheresoever they abide, shall go
With them a memory of snow,
And plains and mountains, glacial cold and white.
And one imprisoning antarctic night
Sometimes all suddenly will close them in,
Amid the country's calm, the city's din,
To clutch their souls, wherever they may be,
And drag them back to me.

THE HAUPTMANN JURY is said to be considering going on the stage and touring the country. I've paid good money to see the tattooed man and the Blood Sweating Behemoth of Sacred Writ, and Jo Jo, the Dog Faced Man who-eats-'em-alive-alive-alive! but I wouldn't give a used street car transfer, a suspender button, or a plugged Canadian dime to see the Hauptmann jury.

MAYBE THE JURY would make more money if they traveled with a street carnival and sat on boards in one of those contraptions which people throw balls at—three-fer-a-nickel—and if the target is hit the board is released and the stooge drops down into a tub of water. I wouldn't mind spending a quarter at least if the jury put on that sort of show.

No, nor any Pom, nor Scottie, nor poodle, nor spaniel. Not at all. You'll be glad to get a big police dog, and the bigger the better. Wait and see." No, when I am old and blind and sell shoe laces and lead pencils up and down the street I'm not going to have a police dog lead me around. I have enough trouble keeping out of their way right now when I can still see. Heavens! How could I pick out the nearest tree to climb if I were blind? No, no police dog to lead me around, thank you just the same. I'm going to train me a pet alligator. He can't run as fast as a police dog, anyhow.

INTELLIGENT FIRST AID.

THE care of an accident is a matter of considerable importance. The first impulse of those who rush to the assistance of an injured person is to move him. This is, in nine cases out of ten, the WRONG thing to do, particularly if a fracture of a bone has occurred or if there is injury to some of the important organs of the body. Moving an injured person is a technical procedure and should not be attempted by persons, no matter how kindly disposed, who are ignorant of the type of injury that has occurred.

Disturbing a patient may cause the end of a broken bone to penetrate through muscles and skin, to cut blood vessels, and to complicate what would otherwise be a relatively simple injury. The first rule in a severe injury therefore is: DO NOT DISTURB. The patient should be well protected from chill by means of overcoats, blankets, etc. In this way body heat will be retained. Then permit him to rest until a physician or an ambulance can reach the spot. Under no circumstances, unless there is a hemorrhage, should an attempt be made to remove the clothing. For the purpose of transporting an injured individual a truck is of far greater value than even a luxurious limousine.

What has been said of course applies particularly to injuries of the head, the spine, the pelvis, or the legs. In the case of an injury to a hand or arm the patient can usually get about and so manage the damaged part that he can be moved without difficulty. Nevertheless every surgeon routinely sees persons brought to his office or carried into a drug store whose injuries have been increased in severity by well meaning spectators. The reason is that out-of-the-ordinary occurrences excite persons who are not trained to manage them.

What has been said is well illustrated by the case of a famous British surgeon, Percival Pott, who lived in the middle of the 18th century. Pott sustained a fracture of the ankle in a fall from a horse. Unfortunately the end of one of the broken bones was forced through the skin, making it a compound fracture. Pott knew that his life would not be worth a farthing were he to be picked up and moved quickly to an adjacent house. Despite the suffering he lay in the street until a rough litter could be built and men found to carry him to his home.

Before we knew about bacteria and, hence, aseptic surgery (clean surgery) operations were performed with the greatest hazard and individuals with compound fractures—those in which one of the bony fragments had penetrated the skin—died of blood poisoning. Today broken bones, even compound fractures, do not result in amputation.

We must recall that a blow or an injury sufficient to crush or break a bone can, in addition, tear blood vessels, muscles, and nerves. This again emphasizes the "let alone!" plan until expert help arrives. Even slight movements may increase damage to soft tissues and accelerate hemorrhage.

In any injury, even though it is comparatively slight, shock is of great concern. Just what shock is no one knows exactly, but the patient is pale, the blood pressure falls, the skin is clammy and cold. This is why heat should be applied to the patient's body as promptly as possible.

In any serious accident obtain a surgeon as quickly as possible. Do not disturb the patient, but make him as comfortable as circumstances permit, with adequate covering and protection. Stop immediate hemorrhage by pressure or a tight bandage. If a Boy Scout is available he will know how to apply a tourniquet or pressure. If the patient is pale and cold use heat if available or give hot coffee if it can be swallowed.

CITRUS FRUITS.

I. C. writes: What is the value of citrus fruits in the wintertime?

REPLY.

Citrus fruits—lemons, limes, oranges, grapefruit—increase the alkali reserve of the body and supply certain vitamins as well. They are a part of the normal food that every one should use. It is quite a common practice to use a large amount of orange juice at the beginning of a cold, and the effect is probably due in large measure to the alkali thus supplied.

ADAM'S APPLE.

A. R. writes: I am a girl 21 years old and my Adam's apple is very prominent. Is there anything that can be done about it?

REPLY.

The upper portion of the trachea contains the thyroid and the cricoid cartilages. Either of these may be pressing forward, or there may be some growth or deformity causing the unsightly appearance. Perhaps there is enlargement of the thyroid gland. As a rule the cricoid cartilage, which forms the Adam's apple in men is not prominent in women.

COLIC.

P. E. W. writes: Twenty years ago, after an attack of gallstone colic, I began drinking three pints of warm water before breakfast. I admit this cure is somewhat rough and not pleasant, but it does the work quickly and effectively.

REPLY.

Three pints of water before breakfast is a rather large order. In a person with a good heart and good arteries this amount of fluid will probably be taken care of safely. There is no question as to the value of water drinking in constipation, the relief of which helped your gall bladder to drain properly.

ANEMIA.

Mrs. H. K. writes: I, too, am a sufferer from pernicious anemia, and for more than four years have taken one pound of liver a day. We buy five pounds at a time, grind it through the meat grinder, add 2½ quarts of water, and let stand for six hours or so. Then we squeeze it through a cheesecloth bag [but not too hard], bring the juice to a boil, strain through a sieve, put in a little salt, and drink. It is easy to take. For economy's sake I put a little water on a second time, stir it a few times and again extract.

REPLY.

An excellent recipe for making liver extract.

EPILEPTICS.

L. J. B. writes: With one of the parents an epileptic are children very likely to develop the disease if they have attained the age of 19 without showing symptoms?

REPLY.

Children of epileptics inherit a "tendency." They may never show signs of the disease.

GARNISHMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is it possible to garnishee a man's income for payment of rent [he signed lease for one year] under the following conditions, and the procedure: He is a salesman working on a straight [2] commission basis with a $50 per week [3] drawing account. 4. He is not contributing anything to the support of his family. J. E. D.

1. In general, the creditor must first secure judgment against his debtor before proceeding by garnishment.
2. There is no reason why commissions should not be subject to garnishment, if garnishment process can be served upon the person owing the commissions while the moneys are still unpaid.
3. The drawing account would not be subject to garnishment.
4. It is not clear whether you mean that this is the debt upon which the garnishment would operate.

INHERITANCE TAX.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a married man living with my wife, and have three girls, ages 16, 18, and 21. None of them is working and my salary for 1934 was $1,800. A brother died and left me $2,400. He died in England. 1. Do I have to file an income tax and [2] how much is the rate on inheritance tax? J. W.

1. No, this money would not be taxable as income.
2. There would be no Illinois inheritance tax, since this gift would be within the exemption. The federal estate tax would depend on the size of the entire estate. The question whether a British tax would be deductible would depend in part on the size of the estate there and in part on the wording of the will.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CONTEST OF WILL.

Cicero, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The maker of a will has a daughter and brother in Europe. Neither is mentioned in the will. In the event of death [1] can they fight it? 2. If they are left one dollar each, can they fight it? Will was made by [3] an attorney and four witnesses signed it, but no seal was affixed. 4. Must there be a seal to make it legal? 5. No. 1 bequeaths property to No. 2, and in the event of death it is left to No. 3. Now, if No. 1 dies it goes to No. 2, and the will and testament of No. 1 has been carried out. Does No. 2 have to make a will and leave it to No. 3, or must No. 2 abide by the will of No. 1 in the event of death? Or can No. 2 make another will and leave the estate to No. 4? K. G.

1. Of course they can file a contest, but the bare facts stated would not be enough to make it successful.
2. This is legally unimportant under Illinois law.
3. He is in a better position to advise than we are.
4. No.
5. We cannot construe the instrument to advantage without having its wording before us.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Hamlet, the much discussed "Prince of Denmark" and hero of Shakespeare's great play, may never have lived. No one has established a definite date of his existence, and historians have found traces of evidence placing his period anywhere between 500 B. C. and 700 A. D., if he lived at all. Others say he is only a tradition. Shakespeare's play was based on the Danish story of "Amleth," which dates from the twelfth century. Shakespeare's memory must have brought this legend to his mind when in Scotland the murder of Darnley and the marriage of his widow, Mary Stuart, to Lord Bothwell furnished a counterpart for many portions of his "Hamlet." PACKAGE FOR B. BECKER.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., Feb. 7.—At the close of a fourteen hour day on my dairy farm I fall into an easy chair by the log fire and read Bob Becker's column. Bob certainly knows his cow peas and tractor oil no end. But when he turns crooner and hums "Hearts and Flowers" with the spot on the little farm lady, don't listen, girls; he's out of tune.

Bob, in his soil enthusiasm, would have the fems visualize the farm as a lotus land where cruel reality wears a kind and lovely face, where hardships are blurred to forgetfulness by sheer beauty, a dream fantasy, a place of fluid jewels.

A guy told me all that once and I married him, and he gave me the mortgage to the 160. Now I get up at 5 a. m., build a couple of fires, prepare breakfast, catch and dress the twins [dressing is the easier of the two setting-up exercises]. Then we eat breakfast, a nice little family group; the twins fresh and starched for school, and me in my golf tweeds [so what?] and the hired men in their inevitable blue denims, week's growths, and dung odors.

On with the day. I stack the dishes, dash to the milk house, check cut the load, catch the twins [again], hop the truck, drop the cherubs off at school, and proceed to peddle some 300 quarts of milk to a varied group of dispositions who did not marry farmers.

"Just the job for you," says the guy who gave me the mortgage, "you're so athletic and businesslike" . . . me who, given time, could go for Millay, down comforters, and Hawaiian breezes.

Now, girls, there is a brief résumé of a morning on the Liquid Jewel ranch. Never mind the p. m. I don't want to wear you down.

There are six more like it in a week. You know how many make a year. By the time you're 35 you'll think Helena Rubenstein is the jeweler's wife, Thornton Wilder, the Methodist minister, and "Wine from These Grapes" a new recipe issued by the county agent.

Try the Beckerized farm if you must; don't say I didn't warn you.

REQUEST FOR HISTORICAL DATA.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—During the civil war the Chicago Board of Trade sponsored and supported three regiments of infantry and two batteries, the 88th, 113th, and 72d Illinois Volunteer infantry, and Chicago Board of Trade battery A and 2d Chicago Board of Trade heavy battery. During the Spanish-American war the Board of Trade furnished a large number of telegraphers, who were scattered through the army in Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines.

An effort is being made to secure the war records of the units and men who served in them. Chicago Board of Trade post of the American Legion has reproduced the regimental colors of the civil war and Spanish-American war units, which will be officially presented to the post in the near future. Many records have been lost. It is understood that the Spanish-American veterans from the board organized the Gridley post, Spanish-American Veterans.

Any information with reference to the above units or men who served therein will be greatly appreciated and of much value in the development of their history.

THE TELEGRAPH COMPANIES WILL APPLAUD.

Albion, Mich., Feb. 13.—Father Coughlin's recent radio appeal to defeat the world court is said to have resulted in 70,000 telegrams to senators, and now Arthur Krock in the New York Times suggests that Democratic advisers are urging the President to use the "wire your senators" radio appeal when he needs support. Very well; let us all wire our senators; but what shall we say? Is not this a game the opposition can play? We suggest that another such hysterical radio appeal should be a signal for those opposed to "wire your senators" to vote contrariwise, so that 70,000 other telegrams in opposition will result. If senators are now merely rubber stamps for hysteria it is time for sound common sense to "wire your senators" to vote sanely. CARL A. ROSS.

MISS PERKINS' BATH.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—I just read that cameramen have been refused permission to photograph the private bath in the new offices of Secretary Perkins. Now in these days of depression, when so many families have no baths in their homes and when so many cannot afford to heat water to take a bath, I think it would be better to spend the money to install some public baths so that some children and their parents could enjoy taking hot baths and improve their health. Surely Miss Perkins must have a private bath in her home. M. TURK.

DAICHES' WIDOW ON STAND TODAY IN MURDER TRIAL

State to Call Hoodlums in Weitzman Case.

Mrs. Belle T. Daiches, widow of Eli Daiches, advertising agency executive who was slain last March 3, will be the first witness this morning when the trial of Irving Weitzman, charged with the murder of her husband, is resumed. A jury qualified to inflict the death penalty was completed Friday in the Criminal court of Judge Harry B. Miller, at which time the trial was adjourned until today.

Judge Miller spent the week-end examining the law on three points raised by defense attorneys in an attempt to bar certain evidence which the state expects to make the basis of its case against Weitzman. Judge Miller will rule on these issues before opening statements and taking of testimony begin.

Nurse and Chauffeur to Testify.

Following Mrs. Daiches on the stand Miss Lucille Osborn, a nurse who attended Daiches during an illness preceding his murder, is expected to testify. Other witnesses will be Charles Bowman, Daiches' colored chauffeur, who was driving the car when the advertising executive was shot to death in the outer drive a short distance from his apartment in the Sherry hotel, 1725 East 53d street, and policemen who investigated the slaying.

Arthur Emblem, 44 years old, Gary hoodlum, named in the Daiches murder conspiracy indictment, who confessed that he was the man who assaulted Daiches and beat him severely in his office 14 months before the murder, will then be called, according to the announced plan of Assistant State's Attorneys Emmett Moynihan and John Boyle. Emblem also confessed that he was hired to carry out the murder of Daiches but fell down on the job and the murder assignment was given to others.

Lay Conspiracy to Weitzman.

The state charges that Daiches was murdered in a conspiracy instigated by Irving Weitzman. The defendant's brother, Louis A. Weitzman of New York, is head of the Bowers Advertising agency once headed by Daiches, which was the beneficiary of $300,000 carried on Daiches' life.

Walter Murphy, alias James Murphy, named in the murder indictment with Irving Weitzman and Jack London, fugitive gambling house guard, has confessed that he and London were hired by Weitzman, and after being paid $16,000 and being promised $9,000 more, sublet the "murder contract" to Jerry Pilot, a hoodlum who Murphy said was the actual murderer. Pilot since has been slain.

It was disclosed yesterday that Weitzman is co-defendant with several other persons in a $20,000 suit for false arrest brought by Lawrence C. Zimmer, who charges that at Weitzman's instigation police detained Zimmer on Feb. 1, 1931, on a charge of robbery.

"KISSING BANDIT" IS TAKEN TO JAIL BY U. S. AGENTS

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 17.—(AP)—An attractive and pretty blonde, who won the sobriquet of the "kissing bandit," whose criminal career includes two prison escapes and the alleged "money changer" in the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, was "smuggled" into this city by department of justice agents.

Mrs. Edna Murray, 35 year old sweetheart of the fugitive Volney Davis, who knocked down a federal agent while drinking beer after a forced airplane landing at Yorkville, Ill., and escaped, and Jesse Doyle, captured when his car was mired after fleeing a trap ten days ago, were lodged in the Ramsey county jail shortly after daybreak.

They were named recently by a federal grand jury in Jacksonville in seven indictments charging them with hiding and conspiring with four men defendants to hide Karpis.

31 FLEE PRISON; 1 DEAD, 8 SHOT; 13 ARE CAUGHT

Woman Is Warden; Guard Slain in Battle.

formatory, acting as cook for the guards. She is known as "mother" to most of the inmates, a number of whom served on details assigned to help in her kitchen. The couple had no children.

The son of the warden conducted an inquest.

"We haven't found out who fired the fatal shot," Waters said. "We'll know more about it as soon as more of the boys are captured. One of them fired the fatal shot, we believe."

The gun with which Jones was killed was snatched from a rack beside the front door guard.

Inquiry Is Planned.

L. M. Nichols, chairman of the state board of affairs which recently investigated the reformatory after charges of cruelty had been presented to Gov. E. W. Marland, said he probably will return here from Oklahoma City next week to inquire into the escape.

The board's first report points out the danger of a break that existed with a guard at one of the main towers being equipped with only one cartridge and one gas shell, Nichols said.

He declined to reveal anything else in the report, and said it will be filed with Marland next week.

Don Wilbanks of Holdenville, chairman of a senate committee appointed two weeks ago to make a separate inquiry, said the committee will hurry its trip.

Murder charges, Waters said, will be filed against the assailant in the event of his capture and identification.

Doctor Son Aids Her.

Mrs. Waters' first thought after the break was for the wounded fugitives. Another of her sons, Dr. C. B. Waters, an interne at St. Anthony hospital in Oklahoma City, was visiting here today. She called him to attend the eight wounded boys.

Henry Hildenburg, a Stephens county prisoner held for safekeeping in the reformatory, gave assistance to the guards. He was forced outside in the break, but returned immediately, secured a hammer and chisel, and liberated the officers who had been locked in a cell.

Leslie Long of Altus, serving five years for robbery with firearms, was in the visitors' room with his wife and sister-in-law when the mob entered. Long and the two women were among the twenty persons forced outside as shields. He returned voluntarily.

Visitors Are Menaced.

"We all went out toward the front tower," Long said. "They herded us out there to keep the guards from shooting at them. After they broke up I went over and gave up. There were about 20 visitors, most of them women and children."

Vernon Taliaferro of Carter was visiting with guards at their barracks. They deputized him and he captured one of the fugitives.

"I was at the officers' barracks," Taliaferro said. "They gave me a rifle and asked me to help hunt for the prisoners. I ran into one as I drove down a road. I stopped my car and chased him into a field. I made him throw up his hands and took him to the car and back to the reformatory. I had no trouble with him."

Three Escape County Jail.

Vandalia, Ill., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Overpowering Jailor John Forbes and locking him in a cell, three prisoners escaped from the Fayette county jail here today.

The prisoners, Edward Higgins, 34, Decatur and Centralia; Montell Payne, 19, and Elmer Mariner, 24, both of Peoria, entered the jail corridor, officers said, by sawing two iron bars of the cell block in which they were locked.

Higgins, officers said, feigned illness and the jailor unlocked the door into the corridor. Higgins held the jailor and threatened him with a knife, he said, and Payne confronted him with an iron bar. The men took Forbes' keys, opened the outer jail door and fled in a motor car owned by the county.

The three men were brought here last week from the state prison farm to face arraignment tomorrow on charges of escaping from the farm.

Boy, 5, Burned with Poker; Mother to Get Sanity Test

Ironton, O., Feb. 17.—A mother was in jail tonight, accused of beating her 5 year old son and applying a hot poker to his feet because he "talked too much." The woman, Mrs. Emma Thompson, 30, will be given a lunacy hearing tomorrow, Sherif Bernard Monte said.

MRS. WATERS' 'BOYS' TURN ON HER, BUT SHE AIDS INJURED

Granite, Okla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—"Mother" Waters' "boys" turned on her today. Yet she nursed the wounds of those who were injured in an escape attempt.

The desire for freedom sent 31 prisoners on a bullet-punctuated dash from the Granite state reformatory, which is headed by a woman who brought "mothering" methods to the institution.

Mrs. George A. Waters was the mother of eight children when she found herself placed at the head of the prison in 1926. She succeeded her husband after he died unexpectedly.

She immediately established a rule that hats be removed in a woman's presence by prisoner and civilian alike.

All lewd pictures and suggestive inscriptions were ordered removed from the walls.

Paper-backed novels were destroyed.

"I find that the normal-minded boy will respond quickly to a motherly talk," she says.

"In the institution of my vision, the employés will be more teachers than guards. Classify these boys mentally and we can throw the guns away."

FEDERAL QUIZ MAY BE ASKED AT MENA COLLEGE

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Congress soon may hear of the alleged un-American teachings and activities of Commonwealth college, a labor school, at Mena.

A member of the joint legislative committee, which visited the college yesterday, said tonight he would ask a transcript of the proceedings be sent to the "proper congressional authorities."

The committeeman, who asked his name be not divulged ahead of the committee's report, said information was obtained "of such a nature that the American people ought to know of it." He said he expected to offer a memorial to accompany the transcript to congress.

One member of the committee said he had "read a lot about soviet Russia, but I learned just as much at Mena about it as I ever did from books."

Transferring its hearing from the site of the labor college at Mena to Little Rock, the committee tomorrow will hear ten witnesses from eastern Arkansas who are expected to testify cocerning the activities of Lucien Koch, Commonwealth director. He recently was arrested, tried and acquitted on a charge of barratry growing out of his speeches in behalf of protesting sharecroppers in that area.

"FATHER KILLED MOTHER," CHILD SAYS TO POLICE

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Three frightened little girls hurried into a Mineola police station today to tell a story of murder.

"Father just killed mother," said Arminda Fernandes, 7. Her clothing was spotted with her mother's blood.

The slaying, she said, followed several days' row between Armando Fernandes, and his wife, Mary.

Taking Arminda with them, police returned to the home. Fernandes lay dying on the sidewalk. He had plunged from the roof of the building. Mrs. Fernandes, killed with a meat cleaver, lay in the kitchen.

There are seven Fernandes childern. Besides Arminda, Palmela, 6, and Lavinia, 2, saw the slaying.

TRANSFUSION IS GIVEN TO LION; PET RECOVERING

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Pal, a 400 pound, two year old African lion, was improving tonight after blood transfusions to save his life from a stomach upset which doctors said was caused by improper food supplied by overindulgent human admirers.

The transfusions were supervised by W. A. Jacquiss, specialist in wild animal ailments, who had to take several blood specimens of lions before he found the right type for Pal.

Pal was born here in captivity and reared as a pet in the home of a Beverly Hills resident.

ROB DENTIST'S OFFICE.

Burglars entered the office of Dr. Thomas W. Humble, a dentist, at 7452 Cottage Grove avenue, some time Saturday night, and stole a quantity of dental supplies, a radio, a shotgun, and two gallons of grain alcohol, he reported yesterday to the Grand Crossing police.

WOMAN KILLS 2, SHOOTS 2 MORE, ESCAPES POSSE

Brother and Sister Slain; Father, Boy Wounded.

Leroy, Ill., Feb. 17.—(AP)—A 9 year old boy, staggering from a bullet wound in the back, ran a half mile to knock at a neighbor's door today with word that his mother and uncle had been killed and his grandfather desperately wounded.

The boy's aunt, Miss Ethel Howard, 34, broken by illness and worry, had shot down her entire family and then disappeared into the country.

"Can I stay awhile?" faltered young Edmond Campbell as he reached the Gilbert Turner home four blocks from the scene of tragedy.

Flood House with Gas.

Police were sent to the home on the outskirts of Leroy, a little central Illinois town. All was quiet. The officers surrounded the place, fearing Miss Howard, still armed, had barricaded herself and was ready to shoot it out. They flooded the house with tear gas.

Two hours later, at noon, the officers burst in to find James I. Howard, 54, and Mrs. Maybelle Campbell, 44, brother and sister of the slayer, dead of pistol bullet wounds. Charles W. Howard, their 78 year old father, critically wounded in the neck, had already crept to the porch and summoned a brother, two blocks distant, by his cries.

Believe Slayer Is Dead.

Miss Howard, meanwhile, had tossed her smoking weapon into a shed and run madly, coatless, down a nearby railroad track. Posses of townspeople, convinced the woman was already dead of illness, exposure, or by her own hand, scoured the countryside throughout the day without finding a trace of her.

The elder Howard and his grandson, at a Normal, Ill., hospital, said Miss Howard had suddenly gone berserk about 10 a. m. After falling to the floor of the living room the young woman suddenly sprang to her feet, grabbed the pistol—she was an expert target shot—and shot down her father.

Then she ran to the kitchen door, sent one fatal bullet into Maybelle's body, turned back to the living room to kill her brother James, then dashed from the house in a mad chase after the 9 year old boy.

Edmond, frightened, raced for the barn and tried to scramble up the ladder to the haymow.

The weapon blazed and Edmond tumbled to the floor. A passing neighbor saw Miss Howard run into the barn, but was unaware of the tragedy being enacted.

Miss Ranney to Be Bride of G. Donnelley

Engagement Is Announced by Parents at Tea.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO of Chicago's most distinguished families are linked this morning with the announcement Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ranney are making of the engagement of their daughter Dorothy to Gaylord Donnelley, son of Thomas E. Donnelley.

This interesting news was revealed to the most intimate friends of the two families yesterday afternoon at a tea at the Ranney home at 1260 Astor street.

Slim and dark, with an abundance of charm and poise, Miss Ranney has been considered one of the prettiest and most popular young women in society since she made her debut at a tea and ball a half dozen years ago. With these distinctions, she has been in demand each fall as a model for the charity fashion show sponsored by the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital, of which her mother is an active member.

Miss Ranney's brother, George A. Ranney Jr., is a graduate of Yale and now a medical student. Her sub-debutante sister, Cornelia, is studying in the cast.

Mr. Donnelley prepared at the Lake Forest academy and Hotchkiss for Yale university, where he was awarded the New York Yale club prize for excellence in scholarship in his freshman year. He later studied in England.

Mr. Donnelley is a grandson of the late Richard R. Donnelley, founder of the printing firm that bears the family name. He has a sister, Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr. [Clarissa Donnelley], and a brother, Elliott Donnelley.

French Envoy Here for Dinner Tonight.

By far the most elegant and formal event on today's calendar is the dinner the France-America society is giving this evening at the Casino for Andre Lefevre de Laboulaye, French ambassador in Washington. Every available place has been spoken for, so that a large as well as distinguished group will crowd the silver and green dining room for the dinner beginning at 7 o'clock.

Orville J. Taylor, as the president of the France-America society, is to be the toastmaster. Others at the speakers' table will include the French consul general, Rene Weiller; Charles G. Dawes, Sewell Avery, Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, Frank G. Logan, Charles S. Dewey, Ira Nelson Morris, Roy D. Keehn, Robert Hall McCormick, Edward H. Bennett, and the Rev. Alphonse Pelletier, rector of the Notre Dame French Catholic church, who will give the invocation.

In addition to an address by the ambassador and a few remarks by Mr. Taylor the only other speech will be by Mr. Dawes.

Mme. de Laboulaye Guest of Mrs. Taylor.

Mme. de Laboulaye, who is coming from Washington with her husband, will be a guest this evening at the table of Mrs. Taylor. Another out of town guest at this table will be Mrs. Elizabeth N. Lewis, who arrives this afternoon for a two day stay en route to California. Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy will entertain at tea this afternoon for Mrs. Lewis.

At the other tables in the dining room some of the hosts and hostesses will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Cabell, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mr. and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Milton J. Foreman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Col. and Mrs. Thomas R. Gowenlock, Robert Hall McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, and Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh.

Ambassador and Mme. de Laboulaye are due to arrive this morning at 9 o'clock and there will be an official delegation at the La Salle street station to greet them. Society Folk to Attend Marion Kerby Recital.

Another socially interesting audience will gather in the foyer of Orchestra hall this evening for a program of Negro exaltations and southern mountain songs by Marion Kerby. Although this will be Miss Kerby's first public song recital in Chicago, she has given several programs in various prominent homes before enthusiastic and admiring groups. A recent series of recitals in Palm Beach was acclaimed by critics as a distinct success.

For several years Miss Kerby has been recognized as a remarkable character actress. The material she will use tonight has been arranged by Hamilton Forrest and is her own, never having been presented on the concert platform.

After the recital tonight Mrs. Frederic W. Upham is entertaining for Miss Kerby and Miss Janet Spencer at a supper party at the Cliff Dwellers. While in Chicago Miss Kerby is the house guest of Mrs. Upham. Others who will be at the recital include Mr. and Mrs. Max Adler, Mr. and Mrs. Rudyard Boulton, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bricken, Mr. and Mrs.

WALTER FRAZIER'S latest story concerns the fellow who dressed so hastily that he put his trousers on wrong side before. Unaware of this peculiarity in his attire he dashed out of the room, headed for the stairs, and fell down the whole flight. His wife hastened to his assistance.

DEVOTION tale. Last Friday one of the bass tuba players in the Chicago Business Men's orchestra was in South Bend on business. An orchestra rehersal in the Lytton building was scheduled for that evening, so he drove back through ninety miles of snow and sleet in order to be there. He blew one note on the tuba at rehersal at the required moment, then went out, got in his car, and motored back to South Bend again.

WHEN it rained a few days ago a police officer in a western suburb observed a woman coming out of a store with her skirts pulled up literally over her head, exposing a length of limb.

"Say, lady, you'll get your legs wet doing that," he cautioned.

"That's all right," she retorted, "they're forty-two years old, but my hat's new."

PROBABLY the coziest sight of the week was the elderly gentleman, gray of hair and kindly of face, who was industriously shelling peas as he traveled south on a Clark street car. His fellow passengers looked on with interest, according to Lawrence L. Lautz, who sends in the item.

We have scouts everywhere. Another one reports the Western Union messenger boy pedaling his bicycle rapidly up Bellevue place, carrying accommodatingly on his handle bars a Postal Telegraph boy.

The ceremony will be followed by a reception. Both Miss Boone and Mr. Hamberg are graduates of the University of Chicago, where she was a Quadrangler and he a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Shaindel Kalish Plays Different Role in 'Sixteen'

Fits Part Well; Twitter Is Unfortunate.

"SIXTEEN."

A play by Aimee and Philip Stuart, with Shaindel Kalish in the leading role, staged by Charles K. Freeman; premiere in Blackstone theater, Feb. 17, 1935.

THE CAST.

Mrs. McNeil.....Judith Lowry
Baba Lawrence.....Harriet Noble Cain
Irene Lawrence.....Shaindel Kalish
Mrs. Queen.....Constance Pelissier
Jennifer Lawrence.....Regina Wallace
Sir John Corbett, K. C.....Noel Tearle
Dr. Sloane.....Wallace Widdecombe

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Shaindel Kalish makes her first appearance since her signal success in "Girls in Uniform" in a play carefully but gently diagrammed out of the text books of Freudian psychology. It is called "Sixteen," after the age of its heroine, and it deals with a mild case of "mother fixation" in a simple-hearted London home.

The high praise that was given to Miss Kalish a year ago is likely to send audiences to the Blackstone theater expecting fireworks. If I remember correctly one reviewer of "Girls in Uniform" was indiscreet enough to mention this promising young actress in terms of Sarah Bernhardt, and another felt in duty bound to refer to Maude Adams. Such indiscriminate ecstasies often bring an unfortunate reaction, particularly if their recipient is a home-town girl.

It happens that "Sixteen" gives Miss Kalish a rôle of repressed emotions which prevents her from dazzling or surprising the natives. She acts a sensitive, fine-spirited English school girl in a trying period of adolescence, suddenly subjected to the shock of learning that her mother, practically over night, has decided to present her with a stepfather. [Expert medical opinion from the family physician, based on the theories of old Dr. Freud, explains why she is taking it so hard.]

In the last scene of the last act, however, she breaks into an emotional storm which carries her almost into suicide. Here are the fireworks of acting that were expected of the debutante star, and she touches them off with decided skill. In the rest of the play, Miss Kalish attends to the task of portraying the character as supplied by the authors in a workmanlike way, with touches of shy charm and frank girlish spirit. I think that she is wrong in using a slightly pinched juvenile twitter instead of her natural voice; but otherwise she is exactly the girl about whom the play was written.

The play is a leisurely, chatty study of middle-class family life in London, dealing with mother, who works in a dressmaking shop; her two girls, one of them a 12 year old comic; grandma, who has aches and pains and wisdom; the family retainer of broad cockney accent; the family physician, who can spot a mother fixation at a glance in spite of his age; and the impetuous bridegroom [a knight and king's counselor], who meets mamma when she is vacationing in Paris and rushes her off her feet. The latter is, in fact, the marryingest fellow who ever got mixed up with a Freudian play.

Charles K. Freeman has staged "Sixteen" gracefully and given it a competent cast, with Regina Wallace as the matron of Miss Kalish's fixation and Noel Tearle as the impetuous middle-aged wooer. Curiously enough, a child novice runs off with the honors of the performance so far as humor is concerned. She is Harriet Noble Cain, daughter of the choral director, and she comes out of the sophomore class at Senn High school to score a hit at her debut.

Sleeves Tell Fashion Story of the Season

BY RHEA SEEGER.

All the best fashion tricks are up the sleeves this spring. With a startling lavishness, sleeves are cut, shirred, and draped so that yards of material are consumed. The only clothes that escape this bigger sleeve movement are the tailored suits.

Coats, especially of the afternoon type, have generously cut sleeves cleverly inserted into shoulder seams. Wide, loose sleeves from shoulder to wrist have been worn for weeks now, so that these more voluminous affairs will not shock.

Silk crêpe afternoon dresses are really brilliant when these huge bell-like caverns of cloth cover the arm. Everything goes, from the ample gathered peasant sleeves, puckered into cuffs, to the deftly draped intricately twisted varieties that end smoothly but narrowly just above the wrist.

Long flying panels descending from the shoulders double for sleeves and are proper high fashion draperies especially adapted for dinner dresses and hostess gowns. The dark colors can be worn for dining and dancing.

Dresses themselves are slim sheaths that fit snugly with perhaps a discreet slit or two in the skirt and a molded bodice effect.

Martin Johnsons Take Motion Picture Audiences on Airplane Tour of Africa

"BABOONA."

Presented by Fox.
At the Garrick Theater.
Featuring Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

This time the Martin Johnsons do Africa in airplane. Which fact provides the only unusual aspect of "Baboona."

In a pair of Sikorsky amphibions, they hie them forth to see how the country which they have such a yen for exploring appears when one is up, looking down. Mrs. Johnson's plane is painted like a zebra. Mr. Johnson's is more conservative. Both machines are accepted with equanimity by two and four footed denizens of the land, upon the occasions when the explorers land to get closeups of lions, wild beasts, and the various other fauna and flora that the movies have made familiar to the world at large.

There are several interesting shots. One is of lions that congregated near the plane of Mrs. Johnson, and that loll and wander unconcernedly for the most part. Another, shows half a dozen of the beasts dining savagely on a kill. Then—there's a view of flamingoes—thousands of them!—that takes your breath. Too bad that shot couldn't have been shown in color.

As for the baboons—they don't show up 'till the last reel or so, and I can't say that I saw anything particularly startling in the sequences depicting them. One scene, revealing hundreds of them crossing a stream, seemed strangely familiar. Maybe I haven't seen it before—but if I haven't—I THINK I have.

The picture is too lengthy by far. Cut in half it would still have been long enough.

See you tomorrow.

Women from 10 States Coming to Conference

Wide Variety of Subjects to Be Discussed.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

One week from tomorrow another chapter will be added in the annals of women's organization in this area, as THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S 1935 Conference on Current Problems opens at the Palmer house. Representatives from at least ten states are scheduled to participate in this informative, discussional gathering, lasting two days, and based on the mounting interest of women in the economic phases of national and international affairs.

Numerous groups of women have held individual meetings to discuss similar matters at various times. But for the scope of the subjects included, for the importance and authority of the speakers, for the size of the audience, and the variety of clubs it will draw, only the forerunner of the impending event—the Conference of 1934—offers comparison.

Next week's assembly will provide vivid contrast with the old days and the old ideas of feminine clubs, when it wasn't considered quite genteel to deviate from the routine of Browning's poems or the latest embroidery stitch.

Pressure of circumstances during the years since 1929 has concentrated the attention of women, many observers agree, on financial, social, and other problems they had not investigated previously to any extent.

Two of the listed addresses, in particular, represent a response to requests from various organizations that they be covered.

One is the contribution of Prof. Coleman R. Griffith of the University of Illinois, director of the bureau of institutional research at Champaign, who will talk on "The Dollar Sign in Education." Statistics on the cost to an institution of the training it gives a student, and to the student during his school term have been gathered during a two year survey of the Illinois and other universities and will be cited by Prof. Griffith.

Another is the analysis of "Personnel in Public Service in Illinois," by Henry P. Chandler, Chicago attorney and president of the Chicago Civil Service association. His remarks will sketch the present status of the merit system in civil service, and, although nominally local, will refer as well to other states.

Many suggestions as to both subjects and speakers have been received from feminine organizations during the building of the program and have been followed wherever possible.

Morning, afternoon, and evening sessions will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 26, and a morning and an afternoon session on Wednesday. That evening a tour of inspection of Tribune Tower and a film preview at the Chicago Womans' club theater will culminate the event.

Keep Away from Water

By Alice Campbell.

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, young American living in London, accepts the hazardous though thrilling post as traveling companion to Miss Christine Venables, prim, kindly, and wealthy, who has been receiving letters that cannot be traced, threatening her life. Miss Venables spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in southern France. Her nephew, Harry, is to join her there soon. With Miss Venables in London is her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Venables, Harry's stepmother. She is in poor health and Miss Venables has Dr. Gilcrest, her Ste. Brigitte physician who is visiting in London, prescribe for her. Dr. Gilcrest treats Sarah with cool aloofness, though she and Harry immediately become friends. That night Mrs. Venables becomes violently ill.

INSTALMENT VII.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

As they made their way down to the lower floor Sarah glanced warily about, but the corridors were empty, every door closed. Their guide fitted his key into the lock of a door and the three of them entered a bedroom where, under the glare of electric light, they beheld a pitiable spectacle. Amidst the tumbled disorder of quilt and sheets the resident of Huddersfield quivered, far gone in the agony of an attack.

"Gracie! What's wrong with you? Where is the pain?"

Bending over her, Miss Venables felt for her pulse, but as the sole response to her question took the form of a gasping groan she transferred her look of frightened inquiry to the attendant.

"Was she like this when you found her?" she demanded.

"Well—she managed to ring, miss, and she could talk, though it sounded a bit thick. Shall I go now for the doctor?"

"As fast as you can. . . . This looks serious."

A fresh spasm seized the victim. She writhed helplessly, and her head fell back exhausted. Sarah, who had never once looked upon mortal affliction, yet felt with overwhelming certainty that here was a woman near her end. More, she knew that her employer shared her conviction.

Endless minutes, in reality not more than five, elapsed, and then, to their desperate relief, a hastily clad figure joined them. The resident physician took a swift survey of the sufferer, swept aside the covers, and without a word began systematically prodding the distended body with a firm, exploring touch. Now and again the patient winced, though for the main part she bore his touch with indifference. Presently he straightened up and, singling out Miss Venables, put a low-voiced question.

"Do you consider it possible for her to have taken anything—poisonous?"

"I hate to suggest this, but do you consider it possible for her to have taken anything? You know. Anything—well, poisonous."

Miss Venables recoiled in horrified dissent.

"That? O, never! My sister-in-law is the last person to . . . She's had other attacks, you know, less severe, of course. No bad ones for some time, I believe, though——"

"H'm! Well, there's only one course open to us. We must rush her as quickly as possible on to an operating table. I can give her morphia, but it won't help now. Her condition may be very grave, and we must be thankful Charing Cross hospital is practically at our door. I will ring up while you ladies, if you'd like to come along with us, get on some clothing."

Miss Venables gave a troubled glance at Sarah, who nodded, and together they were hurrying away when Sarah saw the doctor pick up a small phial of capsules and having examined the label extend his scrutiny to a chemist's envelope in which Dr. Gilcrest's prescription was contained.

What followed was like some cold and awful dream. Sarah retained afterwards a confused impression of long bare corridors, white-coated men, and uniformed nurses gliding to and fro, the smell of ether, the ticking of a clock, and of herself and her anxious companion sitting bolt upright together, waiting for news.

The hotel doctor came into the waiting room shaking a dubious head. It was impossible, he declared, to determine anything till the patient was opened up.

"May be an appendix, gall stone—O, a number of things! Pity we don't know her complete history." He paused, ruminating. "She's been taking some capsules," he remarked suddenly. "Do you happen to know if this Dr. Gilcrest is a London man?"

Miss Venables explained the circumstances, adding Dr. Gilcrest's urgent advice about seeing a specialist. The young physician nodded a little absently.

"I was thinking he might be the Gilcrest I used to be with at Bart's. Is his name Brian by chance? It is? H'm. I fancied so. He left here quite suddenly, didn't he, about three years ago?"

"It was just three years ago he took over a rundown practice in the south of France. He's highly thought of there amongst both the English colony and the natives."

The doctor said no more and presently he left them.

"I was thinking," mused the spinster, "that perhaps I ought to telephone my nephew; but after all, why disturb his rest when there's nothing he can do? It's not as though Gracie, poor woman, meant a great deal to him. I'm afraid she's to blame for that."

Sarah asked if Mrs. Venables had any children of her own.

"None. Gracie was my brother's housekeeper," she explained, conscientiously discreet. "A most worthy woman in many respects, but with a jealous disposition and an unfortunate tendency to fancy slights where none are intended."

"From what you say I don't suppose your nephew spends much time in Huddersfield," remarked Sarah, making conversation.

"He has not been there for several years until this past Christmas, when, in order to be with me, he most unselfishly ran up for a few days. No, his work is here, and he has his own cozy little flat in the St. James district.

At this moment a trio composed of the house surgeon, a night sister, and the hotel physician entered with grave faces to inform them that Mrs. Venables had died under the anaesthetic. Trembling and pale, the spinster rose to her feet, but Sarah, putting out a hand to steady her, perceived that the shock had rendered her surprisingly calm.

"Dead! Might there have been a chance if she'd been brought here sooner?" she faltered.

"I hardly imagine so," answered the surgeon gently. "Though, to be candid, we don't yet know the precise cause of her attack. It was her heart that gave way, in view of which we shall be obliged to perform a postmortem."

"A postmortem?" echoed Miss Venables, looking horrified. "But surely you can't suppose——"

The doctor hesitated, then went on reassuringly. "A purely formal affair, you know, just to enable us to sign a death certificate. It's a wise precaution, but there's no need to distress yourself over it."

"No, I see what you mean—and anyhow it can't be helped."

Miss Venables began putting on her fur coat. She could do nothing by remaining here, so, escorted by the young physician, she and Sarah walked slowly out into the silent Strand and round the corner to their hotel.

Whiskies and sodas, fetched by the doctor, warmed and revived them. It was now three o'clock, but Miss Venables astonished her companion by the alert energy with which she was already coping with every practical detail involved by her sister-in-law's death, from the postponement of her own journey south to the various telegrams to be sent to Huddersfield.

. . . . . .

The Riviera express roared through the night. Above the noise of it Miss Venables' voice was barely audible, but the tension in the tones whipped to life Sarah's lulled anxiety.

"Did you say you wanted me to see who is standing in the corridor?" repeated the girl, puzzled by the request.

"Just tell me what the man is like, that is all."

Sliding back the door of the wagon-lit compartment, Sarah took a careless survey of the short, bulky figure now blocking the window alongside and puffing cigar smoke into the spark filled darkness. Aware of her scrutiny, the fellow traveler turned, removed the cigar, and favored her with a bold, personal stare. She closed the door quietly and resumed her seat.

"O, it's that swarthy, Turkish-looking man who's got the compartment next ours," she explained.

Widen Voting for Year's Best Movie Acting

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Voting for the best actor and actress of the year, an honor awarded as result of balloting conducted by the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Science, was widened today so that members of the industry may write in names of their favorites, instead of being restricted to nominations already formally announced by the academy.

The nominations as announced included three actors, Clark Gable, Bill Powell, and Frank Morgan, and under the new arrangement it is likely that many members of the industry who bear the right to vote will write in the name of George Arliss. Similarly it is expected that names of Bette Davis, Shirley Temple, and Myrna Loy may be written in on the ballot, which will formally bear the names of Claudette Colbert, Norma Shearer, and Grace Moore.

Miss Shearer, Powell, and several others who were nominated for the annual awards, including Frank Capra, director of "Broadway Bill," and Robert Riskin and Norma Krasna, scenario writers, asked that the lists in which they already were represented be opened for additional write-ins.

If Warner studio doesn't stop giving Jimmy Cagney smart guy roles in which he wins the girl while the tongue-tied but apparently more sterling rival suitor is quit by the leading lady, it is going to hurt Cagney with the fans around the country. This studio has been getting plenty kicks that the wrong guy won the girl in "Devil Dogs of the Air," second time Cagney and Pat O'Brien rivaled each other in much the same kind of parts in much the same kind of plot in recent navy stories.

The first story was "Here Comes the Navy," and O'Brien played the girl's brother, not her suitor, but the audience found it difficult to detach its sentimental sympathy from O'Brien in favor of Cagney. "Devil Dogs of the Air," in which both wooed the same girl, saw this situation still more marked. Cagney is aware of it and now there is some hitch about what he does next for Warner's. Jimmy was supposed to be in "Backfire," a story of Boulder dam, but that's off.

By the way, the last action shots of the ill-fated navy dirigible Macon appear in "Devil Dogs of the Air."

Martha Merrill, the Chicago girl who was promoted from the dance chorus to a contract as supporting actress at Warner studio, was started on her way by Dick Powell, who singled her out of a previous musical and recommended her to the studio front office as a good prospect. She recently has had bits in "Living on Velvet" and "Devil Dogs of the Air."

"MY COUGH DIDN'T LAST" —thanks to "MOIST-THROAT" METHOD!

"I coughed terribly," says Mr. John Wright, Columbus, O. "The first few spoonfuls of Pertussin brought relief. My cough didn't last long after that."

WHEN you catch cold, thousands of tiny moisture glands in your throat clog. Your throat dries. Infected mucus irritates. Tickling starts—then you cough. Pertussin "unclogs" those glands. It helps the throat glands to pour out their natural moisture. Sticky phlegm loosens—Relief. Get a bottle and start to use it now!

BY MARY MEADE.

Dietary standards for children are a subject frequently and fervently treated by nutritionists and discussed with animation at every social get-together of young mothers. Therefore, assuming that you're on your toes concerning the daily egg and quart of milk, the serving of meat and fruit and vegetables, let's leave all that behind and venture into the realm of how to cook and serve this daily bill of fare.

Cooking for children isn't quite the same as cooking for grown-ups. You probably have realized that when it came to meal planning, and you no doubt are well up on the lore of how to plan meals to suit your tastes and papa's and still suitable, with a few adaptations, for the youngsters. That part—saving out small vegetable sticks from your more sophisticated salad, and baking little ramekins of filling from your pies for the children's desserts—you've learned to take for granted.

However, in the actual cooking perhaps these adaptations have been ignored. Take seasoning, for instance. Through anxiety to help Bobby to adore his spinach mothers often go in for high seasonings and a liberal dousing of vinegar. Or those bland "good-for-you" custards are often given strong flavorings to help them slip down more easily. Nutritionists tell us that children actually prefer the mild, bland flavors and eat foods so prepared much more enthusiastically than the highly seasoned ones. Also, in increasing a child's range of foods it's much wiser to let him learn to like the natural flavors of new foods as they're presented, not the disguised ones. Natural flavor, then, and remember to use only about half as much salt in preparing the children's foods as appears in the original adult planned recipe, and no pepper or sharp flavored seasonings.

Making foods easy to scoop up in small spoons is another problem. Most vegetables, for instance, probably are managed most easily in small cubes, a half inch or so square. Properly cooked, firm but tender, and flaunting their original clear colors, they appear most attractive in this form on the child's plate. To be sure that these cubes are as full of nutrients as they are pretty, cook all but the strong flavored vegetables in a small quantity of water, and try to boil the water down so that none can be drained off after cooking.

Fat meat has neither appeal nor value for children, so trim the excess fat from their meat servings. These, too, should be in small pieces, easy to eat and chew. Bacon cooked for children should be crisp and dry and well drained.

There are certain food textures against which children rebel, probably because they are hard to chew or discouraging to the small swallower. Exceedingly dry or gummy foods fall in this class, along with the sticky and stringy textured foods.

A nice cold glass of milk may hold more appeal for the grown-up, but 'tis said that children prefer theirs at room temperature. At any rate it disappears faster at that temperature, which is a pretty good index.

Now for the actual serving of the foods. Small portions are the rule, with seconds to follow if necessary. Crowded, heaped plates of food look large indeed in small eyes, and the task of eating it all may seem insurmountable. Attractive and novel arrangements of these tempting portions, along with at least one accent of a pleasingly colored food, do a great deal more toward coaxing junior to eat than the honeyed blandishments of mother and father.

Complicated mixtures of foods are much less popular with children than those same foods served separately. Along that same line of reasoning it seems that children prefer even simple desserts, not too rich or complex, to the more ornate concoctions.

Children are wary of new foods. If an unfamiliar one is to make its debut on his dinner plate, let the serving be tiny, and don't attempt to introduce more than one new food at a time. As soon as the child becomes more accustomed to seeing that small bit of broccoli, or whatever it may be, on his plate, and he recognizes its taste as a tried-and-true friend, the size of the serving may be increased.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

A VERY FINE SQUEEZE AND VIENNA-COUP HAND.

I am indebted to one of the readers of these articles, Mr. Harry A. Dutton of San Francisco, for this most interesting hand. It was actually played and was not made up at my desk, as you might think. The eventual contract was seven hearts. South went down one, but the bid can be made against any defense. That is not to say that South is to be blamed for going down. It took me some time to work out the play, even with all four hands exposed before me; seeing only two of the four hands, the declarer had a far harder task. Nevertheless I think the situation which solves the problem would develop itself if one went ahead with the play in the only feasible manner—that of making the enemy discard incessantly. Even if the squeeze were not necessarily in the cards they might chuck the defense by errors in discarding.

The Bidding.

Mr. Dutton does not mention the bidding. I think it should be one spade by North, two hearts [I assume the enemy did not bid], three no trumps, an emphatic slam try showing at least one high heart honor, as you well know. Four hearts by South, four spades by North, who is sure the hand is safe at five hearts, and shows his spade length to inform South that this suit may provide discards of losers for him. Five hearts by South, reaffirming great length but nothing else, seven hearts by North, convinced now that no heart trick will be lost and expecting that a lone spade or two can be set up.

The Play.

The queen of spades is led. North wins, lead the two high trumps, then a high spade followed by a low one which he ruffs. He has discarded a diamond and a club. Now he can lead two or three trumps, and then get to dummy with the club ace and ruff another spade. Thereafter he continues trump leads, being careful to leave a spade in the dummy. At the eleventh trick, assuming that the opponents have discarded as skilfully as their cards permit, South is in the lead with the remaining cards as follows:

Declarer leads the last heart. West must hold the spade or dummy's eight spot will be good, with the diamond ace to bring it in. So West unguards the diamond. Thereupon North throws away the spade. East is similarly squeezed. He must either unguard the diamond or throw the club, making declarer's six spot good. They cannot escape this double, right and left squeeze.

Declarer's task is to count every card discarded in each of the three off suits, and to leave a spade in dummy to compel West also to retain one. Thank you, Mr. Dutton—send us some more. I do not want synthetic hands, but problem hands actually dealt and played are very welcome from my readers. I am eager to write a lot about play, now that these articles have nearly completed their presentation of the structure of the Sims system of contract bidding. My readers can help me a whole lot in this.

Manicures Help to Cure Child of Nail Biting

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A grandmother writes in endorsing emphatically the beauty parlor treatment we have so often recommended in the cure and prevention of nail-biting.

Of course for many habits of this type there may be psychological causes, but often the beginning of the habit of nailbiting may be traced to a purely physical cause. This grandmother cured herself as a young girl by the use of manicuring. When her daughter was little she checked the habit quickly in the same manner.

A broken nail, a little loose skin or a hang nail, dryness or roughness of the ends of the fingers—any kind of discomfort may start the habit, and once started, the biting increases the sensation which caused it, and so quickly becomes established.

When you see signs of it, don't begin to talk about it or scold or expect this kind of difficult selfcontrol. Instead, buy some simple manicuring utensils and put them in a little box as a personal possession of the child—or buy a manicure set if you want to, to make it more impressive, though it's not at all necessary.

Then begin giving the nails attention night and morning if possible. Make a pleasant, leisurely session of the evening one, using interest and praise to build up pride in the appearance of the hands.

Your child's nailbiting may be caused by something other than physical discomfort—but even if it is, these measures will be important in effecting a cure.

For fuller treatment of the causes and cure of nailbiting send for our leaflet, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelop.

Ina Claire to Attract Fashionable Audience.

The opening of Ina Claire's new play, "Ode to Liberty," will attract a fashionable audience to the Erlanger tonight, for the charming Miss Claire is a favorite here, and there are certain to be as many informal parties for her during her fortnight's Chicago engagement as she has time to attend.

Another stage star who is popular socially in Chicago and who will be here this week is Cornelia Otis Skinner, who opened last night at the Selwyn. She went to Bryn Mawr with some of our leading socialites and she always is entertained extensively when she is in Chicago.

The Abbey Theater Players are moving over to the Union League club, where they are going to present Lennox Robinson's "Drama at Inish" before approximately 1,000 club members and guests tonight only. A full stage has been built at one end of the large dining hall and the guests will linger over their demi-tasse to watch the production. After the play there is to be a reception for the players in the club's champagne lounge. Some of those who have taken tables are Mr. and Mrs. John McKinlay, Commander and Mrs. Henry T. Settle, Morton D. Hull, William E. Clow, and Frederick T. Haskell.

Josephine Burke to Wed Ralph Fournier Thursday.

Miss Josephine Burke, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Burke, will become the bride of Ralph Fournier, son of Mrs. Charles Fournier of Butte, Mont., at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The service will be read by the Rev. George Kearny in the chapel of the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle, with a reception following at the Blackstone hotel.

Miss Mildred Burke will attend her sister as maid of honor and Frank Grismer of Cleveland will be Mr. Fournier's best man. The ushers will be Lewis Evans of St. Paul and James Doyle Ryan. The bride's two other sisters and brothers-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James William Norton and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miskell, will come from Cleveland, and Miss Helen Miller will fly to Chicago from her home in East Orange, N. J. After a short wedding trip Mr. Fournier and his bride are to make their home at 5124 Kimbark avenue.

Of interest, especially on the north shore, is the announcement Mrs. Albert Homer Goodhue of Winnetka is making of the engagement of her daughter, Patricia, to Stuart Bevens Bradley, son of Alexander S. Bradley of Worcester, Mass. Miss Goodhue was graduated from the University of Wisconsin and is a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Mr. Bradley is a graduate of the University of Chicago and its law school. He is a member of Kappa Sigma and Phi Delta Phi fraternities.

Deborah Butler Wins Tennis Match in Florida.

When the judges at the recent Emerson House ball selected Miss Deborah Butler as the "perfect girl of 1935," they didn't know in at least one respect just how well placed their decision was. From Florida comes word that Miss Butler, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Peabody Butler and a debutante of the past season, won the tennis singles last Friday at the Bath club in Palm Beach with scores of 6-4, 6-4 against Sally Gardner of New York city, an accomplishment that might well be any modern debutante's ambition. Miss Butler is in Palm Beach visiting Miss Ethel Johnston, who is spending the latter part of the winter with her sister and brother-in-law, the Conway Olmsteds.

The Lake Shore League of Women Voters will hold a round table conference at 12:30 o'clock today at the Arts club.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Steinhart Jr. arrived in Chicago Saturday from Havana to visit Leon Mandel in his Astor street home. The senior Mr. and Mrs. Steinhart originally made their home in Chicago, but they moved to the Cuban capital just before the turn of the century. Mr. Steinhart, who served as one of the drafters of the Cuban constitution in 1898, is now in business in Havana and his son is associated with him. Mr. and Mrs. Steinhart Jr. brought with them Miss Mercedes Madrazo, a member of one of Havana's oldest Spanish families.

Social Prejudice Is Relic Unfit for Modern Life

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Kathleen's problem is a survival of the old days when the railroad track was the social dividing line, when whether one lived on the right side of the tracks or the wrong made all the difference in social rating. The snobbery still persists, in Kathleen's social group, at any rate. Her mother and dad have clamped down hard on Kathleen's association with a girl from the poorer part of her town.

Kathleen probably could bear the injustice did the girl not have a grand brother. His name Kathleen doesn't dare mention around her home. But it is he more than the girl who is causing Kathleen's heartaches.

Now this young man, Kathleen observes, is attending night school. His ambition is to be a lawyer, she tells. His school record is remarkably high. The boy has manners, Kathleen tells, that could be used to advantage by some of the boys in her set. Yes, she has sneaked out with his sister and their group several times, and she has to report that there's none of the freshness and drinking and free and easy ways of her own kind. Yet, they have a perfectly good time.

But the boy lives in a part of the town that is not recognized as an address fit for Kathleen's associates.

Doesn't it seem too stupid in the face of current events and the topsy-turviness of former fortunes and hoity-toity addresses, for parents to try to exercise the silly old social argument? With debs doing their darndest to get jobs as models and saleslades, and boys with so-called good addresses applying at filling stations for legitimate work? If a boy or girl with the ritzy address can come down to brass tacks with life, why can't the situation be reversed and the boy, perhaps a future governor, be extended a welcome from the other side?

WOMAN'S DRESS.

This pretty dress has a becomingly tailored rever neckline. If your taste runs to a more feminine effect, the cascading jabot collar, in the small sketch, falls softly in pleasing contrast to the straight, slim lines of the skirt. Plaits give ample freedom for walking. A navy blue and white printed silk crêpe made the original dress. Plain white crêpe was used for contrast. This is a good design for cottons and linens.

Business Men's Orchestra Gives Concert Under Dasch

BY EDWARD MOORE.

That association of ardent musical amateurs, the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, gave its annual concert at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, though with a number of changes over former appearances. For one thing it had a new conductor, George Dasch, a veteran and highly able director and musician. For another, it is a considerably larger organization than ever before.

In one group, the first violins, one was able to count twenty-three members. Thirteen double bass players ranged their portly instruments across the back of the stage. Other interesting statistics might be added, but it is enough to say that the orchestra numbers no fewer than 115 members, all of whom take music as an avocation and not as a profession. Over them all Mr. Dasch presided with firm beat and earnest manner, promoting fine effects of sonority and expression.

The principal number was played as a result of a present. Some time before the orchestra received an anonymous gift of the score of Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony, with a request appended that it be played this season. This was accordingly done, and the organization reaped new favor and applause thereby. Other numbers were Weber's "Freischuetz" Overture, Godard's Adagio Pathetique, and Glazounow's Concert Waltz in D.

The soloist was Margaret Farr, a brilliant and talented pianist, who scheduled the Saint-Saens Second Concerto as her number. For the Business Men's orchestra not only plays symphonic numbers. It accompanies soloists in an able manner as well, and this is perhaps a more difficult task.

While this concert was going on there were other musical events of note. The William Henry Smith singers, a Negro chorus whose director gives his name to the organization, appeared at Kimball hall. Some 28 in number, they were heard in a group of spirituals done with extraordinary fervor and at the same time with beautiful tone and fine dignity. Various members of the chorus sang solo parts effectively. Elsewhere on the program there were arrangements of African music, sacred music by Tschaikowsky and Roberts, and the "Miserere" scene from "Il Trovatore."

An attractive dance program, "An Urban Matinee," featuring Bentley Stone, Ruth Pryor, and several members of the Chicago Grand Opera ballet, was presented in the Urban room of the Congress hotel. A list of divertissements, character, and classical, was followed by "Chopiniana," all to cordial applause with special commendation for the fine dancing of Miss Pryor and Mr. Stone.

Dental Care in Early Childhood Basic in Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Parents would do more for their youngsters in the long run if they worried less about endowing them with trust funds and college careers, and gave said youngsters the proper dental care in youth. They'll get along, all right, if their teeth are good."

The above was not from a dentist, as you might suspect, but from an educator and psychologist.

"Give them good teeth and you can jolly well let the future rest with the boy or girl."

There are many grown up young women with faces practically deformed because there was no mother interest in the early days of the youngsters' dental needs. It's true that if you endow those children with two good rows of fine, sound teeth you've blessed them in a way that no other endowment will serve them so well.

Interested mothers, mothers intent on raising their girls to fight the world with woman's best fighting weapon, good looks, begin looking after the child's teeth the first minute the first one appears. They don't wait for the seventh year, when the permanent ones begin. They simply double their vigilance during the years of permanent teeth appearance. This is the period when the good jaw formation depends upon properly placed teeth.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Two highly efficient creams the mature, busy, and economical woman might well keep on her dressing table and use faithfully are an herbal cleansing cream and a heavier, richer cream, also herbal, that can be used for the sole purpose of lubrication.

We'll confess to a weakness for anything herbal; we like the scent and we like the idea. But, entirely aside from this angle, these two creams are products of real merit.

The cleanser is a good one. Unlike many creams so-called, this does a thorough job of removing makeup. We have found that several cleansers will take off the powder, the mascara, the lipstick and some of the cheek rouge with one application. But if cream rouge is used it's often necessary to have more than one creaming to remove every vestige of it. Not so with this cream. One application, massaged in well, does the work. It has a certain stimulating quality, too. On some skins there will be a slight reaction of tingling the first two or three days it is used, but that tingling is an indication that some stimulation is needed. Sluggish skins will benefit by the fairly brisk cleansing action of it.

With this cream to keep the skin clean and pleasantly exercised use of the nourishng cream rounds out the beauty routine. This can be used for massage, with special attention to those areas where tiny lines foretell deep wrinkles or for lubrication alone if the skin is dry.

We like the efficiency of the program just these two creams will permit the home treatment woman to follow. With only these two jars she can give her skin the benefit of three basic beauty treatments—cleanliness, stimulation and lubrication—at little trouble and little expense.

Dorothy, I can't keep my secret any longer

Last night Jim proposed. He said he couldn't be happy without seeing my smile every day. Oh, I'm so lucky! And I owe it all to you. That new way to clean teeth you told me about has really made life wonderful. It works miracles and what a fool I was to ever believe my teeth were naturally dull and discolored! Why, they now have a lustre and brightness I never dreamed they would have!

NEW WAY TO CLEAN TEETH GIVES THEM NEW BRILLIANCE AND CLEARNESS

MONDAY: I DON'T BELIEVE ANYTHING CAN WHITEN MY TEETH. BUT I'LL TRY DOROTHY'S WAY.
TUESDAY: MY TEETH LOOK BRIGHTER ALREADY!
WEDNESDAY: JIM CAN'T TAKE HIS EYES OFF MY DAZZLING SMILE.

If you want the truth, go to your dentist. Ask him why your teeth look so unclean and unattractive, why the daily care you give them doesn't make them lustrous and white. His answer will be this... Germs you breathe into your mouth collect on your teeth, forming dull, stained discolored spots and causing decay. When you brush your teeth, clean off these germ-spots by using an antiseptic toothpaste like Kolynos. And in a few days your teeth will have a clearness and brilliance they probably never had before.

One of the world's most famous dental scientists developed Kolynos which embodies cleansing and whitening properties not found in ordinary preparations. As it enters your mouth it foams into every crevice between the teeth. Kills 80% to 92% of all the germs in your mouth. Removes the ugly germ-spots. Polishes every tooth surface. And cleans your teeth as only an antiseptic toothpaste can.

Now if you believe your teeth are naturally dull, yellow or stained, there's a surprise in store for you. Start using Kolynos today like you would any toothpaste or powder—with one exception. Do not dilute its effectiveness with water. Put a half-inch on a dry brush for each cleaning. After the first brushing your teeth will look and feel cleaner, brighter. Soon they will have new clearness, a gleaming whiteness that will make you smile with delight. Try it. Get a tube of antiseptic Kolynos today.

REDS CLAIM U. S. HUSHED DETAILS OF FASCIST 'PLOT'

Insist Arms Firm Promised to Furnish Weapons

MOSCOW, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The bolshevik press today eagerly seized upon news concerning a reported Fascist plot for a revolution in the United States, and attributed to the congressional committee investigating un-American activities efforts to conceal "sensational revelations."

Reports of the committee's sessions were published fully here. One of the leading soviet organs, the newspaper For Industrialization declared that it became evident during the committee's investigation that an arms company promised to supply a Fascist organization with arms.

Claims Findings Were Hushed.

The newspaper said the committee, however, had not dwelt upon these findings.

"The committee," said the paper, "directs its fire against communism and tries to conceal the real sensational revelations about the activity of Hitler agents and their American friends.

"The committee is concealing evident intrigues of American Fascist generals who are enroling an army and meanwhile hatching adventurous plots."

The paper accused the committee of publishing only part of Smedley D. Butler's testimony, but said even this revealed that a group of financial magnates was seeking to put an end to democracy through a Fascist revolution. Butler's testimony, the paper alleged, was cut and misrepresented by the committee.

Reds Resent "Strike Charge."

Its editor particularly resented what he termed the committee's efforts to present "the strike movement in America, unprecedented since 1919, as due to the intrigue of foreign communist agitators." He called Matthew Woll, of the American Federation of Labor, "an extreme right pro-labor union burocrat," who, he said, had discovered an entirely fanciful Red plot.

The Moscow Daily News featured a Washington dispatch saying the committee had uncovered evidence that certain German consuls were carrying on anti-American activities.

Such statements in the dispatch as that the Nazis were bringing pressure to bear to unite the peoples of German origin in the United States into a single group to receive orders from abroad were prominently displayed.

PORTUGAL VOTES TO KEEP CARMONA AS ITS PRESIDENT

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Gen. Oscar de Fragosa Carmona, dictator of Portugal for 9 years, was re-elected president today by an estimated majority of 1,000,000 votes.

Polls were crowded throughout the day. The president's reelection had long been conceded.

Under the Portuguese constitution adopted in 1932 the president serves for seven years. Gen. Carmona was first elected in 1926 and was re-elected in 1928.

Soviet Scientists Preserve Human Blood for 28 Days

MOSCOW, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Russian scientists have succeeded in preserving human blood as long as 28 days before using it for transfusions, it was officially announced today. Certain unspecified anti-coagulating substances were used in its preservation. It was announced, too, that long experimenting has proved the success of transfusions with blood taken from bodies after sudden death.

Compute Steer Profits.

February 17, 1935.

THE last of the herd of 117 steers, bought in September, 1933, have been sold by THE TRIBUNE Experimental farm near Yorkville. Fifty-five head were in the final bunch sold last week at the Union stockyards. They weighed 59,480 pounds, averaging 1,081½ pounds, and brought $6,119.87. The 55 steers were sold in four different lots.

James Boyle and Brownie Simmons of Swift and company bought two odd Aberdeen-Angus steers in the herd at $11 a hundred. They weighed 1,780 pounds and brought $195.80. The same company bought 24 Herefords, weighing 27,720 pounds, at $10.75 a hundred pounds, or a total of $2,979.90.

W. Daniels bought 24 Herefords, weighing 25,040 pounds at $10.15 a hundred, or a total of $2,541.56. He also bought the fourth lot of 5 Herefords at $8.15 a hundred pounds. They weighed 4,940 pounds and brought $402.61.

Forty-four of the steers were shipped to market by rail at a cost of $56. Eleven were trucked in at a cost of $18.73, making a total transportation bill of $74.73 for the 55 steers.

The terminal marketing costs, not including transportation, amounted to nearly $1.36 a steer and were made of the following items:

Yardage	$19.85
Hay [250 lbs.]	5.25
Fire insurance at market	.14
National Live Stock & Meat Board	.50
Commission for selling	46.90
Total	$72.64

Records at the farm show that 119 steers were originally brought to the farm about a year and a half ago; one died and a second inferior steer was sold for $44 in April, 1934. The months in which they were sold, all in 1935, and the amounts received for the 117 kept and fed are as follows: January, 44 head, $4,731.37; January, 18 head, $1,782.20; February, 55 head, $6,119.87. The total received for the 118 sold amounted to $12,677.44.

The 119 steers delivered to the farm cost $3,836.42. The veterinary bill at the farm amounted to $12. Feed costs total $3,040.43. Transportation and transportation insurance totaled $185.53. Terminal marketing costs to $164.93. The grand total cost of the steers amounted to $7,239.31. After deducting the total costs from the total sales figure, the farm has left $5,438.13 for pasture, labor, interest and profit.

When the 119 steers were brought to the farm they weighed a total of 72,980 pounds or an average of 613 pounds. The 118 steers marketed weighed a total of 106,012. They showed a gain of 33,032 pounds.

PHILIPPINES ACT TO CURB INROADS OF JAPS ON LAND

Begin Move to Cancel Subleases.

MANILA, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Philippine government moved today to curb the inroads of Japanese landholders in the rich hemp growing province of Davao in the southern islands, origin of the so-called Manila hemp.

Back from a twelve day survey of the province, which the Filipinos sometimes call "Davaokuo," Eulogio Rodriguez, secretary of agriculture, launched a move for wholesale cancelation of subleases of public lands which he maintains are illegal.

Conferences Begin Today.

Conferences on the problem were scheduled for tomorrow, with Japanese consular officials participating. Rodriguez stated he now considers impracticable a project to purchase all Japanese plantations in Davao, but he recommended strict application of insular laws governing land holdings by aliens.

He cited a recent survey showing the Japanese controled 126,000 acres in Davao. He claimed that leases to 64,372 acres were illegally held.

Toyojo Kaneko, Japanese consul at Davao, told Rodriguez that "the Japanese have invested $25,000,000 in Davao and in addition 4,000 Japanese have lost their lives while pioneering in Davao. Two thousand of these were killed by wild tribesmen."

$10,000,000 Purchase Price.

"The Davao holdings of the Japanese could be bought for $10,000,000," said Representative José T. Surtida, spokesman for a group of legislators favoring purchase.

"The Japanese are in Davao purely for business," commented Consul General Atsushi Kimura. "Naturally a reasonable and concrete offer will meet sympathetic consideration."

The Japanese consul at Davao estimates the number of his nationals there at 13,000, but independent estimates range up to 25,000.

Recent semi-official reports indicated that the Japanese own or lease well over 100,000 acres of land, mostly in Davao, but also in Cotabato and Zamboanga provinces of Mindanao, and also on the island of Palawan.

IRISH SENATOR CHIDES BRITAIN ON DEBT TO U. S.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Senator Connolly of the Irish Free State made a sarcastic reference to England's nonpayment of war debts to the United States today in a speech at Cavan.

Referring to the recent speech of James H. Thomas, British secretary for the dominions, in which Thomas said the "sanctity of agreements" should be recognized by the Free State, Connolly observed:

"When British cabinet ministers talk like that four words lead to one's tongue, 'war debts to America.' What about the sanctity of that agreement?"

REDS TO DEPRIVE KULAK FARMERS OF SURPLUS LAND

Will Let Collective Farms Increase Area.

MOSCOW, Feb. 17.—(AP)—To the rousing cheers of the all-union "shock farmers'" congress the soviet government announced today a new rule allowing collective farms to expand by absorbing "surplus" land of independent farmers, or kulaks, who have clung to free farming in the face of a constantly growing pressure for collectivization.

The congress quickly approved the rule, presented by M. Chernov, commissar of agriculture, in a speech closing the assemblage.

Grant Permanent Titles.

Heretofore the size of collective farms has been definitly fixed and no provision was made for expansion. Independent farmers, who will now see their giant neighbors armed with a new weapon, will have the right to retain all necessary lands but soviet authorities will rule on what is a "surplus."

Other innovations provide that land granted to collective farms will be "eternally" their property rather than for an "unlimited period" as before.

To check the tendency of collective farmers to spend too much time in their individual garden patches, the size of these was limited to from a quarter to a half a hectare, but one hectare will be allowed in exceptional cases. [A hectare is 2.471 acres.]

Set Limits on Stock.

The amount of private property collective farmers are allowed to possess was cut so that farmers in purely agricultural districts may have only one cow, two calves, one sow, ten sheep, and goats, and an unlimited number of chickens and rabbits.

Joseph Stalin, dictator of soviet Russia, came to the aid of prospective mothers. At his suggestion the farmers' congress agreed that women farmers be released from their work one month before and one month after childbirth. They will receive half of their usual earnings during that time.

C. Y. O. Team Strong.

Chicago also will depend on the eight champions of the Catholic Youth organization, who will enter the Tournament of Champions. And several of these veterans are rated as likely winners of diamond studded golden gloves.

While the Loyola tournament is the last to start it will finish on the same night that the west side finals are held. Thus the south side finals, which are scheduled for Friday evening at White City, will conclude the Chicago sectional bouts.

Admission for the north side tournament is 60 cents plus federal tax. The show will start in two rings at 7 o'clock and the doors will be opened an hour earlier.

Must Report on Time.

Contestants must report between 4 and 6 p. m. and the pairings will be made at 6:30. Failure to appear on time for either the medical examinations or the pairings means forfeiture of the match. All Novice fighters except the heavyweights report tomorrow. All Open division boxers and the Novice heavyweights are on call for Wednesday. There will be approximately 100 bouts tomorrow with perhaps 80 bouts in two rings on Wednesday. The finals on Thursday will be held in one ring.

The list of Open division boxers contains several well known fighters including two boys who won Novice championships last year at the Stadium. Charles Cassola, of Trafton's gymnasium, 1934 Novice featherweight champion, and Bob Foley, of Grays Lake, Ill., 1934 Novice welterweight title holder, are seeking qualifying positions for the Tournament of Champions. Among others, Cassola must meet [unless defeated earlier] Joe Minneci of Waukegan, Ill., a C. Y. O. boxer who was an alternate on last year's intercity squad in the 118 pound class. Minneci now is boxing in the 126 pound class.

Max Schmeling Jr. to Fight.

Max Schmeling Jr., a cousin of the one time world's professional heavyweight champion, who started his amateur boxing in Germany, is listed in the Open division lightweight class. The Wozniak brothers, C. Y. O. champions last year, who fought in the Tournament of Champions, again are entered in the north section. Charles is seeking the sectional middleweight title and Ray is a lightheavyweight.

Ambrose Geoghegan, a middleweight alternate on the 1932 intercity squad, is listed in the same division for the north section. Levi Persson, 175 pounds, is another well known amateur who will compete in the Open division.

Thomas Seeks Title Again.

Otis Thomas, 1934 Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, who won that honor by whipping Max Marek in one of the greatest of all amateur bouts, is seeking to qualify in the north section. While only three Open division heavyweights are listed, one of them is Al Camber, of the C. Y. O., and when these boys meet, another great match may develop.

The Skokie Valley C. C. C. camp, largest in the United States, will be represented by 16 boxers in the Open division. The camp held an elimination tournament to determine the entrants in the north side trials.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BEFORE THE STEWARDS.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 17.—Trainer Bob Smith of the Brookmeade stable, who still hopes to send Cavalcade to the post next Saturday for the Santa Anita $100,000 Handicap, once was before the stewards because a horse in his charge was winning so consistently. That was nearly thirty years ago. The subject came up in a fanning bee concerning Twenty Grand, which so often limps after a workout and then seems as good as ever at his next trial.

"One dislikes to hazard guesses about another trainer's horse when he has troubles enough with his own," said Trainer Smith, "but I've often wondered if Twenty Grand's ailment is not a misplaced nerve which hurts him when he runs and causes him to appear lame after a race. I once had one like that named Grayfield, which won six straight races and then suddenly became sound.

"After his first victory, which Grayfield won at a price, with all of us having a pretty good bet down because of his trials, he pulled up so lame it seemed he must be hopelessly broken down. We gave him warm applications and in a few days he was all right, so we put him in again. Again he won, also at a good price because of having looked so lame after his previous effort. This time he again looked broken down at the finish.

"This continued for four or five races, and the stewards sent for me and said, 'Do you think it looks well, Bob, for a horse to be hopelessly lame after each race and then win his next time out?'

"I said, 'I think it's a misplaced nerve which hurts him but then slips back into place with rest. Anyway, he's winning every time. Surely you wouldn't want me to have him pulled, would you?' There wasn't any answer to that, and Grayfield won six straight. In his sixth race the nerve perhaps slipped back into place permanently. At any rate, he wasn't bothered any more by lameness. Strangely enough, he didn't win as consistently thereafter. Perhaps the weights and penalties he picked up for his six wins had something to do with that, however."

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The New York Rangers defeated the Detroit Red Wings, 5 to 3, tonight in a thrill packed National Hocky league game before 7,000. Two overtime goals decided the match.

Detroit has made twelve starts without gaining a victory. Outplaying the visitors for two periods, the Wings had a one goal lead in the third until Keeling tied the score on a pass from Bill Cook.

Keeling, Dillon Score.

In the overtime Keeling scored again and Dillon clinches matters with three seconds to go by scoring when the desperate wings were caught far down the ice.

The Canadiens took the lead on a goal by Aurel Joliat early in the first period and held it by smart, close defensive play. The game was uneventful until the middle of the third period, after Al Mondou's speedy solo had made the count 2-0. Then a gang play produced a goal by Lorne Carr.

The fight, labeled for the "world's championship" by the promoters, drew a gate of 200,000 pesetas [about $27,360].

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The wrathful Boston Bruins, still smarting from the humiliation of a 3 to 0 licking by the lowly St. Louis Eagles Saturday, skated onto the Staduim ice last night in the presence of 15,341 customers—second largest crowd of the season—seeking salve for their wounds.

They obtained the desired ointment in the form of a 2 to 1 victory over the world champion Blackhawks, their first of the season in five battles with the Stanley cup holders, but they'll need arnica and bandages aplenty this morning for the bumps and bruises they endured in repelling the Hawks' desperate and futile third period drive.

Rangers Lead by Full Game.

Boston, however, has the satisfaction of having projected itself into a tie for second with the Hawks in the American division of the National Hocky league. The champions were dropped into that position by their own defeat, as well as the victory of the New York Rangers over the Detroit Red Wings last night. The Rangers now lead the Hawks and Bruins by a full game.

The first period was waged in rather cautious tension, although it was distinguished by more than enough of the bumping typical of Bruin-Hawk battles.

Despite the jostling the penalty box did not have a tenant during the entire period. The Bruins had their shooting eyes on Chabot, and he was forced to make ten stops for the period, against Thompson's unusual two.

March Slams It Home.

Finally, Gottselig, Morenz, and March came on for the last three minutes. After Stewart had burned Chabot's toes with a hot shot the Hawk wings took it down, and after some maneuvering by Gottselig, March took the puck just inside the blue line. He lined it past the sprawling Thompson with only 35 seconds of the period left, Gottselig and Morenz both getting well deserved assists.

The Bruins must have resented March's last minute goal, for they came out in the second period, and not tied the score in less than two minutes, but took a one goal lead before the ten minute mark. After the opening faceoff the front line of Kaminsky, Barry, and Clapper stormed into the Hawk zone, with Shore loitering in their wake. After much skirmishing about the puck finally emerged from a scramble between Barry and Burke. Kaminsky, playing behind Burke, scooped it up and sent it past the helpless Chabot in 1:55.

Haynes Gets Free.

After nine minutes of give and take hocky, with the Hawks still missing the cage, McInenly dashed down ice. Coulter checked him just over the Chicago blue line and the resulting faceoff produced the second Bruin goal. Haynes broke free from a tangle of players and with none to say him nay drew Chabot out of the cage and lined an angle shot past the Hawk goalie with O'Neil getting an assist. The time was 9:45.

The fact that the Bruins intended to be satisfied with their one goad advantage was no secret within the first three minutes of the last period. They retired into a defensive mood, golfing the puck repeatedly.

The Hawks went to work in earnest. Thompson was forced to make a whale of a stop on March, who had him stretched on the ice, but couldn't get the puck over him. Cook, Trudell, and Kendall then gave the Bruin defense such a workout that McInenly was taken to the dressing room with an injured right knee and Davie came out of the confusion with a bruised shoulder.

Stewart Saves Day.

With two minutes to play the Hawks' attack was so furious that twice Thompson, Siebert, and Shore were stretched across the mouth of the Boston cage, particularly after one rush by Paul Thompson. This last resulted in a penalty faceoff, ten feet in front of the cage. Gottselig and Stewart were elected to shinny up in front of the unprotected Boston goal, with the other players flanking the two faceoff men. Stewart, who had been sent into the game just for this purpose, got the puck on the faceoff and batted it out of danger.

Bernstein, a rugged looking young fellow, stopped Bobby Hull and whipped Eddie Vik in recent Chicago starts.

Syl Saliski, Milwaukee middleweight, and Joe Savage, Kewanee, Ill., will be the contending warriors in the six round semi-final. Joey Sangor, former featherweight ace, will second Saliski and Hayden [Young] Stuhley, middleweight contender, will be behind Savage, who is his cousin. Sangor manages Saliski. Preliminary matches:

Another feature attraction will involve Champion Jim Londos and Tom Marvin in a wrestling exhibition.

The Chynoweth-Carroll engagement, scheduled for six rounds, will be replaced by Sammy Chivas, classy Detroit lightweight, and Gene Higgins of the C. Y. O. Tony Canzoneri, veteran New York lightweight star, and Chuck Woods, Detroit, will appear in a ten round topliner at Detroit Olympia on Feb. 26. Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids, Mich., boxer, who recently returned from a European tour, is likely to appear against a suitable opponent. SET MARCH 15 FOR IMPELLITIERE, CARNERA FIGHT

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Jimmy Johnston, boxing director of Madison Square Garden, announced tonight the heavyweight bout between Primo Carnera, former world's champion, and Ray Impellitiere would be held in the Garden Friday, March 15.

Johnston had hoped to hold the match this Friday night, but could not get Carnera's name to a contract. Today, Johnston said, Louis Soresi, Primo's manager, cabled from Nassau in the Bahamas, giving Bill Duffy power of attorney to sign for the former champion. Duffy will sign a contract on Primo's behalf tomorrow, Johnston said.

Ball Defeats Halsted for City Net Title

Russell Ball, Northwestern university sophomore, last night won the Chicago indoor tennis championship at the Broadway armory, Broadway and Thorndale avenues, when he defeated Thane Halsted, Illinois state champion, in straight sets, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4.

Halsted's attempts to lift his game to the brand which earlier had awarded him an upset victory over his foe's brother, George, were of little avail as Ball split the baseline and dotted the corners with his placements.

Ball made 24 placements, 37 nets, 27 outs, and served five aces. Halsted had a total of only 7 placements, and netted 32 times, hit out of court on 36 occasions, and made two aces. Ball double-faulted five times, and Halsted once.

Preceding the men's singles match the 1934 western indoor women's champion, Louise Hofmeister, won the women's city championship with an easy conquest of Bernice [Jackie] Ayer, 6-3, 6-2.

The Ball brothers, Russell and George, won the doubles title by defeating Thane Halsted and Frank O'Connell in an exciting five set match, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

MONARCHS TAKE SECOND PLACE IN CLASSIC LEAGUE

WILLIMAN'S CAR BREAKS RECORD IN MIDGET RACE

Tony Williman of Milwaukee broke the track record in winning the main event of 25 laps at the indoor auto races at the 124th Field Artillery armory last night.

Williman did some expert maneuvering to gain the lead after two laps, but was closely followed by Harold Shaw and Jimmy Rogers. After 15 laps were run Williman was still in front by a short margin and Frank Brisko had moved into second place. Williman held the lead to the finish, setting a record of 6:12. Brisko was second and Snyder beat out Shaw for third.

Williman was defeated in the other races. Jimmy Snyder beat him by a short margin in the first race of the evening and again in the boneo race, in which post positions were picked out of a hat.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Purdue did and Indiana didn't have success in the advertised satisfaction games Saturday night in the Western conference race. Result: Purdue again has possession of first place with Wisconsin and Indiana virtually tied for second, although the Badgers have a percentage margin.

Purdue whipped Illinois Saturday, 35 to 27, and evened the score for the 37 to 36 licking the Boilermakers received at Champaign. Indiana lost an overtime battle to Wisconsin, 37 to 27, the second victory of the season for Wisconsin over the Hoosiers. Wisconsin won the first game, 30 to 23.

Indiana vs. Purdue Tonight.

Tonight Indiana plays Purdue. It's the game of the season for Hoosierdom, where good basketball players are the rule and where the citizens know the game and love it. Twice 5,000, the capacity of the gymnasium, would like to attend. To say that Purdue will win would be an insult to half the state, but certainly the grueling battle at Wisconsin must be rated a disadvantage. Indiana, leading by a point, with a minute and a half to play, was tied and then faltered in the extra period to lose by ten points. It was the third overtime contest of the Big Ten season.

For Wisconsin there is credit for a victory which keeps it within striking distance of Purdue. And Wisconsin plays the Boilermakers at Lafayette on March 4, which may become the title game of the year, or an anticlimax, depending on what Indiana and others accomplish in the interim.

Purdue faces Ohio State Saturday night at Columbus and the Buckeyes almost whipped Purdue in the first game at Lafayette, losing 42 to 41 after holding a 31 to 16 lead at the intermission. One week from tonight Indiana is host to Purdue at Bloomington. Then comes Wisconsin [Purdue, 19; Wisconsin, 18, on Jan. 5 at Madison] and the last game of the season is with Northwestern. Purdue, if successful in the stretch, is worthy of the championship.

Michigan Upsets Iowa.

Wisconsin's schedule, which follows, is a bit easier perhaps. Tonight the Badgers play at Minnesota. Saturday they travel to Ann Arbor. On March 2 they meet Chicago and finish with Purdue. Wisconsin may win or share in the 1935 title despite Purdue's advantage at this time.

Michigan added to Iowa's distress by winning 29 to 27 at Iowa City. It was Iowa's fifth consecutive conference defeat, after winning the first four games on its schedule.

Tonight Michigan plays at Northwestern. The Wolverines surprised the Wildcats in the first encounter, 19 to 11. Saturday night Northwestern defeated Marquette, 34 to 23, which may lend the hope that Northwestern can eventually get something better than ninth place. As it now stands, Chicago still has a chance to equal Northwestern's conference record by winning one game.

PAUL KRUMSKE WINS CHICAGO BOWLING TITLE

Paul Krumske won the Chicago district elimination bowling championship yesterday when he finished with 1,314 for a grand total of 2,536 at the North Town Recreation alleys.

Second to Krumske was Harry Kaad's 1,230 and 2,495, while Bill Heermann finished third with 2,432. Bill Marcich was fourth with 2,330.

The two leading men qualified for the finals to be held later in the season to determine a match game champion to roll against the national champion, Otto Stein Jr., St. Louis.

Cecelia Grob leads the Chicago district trials for women with a score of 1,583 for the first half of the sixteen games. Betty Kleine is second with 1,539, with the balance of the field bunched for the remaining two places needed to qualify. The other scores:

CARROLL BEATS ENGLEWOOD; TOPS K. OF C. LEAGUE

Carroll of the West division remained the only undefeated team in the upper bracket of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league yesterday when it defeated Englewood, South division champion, 29 to 28, in a thriller at White City. Englewood kept its lead in the south section, however, when Quigley came through with one of the biggest upsets of the round to defeat Loyola-Hyde Park, 23 to 21.

Carroll took an early lead and had a five-point margin with only a few minutes to play, but Englewood put on a rally which almost carried it to victory in the closing seconds.

WEST DIVISION

Led by Joie Canizzo with thirteen points, St. Cyr dropped Setters out of the unbeaten ranks with a 24 to 20 upset at the West Side clubhouse. St. Cyr led at the half and had a five point margin with only four minutes to play, but Setters aided by some spectacular shots by Gene Godina, tied the count, only to have Canizzo cage the ball to take the lead once more. Damen moved into second place in the west section by evening the count with its old rival, Hennepin-Shields, 25 to 16.

Cunningham Clinches Title as Best Miler

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—There's not even any room for argument today over the matter of supremacy in negotiating the measured mile on foot. Glenn Cunningham has put his foremost rivals to rout with such amazing consistency this winter that now he has nothing left to beat but the stop watch.

Without the shadow of a doubt Cunningham is the greatest bit of human mile running machinery ever developed and the nearest approach we have had, for consistency under all conditions, to the renowned Paavo Nurmi. Like the great Finnish racer, the powerful Kansan is an instinctive judge of pace as well as a great competitor.

He has shattered the world mile records, indoors as well as out.

Sets Baxter Mile Record.

On the familiar 11 laps-to-the-mile track in Madison Square Garden last night Cunningham ran his favorite distance in 4:09.8, a new record for the Baxter mile and the fourth time that the former University of Kansas star has been clocked under 4:10.

Cunningham himself is inclined to laugh off the suggestion, but it is the consensus of experts now that Glenn is the one foot racer with a chance to close the gap between his own world outdoor mark of 4:06.7 for the mile and the theoretical human limit of 4:01.66, fixed recently by Brutus Hamilton, University of California coach, after exhaustive scientific research.

Could Shade "Perfect Record."

As a matter of fact Cunningham could have shaded the so-called "perfect record" by combing the first half mile of his victorious race last night with the fast last half mile of his memorable duel with Bill Bonthron in the 1934 Baxter mile. Varying his customary tactics, the Kansan raced the first 880 yards last night in 2:01.4, a pace that left Bonthron and Gene Venzke struggling and forced Erik Ny, the Swedish star, to drop out.

A year ago Cunningham and Bonthron together whirled the last half mile in two minutes flat, with Bonthron the winner by inches. Devetailing the two performances gives Cunningham a theoretical mile in 4:01.4, but he is willing to agree with Hamilton that this is probably expecting a bit too much of the human system.

WIND, RAIN STILL MAR BEACH FOR CAMPBELL RUN

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Rain, shifting winds, and sluggish tides failed to improve the racing strand on the beach today, further discouraging Sir Malcolm Campbell, British driver, here with his seven ton Bluebird for an assault on the 272.108 mile an hour automobile speed record.

"Unless conditions improve swiftly," he said after an examination of the scarred sands, "I'm afraid it's going to be March before we can make the runs."

Full moon and the highest tide of the month was due tomorrow, but the wind is still blowing off the land, partially nullifying the smoothing effects of the high water.

Even the Diesel motored cars Dave Evans and Wild Bill Cummings, American racing drivers, are running for the record for that class failed to do anything today. Evans bettered 125 miles an hour slightly Friday to set a new record.

MILWAUKEE WINS FROM SPARTA IN CUP MATCH, 4-3

Maccabees Triumph Over Norwegians, 2-0.

The Milwaukee Vienna soccer team yesterday defeated the Sparta Leaders, 4 to 3, in a second round match in the national cup play at Sparta stadium. The Milwaukee triumph was one of the major upsets of the season.

Sparta won the toss and kicked into a hard gale. The visitors immediately took advantage of the wind and within twelve minutes had scored three times. Smith, Beiumeijarlen and Kleisch accounted for the points. Sparta then started a drive and Vleck kicked home two goals in the last ten minutes of the period. Kliesch added his second goal to give Milwaukee a 4 to 2 advantage at half time.

The Chicago team opened strong in the next period and Vleck connected with his third goal of the afternoon after five minutes of play. The rest of the contest found Sparta on the offensive, but Milwaukee turned back all scoring threats. Goalie Mueller batted aside many Sparta kicks and was the star of the match. Lineups:

ITALIAN'S GIFT TO LINCOLN IS SEEN BY ENVOY

Commemorative Stone at Governor's Home.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—An extra courtesy for the Italian ambassador, Sig. Augusto Rosso, who spoke here last Tuesday on Lincoln's birthday, was made possible by Gov. Henry Horner, his director of public works, Robert Kingery, and State Historical Librarian Paul M. Angle.

In the years that he has collected Lincolniana the governor has acquired a considerable portion of the enormous literature of the martyred President. His Lincoln library of 6,000 items is installed in the executive mansion, and whenever possible Mr. Horner spends an afternoon or evening there cataloging new books, letters, or holographs which have come into his possession. It is a hobby he indulged during his years on the Cook county probate bench and one he has not relinquished since becoming governor.

Recalls Gift of Stone.

So when he learned that Ambassador Rosso was to be his guest for the Lincoln memorial the governor recalled that citizens of Rome once presented Mr. Lincoln with a stone from the wall of Servius Tullius, a much beloved emperor who ruled about 500 B. C. Mr. Horner knew the stone was in Springfield, but where?

He called H. W. Fay, custodian of the Lincoln tomb in Oak Ridge cemetery. Mr. Fay remembered that the stone had been part of his collection at the tomb before it was remodeled in 1930, when the stone was removed with other relics. The governor summoned Mr. Kingery, whose duties include supervision of the monument. Mr. Kingery knew that some of the collection had been stored in a warehouse. The stone might be there. Well, would Mr. Kingery try to locate it? Mr. Kingery would, and did.

A few hours later investigators in the dusty warehouse stumbled over a rough rectangular rock. On its face was a Latin inscription and the date "Anno 1865." Soon it had been transferred to the governor's mansion and placed on a pedestal. Librarian Angle's research told the rest of the story.

Rock Defaced Slightly.

The stone is "travertine"—Tiber rock—and is 27½ inches long, 19 inches wide, and 18¾ inches thick. About a year after Lincoln's assassination it was found in the basement of the White House, covered with rubbish and somewhat defaced. President Johnson's attention was drawn to it, and executive clerks made a search to see if any letters had accompanied it, but none was found.

However, it was believed that the stone had arrived before Mr. Lincoln's death. It was removed to a crypt in the basement of the capitol and remained there until early in June, 1870, when a joint resolution was introduced in congress instructing the capitol architect to transfer the stone to an appropriate place in the United States Botanical gardens.

When the resolution reached the house Congressman Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois proposed an amendment providing that instead of remaining in Washington the stone should be sent to the National Lincoln Monument association at Springfield to be placed in the tomb. Both houses approved and the stone reached the tomb in August a year later. There it remained until the 1930 remodeling.

2 SLAIN, 4 HURT IN STRIKE CLASH IN CALIFORNIA

El Centro, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Gunfire killed two men today and four others were critically wounded in a lettuce workers' strike clash, leading authorities to consider an appeal for National Guardsmen. Many shots were fired.

The dead and injured were felled in a fight between strikers and nonunion workers at the William Wahl packing shed.

In the hand-to-hand fighting a worker suffered a leg fracture and two men and a woman were severely beaten.

City and county officials were called into emergency conference tonight to determine whether they should ask Gov. Frank F. Merriam to call out the National Guard to maintain order.

Hugh Osborn, member of the board of county supervisors, described the situation tonight as "very bad."

The strike involves recognition of the Fruit and Vegetable Workers' union, and difficulties have been encountered since the start of the lettuce season last December.

POLICEMAN NIPS STORE ROBBERY BY GANG OF SIX

The identification of a young man as a robber at the detective bureau showup yesterday revealed for the first time how Policeman Frank Falkowski of the Snakespeare avenue station frustrated the holdup of the Logan department store at Diversey boulevard and Milwaukee avenue by a gang of six or eight men on Feb. 1.

Seated in an automobile outside the store at noon that day, Falkowski became suspicious of a group of men hanging about the store door. He entered the lobby, collared one man, and took a pistol from him As he did so three others jammed guns in the policeman's back, recovered the robber's weapon as well as the policeman's revolver and marched Falkowski down the street to an alley. There the group joined several others in a speedy light truck, warned the policeman to be quiet, and fled.

A few days ago Sergt. Jack Hanrahan learned that Nick Succas, 25 years old, 1407 Flournoy street, who is in the county jail waiting trial for robbery following his recent arrest, was a member of the gang. Falkowski identified Succas' picture taken with a group of four other youths and also picked out another gang member. The latter, John Reda, 22 years old, 1143 Harrison street, was arrested and identified at the showup yesterday.

BELGIUM MARKS 1ST ANNIVERSARY OF KING'S DEATH

BRUSSELS, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Deeply veiled and paler and tinier than ever, Queen Mother Elizabeth of Belgium accompanied King Leopold, Queen Astrid and Princess Maria Jose today to an early morning mass at Laeken crypt on the first anniversary of King Albert's tragic death.

The little princess, daughter of Leopold and Astrid, was unable to restrain her tears. The whole nation paid tribute to the beloved monarch who slipped and fell to his death on Feb. 17, 1934, on the rocks at March les Dames.

During the afternoon the Laeken crypt was open to the public. A long column of former soldiers marched to the beat of muffled drums through the city, reaching the crypt at 9 p. m. They laid a wreath on the grave.

A squadron of French military planes dropped wreaths on March les Dames. Thousands of pilgrims arrived on special trains from all parts of Belgium, France and Holland. Belgian war veterans concluded their sale of commemorative medals, and with the proceeds will erect a memorial bridge on the Yser river at Dixmude, where Albert commanded Belgian troops during the war. The picturesque site of the king's death has become a national shrine.

SUGAR OFFICIAL KILLED IN FALL FROM A HORSE

Denver, Colo., Feb. 17.—(AP)—W. D. Lippitt, president of the Great Western Sugar company, was killed in a fall from a horse here today.

Lippitt's rorse, a new mount he recently purchased, became frightened, and his head apparently hit the limb of a tree as the animal, out of control, raced across the Cherry Hills golf course.

Lippitt was dead when he was found by other riders. He was 49 years old.

His daughter, Ruth Anne, and friends who had been with him said Lippitt left the party to return to the stable and it was not learned what frightened his horse.

He started work as a clerk with the sugar company in 1904 and had been president since 1931. During the world war, he served with the U. S. Food administration.

Besides his daughter, survivors are the widow, another daughter, Mary, and a son, William, in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Lippitt is the former Charlotte Taylor, of Rochester, Mich.

He was a member of the Denver, Cactus, Mile High and other clubs and had been a leader in the sugar beet industry for years.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Ned Wever, who plays the part of Dick Tracy in the CBS adaptation of THE TRIBUNE'S comic strip by Chester Gould, made a real sacrifice the other day. He has always worn a mustache until asked to pose for Dick Tracy pictures in character. Reminded that Detective Tracy has an unadorned upper lip he promptly had it shaved off.

Wever used to have the reputation of a matinee idol in radio. Several years ago he played the romantic lead in the "True Story" program with Elsie Hitz. Later he was picked to play the part of the villian in a detective series and thus his career as a "heavy" began.

On the stage Wever has appeared in F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Great Gatsby," with Jane Cowl in "The Road to Rome," with Fred and Adele Astaire in "Lady, Be Good," and in the "Second Little Show."

Jimmy Melton, radio tenor, and Tim Ryan and Irene Noblette, air team, who are playing at the Palace theater this week, are ready to do bigger things. Melton will return to New York for a few more appearances on the Intimate Revue; then he goes to Hollywood for two Warner Brothers' musical pictures. Melton also has a Metropolitan Opera audition coming along. Tim and Irene will start an NBC commercial with Doc Rockwell and Ted Lewis early in March.

Joe Cascarella, singing pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, is singing on the Band Wagon Revue coming to CBS from Philadelphia on Saturday mornings. . . . The Federal Radio commission has issued a warning reminding that a police call listener can be sent to prison if he talks about what is heard. The warning is particularly directed at ambulance chasing lawyers and accident chasing garage men. . . . One of Eddie Cantor's many stooges is one Charlie Cantor—no relation.

Gene and Charlie, popular song team, are heard on a new three a week series over WBBM. . . . Ed Wynn and Alexander Woollcott have discovered that they attended Central High school, Philadelphia, at the same time. . . . Joy Finley is the new singer with Don Pedro's orchestra over NBC from the Oriental Gardens.

George Joyce, son of James Joyce, is the baritone soloist on Cobina Wright's "Hostess" programs heard over CBS from 2 to 3 p. m. Mondays. Cobina Wright achieved front page space recently when she was denied a divorce. The court held that even if her husband had been surprised in an apartment with another woman in pajamas it was no proof of infidelity.

JOINT TERMINAL USE ADVOCATED BY EASTMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Joseph B. Eastman, federal transportation coördinator, tonight made public a survey on economy possibilities of railroads through unification or joint use of freight terminal facilities.

The survey estimates railroads might save between 25 and 50 million dollars annually through coördination of terminal facilities and further economies might be effected into millions of dollars by changing methods of handling in terminal areas by reducing the number of fast competitive trains, according to the survey.

The survey analyzed the situation in Chicago to illustrate the possibility of economy. It points out that each of the 22 railroads in Chicago has one principal freight yard and that there are at least 50 yards of varying importance. The city has five major and eleven minor belt lines to interchange freight cars.

Reports Wasteful Operations.

"The general character of operation results in a flow of traffic, sometimes of one or two cars to an engine, moving through the terminal area, with apparent waste involved in individuality, intricacy, and complexity of operation," the survey states. "Interchange of traffic between lines is costly, involved, and extravagant."

At the suggestion of Coördinator Eastman, a terminal committee, after a study of freight traffic in Chicago, proposes reduction of the number of yards from 22 to 6, according to the survey. It is suggested that transfer movements be made within the six yards instead of over the city to cut the average haul distance, the number of operations and the number of cars and engines.

The survey estimated that coördination will save $3,800,000 annually in Chicago by eliminating the handling of many freight cars, exclusive of other savings. Resulting reduction of handling of freight cars throughout the country would save $23,500,000 a year, it was estimated.

Some Roads Oppose Plan.

Mr. Eastman disclosed that some railroad officials opposed unification and joint use of terminal facilities on the ground that it would bring loss of strategic position to some roads. He asked the objectors to ponder the four points which follow:

"Strategic advantage of location are much exaggerated, particularly since the advent of the truck. It is now difficult to bind shippers to any particular railroad except through service and treatment.

"To a considerable extent these strategic advantages are dependent on statutory provisions to which the roads have no constitutional right. Open terminals may be legislated into existence; there is no legal difficulty in the way.

"Even more important is the fact that individual railroads cannot, under present day conditions, long prosper at the expense of the best interests of the industry. It is preëminently a time for solidarity and coöperation.

Public Ownership Threat.

"If the best interests of the railroad industry are to be thwarted by individual railroads, the logical conclusion will follow that the number of railroads must be radically decreased. This can only be done through a grand plan of consolidation, like the Prince plan, or some substitute thereof, or it can be done by public ownership or operation."

The report says the coördinator expressed the hope the obstacles would not loom as large as they had when the executives pondered the four points. He suggested railroads at various terminals work out their own plans of coöperation.

Carriers have been slow in responding to this request, Eastman reported. He has asked that if it should prove that lines are unwilling to agree to any plan he should be notified in order that he might enter into negotiations to bring about settlement or, in the event these should fail, to consider what order might be drafted to compel unification.

Aetna Life Insurance Has Gain in Premium Income

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The Aetna Life Insurance company and its affiliated companies have reported for 1934 total premium income of $126,553,553, comparing with $117,725,741 in 1933, an increase of $8,827,812. Aetna Life alone had a premium income $4,927,987 higher at $79,009,081 and a gain in surplus of $2,438,772. New business totaled $272,838,666, exclusive of additions of $479,561,479 under group policies. Total insurance in force at the year end was $3,400,504,967, a rise of $78,114,315 in 1934.

Week's Auto Production Sets New Record for 1935

Truck and automobile production for the week ended Feb. 16 reached a new high mark at 82,119 units, according to Cram's Reports, Inc. A week earlier output was 78,453 units, while a year ago the total stood at 63,794. Eight plants increased output, two showed declines and 16 reported no change.

'Baby Bonds' to Pay at Rate of 2.96 Pct.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The government will begin its experiment with "baby bonds" on March 1, the treasury announced today, offering them in denominations from $25 to $1,000 at 14,000 postoffices, on a basis that would yield the purchaser an interest rate of 2.96 per cent compounded semi-annually, if held for ten years.

The first series probably will be dated April 1. No definite limit was fixed on the amount of the offering, but the secretary of the treasury will have authority to terminate it whenever he desires.

The fears expressed in some banking quarters that the sale of the bonds would place the government in active competition with savings banks were somewhat eased today when details of the procedure were made known. Under the plan, the 2.96 per cent yield would be realized only if the bonds were held to maturity, and those who turn them in at earlier dates—the treasury will redeem them at any time after sixty days from the date of issue—would receive a lower return on their investment.

Sell on Discount Basis.

This is accomplished by selling the bonds on a discount basis and arbitrarily fixing the sum which the purchaser would receive at the end of the first year and at intervals of six months thereafter.

Purchasers who turn in bonds for redemption prior to the close of the first year after issuance will receive only what they originally invested. At the end of the first year, if the bond is redeemed by the treasury, it will pay a premium which would be equal to 1 1-3 per cent over that period on the money invested, and the redemption value of the bond will thereafter continue gradually to increase, and will be stepped up more rapidly after the end of the seventh year, the final payment on maturity representing the yield of 2.96 per cent on the investment.

Under the "discount plan" and the rate fixed by the treasury, purchasers will pay $18.75 for a bond of $25 maturity value; $37.50 for a $50 bond; $75 for a $100 bond; $375 for a $500 bond and $750 for a $1,000 bond. The difference between the price paid at issue and the maturity value represents accrual of interest.

In putting out the bonds, the treasury is seeking to get them in the hands of those who expect to hold them for the full ten years. The provision for redemption at any time after sixty days of the date of issue is to provide a means by which those purchasers whose need for ready cash makes it impossible or difficult for them to hold the bonds may get back their money with, after the first year, a return approximately representing the interest which the treasury pays on its ordinary interest-paying bonds.

The bonds will be non-transferable and payment will be made only to the purchaser, except that in case of death or disability provision will be made for payment to the proper person.

SAYS HENRY FORD LOST $68,000,000 IN 1 SLUMP YEAR

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Henry Ford's automobile interests lost $68,000,000 in one depression year, but he wrote it off as mere circulation of money, according to William J. Cameron, an official of the Ford Motor company. Discussing Ford's philosophy of profit and loss in a talk here tonight, Cameron asserted that the word "loss" was not emphasized in the business affairs of the Dearborn manufacturer.

When Ford was asked for his reactions on his company's loss of $68,000,000 in one depression year, said Cameron, he replied: "It was not lost; we just circulated that much more than we took in."

Cameron asserted that if the money had been invested in the stock market, Ford would have considered it a "loss."

STOCK PRICES CLIMB AS GOLD DECISION NEARS

Exchange Officials Ready to Act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—In the face of accumulating evidence that the New Deal leaders are not so confident of a supreme court decision upholding the administration in the gold litigation, the stock market struggled a few paces ahead last week.

The industrial "averages" advanced about two points in the four-and-a-half trading sessions,—the market as usual was closed on Lincoln's birthday—and the combined index improved about half as much in spite of fractional recessions in both the railroad and public utility groups. The utilities sold to the lowest level on record, thanks to a little extra dash of pessimism on the score of the administration's growing hostility toward holding companies.

Talk of Rail Help.

Talk of government plans to do something for the railroads continued to be heard but it failed to benefit the carrier shares to any appreciable extent.

The "averages" are now barely one point below their closing of 1934 and are almost exactly midway between the highest and lowest of the current year to date.

Brokerage house opinion is that the forthcoming week may see the market exerting some effort to get out of the rut in which it has been idling for so long, on one side or the other. Last night's advices from Washington indicated that the long-awaited ruling on the gold cases may be handed down tomorrow, a development to which the street has been looking forward to for more than a month and in deference to which it virtually suspended speculative activity when the situation first developed.

Stand By for Emergency.

While much of the anxiety noticeable in the first weeks after the hearings on the cases has disappeared, due to continued assurances of government preparations to deal with the contingency, the stock exchange authorities are determined to take no chances of a runaway market when the ruling comes. The board of governors has been summoned to be on hand at the exchange tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock to "stand by" for a possible emergency.

The knowledge these precautions were in the making was widely credited with the moderate upturn in the market during the last three sessions of the week. On Friday the turnover rose about 725,000 shares, making it the biggest day in around a month.

Recall Other Days.

Incidentally, veteran brokers recalled that a similar period of stagnation developed back in 1904 when the market was awaiting the high court's decision on the Northern Securities case, which, as in the case of the pending gold clause suits, had been deferred from week to week. Something of the same stalemate occurred again in 1911 when the Standard Oil decision was being anxiously awaited. In the 1904 tieup daily trading fell to the lowest in seven years. In neither of those instances, it was recalled, did traders need a warning from the attorney general's office of possible "consequences so intimately involving the lives of our citizens that it is difficult to paint the picture" to "give them pause."

After its long workout the list is in excellent technical position to make capital out of such bullish business news as may develop, it is held, and to anticipate such possibilities as further monetary inflation, a spring rise in trade and the like.

98 PCT. OF ACCOUNTS IN BANKS OF FDIC ARE FULLY INSURED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—A survey by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation today, dealing with the status on Oct. 1, 1934, the latest detailed figures available, showed that under the present maximum of $5,000 of insurance to any individual account, 98.53 per cent of the number of accounts in banks' members of the corporation were fully insured.

In the case of banks with deposits of more than $50,000,000, those accounts enjoying full insurance represented 87.16 per cent of the total. On the other hand, the corporation said the dollar total of deposits insured in this group of the largest banks amounted to only about 26 per cent of the total of all the deposits in this group. This was largely accounted for, the corporation said, by the fact that these large banks held the deposits of institutions and corporations and serve as correspondents for great numbers of smaller banks.

Of the total deposits of $35,975,239,000 held by all the insured banks, those of the banks with over $50,000,000 aggregated $18,942,185,000 or 52.65 per cent. Tables prepared by the corporation showed the number of depositors in 14,028 banks enjoying insurance as 49,725,744 and the number whose accounts were fully insured as 48,995,978. The highest ratio, 99.74 per cent of fully insured accounts, was in the classification of banks with deposits of $100,000 and under, which had 616,046 depositors, the accounts of 614,460 of whom were fully insured. In this grouping the dollar value of deposits was $99,714,000, of which $91,403,000, or 91.67 per cent, was insured.

PROFIT OF TEXAS OIL PRODUCING SHOWS INCREASE

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—For the twelve months of 1934, the Texas Gulf Producing company reported today a net income of $800,972, after all charges and provision for federal taxes. This was equal to 90 cents a share on 882,159 no-par capital shares outstanding. It compared with a net income of $459,058 in 1933, including $191,193 nonrecurring profit from the sale of properties, and equivalent to 58 cents a share on 785,723 shares outstanding at the close of 1933.

The net production of crude oil from the company's properties last year was 1,878,777 barrels, compared with 2,466,679 barrels for the preceding year, a decrease of 678,902 barrels, or 27.5 per cent. N. W. Hunter, president, said reduction was due to the restrictions incident to the proration program of the railroad commission of Texas.

The balance sheet of Dec. 31 shows cash of $25,123, current assets of $183,126 and current liabilities of $264,549. At the close of the previous year, cash stood at $120,014; current assets, $254,552, and current liabilities, $197,110.

OVER 5 BILLION U. S. SECURITIES MATURE IN YEAR

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Obligations of the United States government in the hands of the public which will mature within twelve months amount to $5,540,477,400. They consist of treasury bonds, notes, and non-interest bearing discount bills.

The Fourth Liberty 4¼s outstanding have been reduced to approximately $3,142,000,000. Of this amount $1,870,000,000 has been called for redemption on April 15.

The First Liberty 4¼s and the Liberty 3½s are not callable until June 15, 1935, and then only if notice is given by March 15. These issues are outstanding in the amounts of $535,981,250 and $1,392,226,350, respectively.

MAIL ORDER BUSINESS IS BRIGHTEST FACTOR IN TRADE LAST WEEK

The larger mail order houses provided the brightest spot in the Chicago market last week, trade observers of the Association of Commerce reported yesterday. They also note that traveling salesmen reported less buyer interest in areas that showed good mail order business.

Wholesale commitments eased back to normal after their spurt of the previous week, while retail business was hurt by bad weather. Steel mills held about even with the previous week's level, the big buyers being the automobile and durable goods industries. Other lines of manufacture were little changed.

Cottons, silks, rayons, and ready-to-wear commodities were in greatest demand. There also was livelier interest in recreational and sporting goods for spring, with unusually large buying of bicycles and roller skates.

New York Banker Added to Tire Concern Committee

William P. Dunn, vice president of the Manufacturers Trust company, New York, has been added to the committee for the Kelly-Springfield Tire company 10 year 6 per cent subordinate notes.

Kemper Group Has Best Year for Insurance

The Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty, American Motorists Insurance, and National Retailers Mutual Insurance companies, units of the Kemper group, report the best year in their history for 1934. Premium income rose to $23,549,305, against $20,492,961 in 1933. A statement of the companies yesterday said both assets and surplus rose during the year while market value of securities owned is now in excess of figures at which they are carried in the annual reports.

"Improved industrial conditions and higher wage scales favorably affected premium income of all companies writing compensation insurance," James S. Kemper, president of the concerns, declared. "Improved market values of securities, particularly bonds, resulted in sizable appreciation in the value of insurance company portfolios.

Criticizes Federal Policies.

"Unfavorable factors are the tremendous increase in street and highway accidents and the difficulty of charting a long time investment policy because of uncertainty over monetary policies of the government and the national budget.

"The decision of the government to return a portion of the relief burden to the states is reassuring and it is hoped that additional transfers will be made as rapidly as possible. The outlook for 1935 is reassuring and if relieved from the handicap of uncertainty over government policies insurance can and will play its part in restoring the country to prosperity."

Premiums of Lumbermen's Mutual totaled $18,307,575 in 1934, against $16,004,198 a year earlier. Assets on Dec. 31, 1934 totaled $19,545,750, a gain of $2,322,923 for the year. Net earnings touched a new high of $3,025,616 while dividends to policy holders aggregated $2,876,788.

Other Companies Show Gains.

Premium income of American Motorists increased $764,185 over 1933 to $4,100,770. Assets gained from $4,349,966 on Dec. 31, 1933, to $4,857,094 a year later.

Similar gains were reported by National Retailers, whose assets rose to $1,506,028, against $1,359,805 on Dec. 31, 1933. Surplus to policy holders totaled $514,307 at the end of the year, against $354,284, while dividends paid to policy holders reached a new high total of $304,441.

Port of Astoria Bond Plan Declared Effective

Twenty-five per cent of all past due interest up to Jan. 1, 1935, on Port of Astoria, Ore., bonds is being made by the bondholders' protective committee, according to Morris Mather of Chicago, chairman. A refunding plan for the issue has been accepted by more than 80 per cent of the bondholders and has been declared effective, Mather said.

STEEL OUTPUT LOWER DESPITE BIG SHIPMENTS

Ingot Rates Down to 53% Last Week.

While steel ingot production last week dropped 1½ points to 53 per cent of production capacity, shipments to automobile, agricultural implement and miscellaneous interests were well maintained, according to the magazine Steel.

Consumption of finished steel has apparently not yet made a corresponding decline, the journal states. Sheet mills are operating at 70 per cent of capacity and strip mills at 65, while tin plate mills are down 15 points at 70 per cent. Pig iron producers have specifications for more tonnage this month than in January, it is stated.

Automobiles are being sold almost as fast as they can be made, the review says, with the margin between output and dealers' stocks running abnormally low. Last week 82,000 units were built, or nearly 4,000 more than in the preceding week.

Expect Uncertainties to Clear.

"Steelmakers look forward to early clarification of several national issues, important to the market's future, says the journal. "First is the gold clause case, the uncertainty of which is advanced by many consumers as a reason for their delaying purchases.

"On the labor front also there are some uncertainties, and small strikes in metal working plants increased last week. Out of the civil war which the Amalgamated association has been plunged by demand from the rank and file group for more aggressive action may possibly grow a program by the American federation itself to organize steel.

Roads Buy Bridge Material.

Railroad orders for structural material to be used in small bridge repairs and replacements in the aggregate are heavy, the journal states. The Pennsylvania has applied for PWA funds to eliminate forty New Jersey grade crossings.

Operations during the week advanced 23½ points to 55½ per cent of capacity at Birmingham, rail mills there having received heavy orders, and Youngstown gained 2 points to 60 per cent. Losses reported in other centers included Pittsburgh, with a decline of 5 points to 39 per cent; Chicago was down 4 points at 63 per cent, Cleveland 5 points at 77 per cent and Wheeling 3 points at 87 per cent. Detroit held at 100 per cent, eastern Pennsylvania at 31, New England at 63 and Buffalo at 45 per cent.

NEW DEAL FAILS IN EFFORT TO AID PEANUT GROWER

Speculator, Not Grower, Gets Main Benefit.

New Deal efforts to aid southern peanut growers have largely been offset by natural influences, and the sharp increases in prices resulting from the working of natural laws have largely benefited speculators, with the farmers getting little addition to their incomes, according to brokers and others here interested in the peanut trade. These natural influences included excess demand over supply and an increase in cottonseed oil prices which is influential in determining peanut prices.

The Agricultural Adjustment administration's help to peanut growers included benefits to be paid directly by the AAA or through payments by crushers who manufactured peanut oil. These payments took the form of either direct payments to the farmers or increased prices for the farmers' crops which the federal bonus permitted the crusher to allow.

How Bonus Is Paid.

The crushers are paid bonuses according to the grade of peanuts that are to be converted into peanut oil. To secure these bonuses the crusher certifies that he has made a payment to a farmer or has paid in excess of the minimum prices. This section of the plan provides for a contract between the crusher and the farmer. However, the crusher, in the event that there is no contract, may get the conversion bonus, the presumption being that the bonus would give him the means of paying the farmer more for his product. Brokers here assert that the loopholes in this part of the plan enable the crusher to profit at the expense of the farmer.

The funds to provide bonuses for crushers are obtained from a processing tax of 1½ cents a pound on the shelled peanuts levied on consumers. The tax also provides funds to pay benefits under other provisions of the plan, which includes curtailment of acreage.

Believed Surplus Existed.

In setting up its plan, the AAA proceeded on the basis that there was a surplus in peanuts and a good way to get rid of this oversupply would be to convert it into peanut oil, which is a preferred substitute for cottonseed oil, selling at a premium of ¼ a cent a pound.

While the plan was being set up—the effective date was Oct. 1—cottonseed oil was selling at low prices, bringing about 7¼ cents a pound early in September. It now sells at just under 12 cents a pound.

With the announcement of the plan consumers rushed to make forward commitments, which helped to clear up a part of the supply. Then the price of cottonseed oil began to rise. When cottonseed oil was low it was not economic to convert the peanuts into oil, but when the prices went up it became profitable to do this.

All this time, brokers here assert, there was actually no carryover in peanuts despite the belief of the AAA that there was.

Speculators Get Benefits.

When these various influences began to work, speculators in the south rushed to buy up peanuts. Brokers say that the crushers were most active in this connection. In the meantime the farmers had disposed of their crops at only nominal increases in selling prices. Thus the speculators have been the principal gainers in a situation which saw peanuts rise from around 4½ to 5 cents a pound early in September to about 9¼ cents a pound at present, with some grades selling as high as 10½ cents.

In the meantime, brokers say, the crushing of peanuts was reduced when the AAA saw that the supply of peanuts for edible uses was being lowered sharply.

Marvin Wood, a broker, says that the country may expect an acute shortage in peanuts in June and July before next year's crop comes in. He adds that the AAA's plan to restrict acreage will further complicate the situation in the event that the nation has another of the crop failures such as occurred last year.

FOUNDRIES GROUP SAYS SECURITIES ACT IS HARMFUL

Cleveland, O., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The Steel Foundries Society of America, after a three day session here, last week was convinced it must stagger along on low production for a time, or at least until the securities act is changed to encourage rather than discourage new investments.

This $250,000,000 industry, which makes machine foundations, railroad equipment, steam shovel parts and other such heavy duty machinery and employs 40,000 in normal times, operated on a 10 per cent basis in 1933 and on a 29 per cent basis in 1934, R. L. Collier of New York, its secretary, said.

The dependency of the industry on a change in the securities act was voiced by George F. Houston, president of the Baldwin Locomotive works. Houston is chairman of the durable goods industry committee of the NRA.

"There is plenty of money to be invested," Houston said. "The banks have it—so much that they are paying only a nominal interest on their deposits. But industrialists are not going to offer new bond issues so long as they might be sued as criminally responsible nor for any failure of the investment to pay interest as expected."

Gen. Refractories to Pay Half Year's Bond Interest

New York, Feb. 17.—The General Refractories company has notified holders of its five year 6 per cent first mortgage cumulative income bonds that it will pay 3 per cent interest on the issue on March 1, representing interest for the six months ending on that date.

Business Failures Fewer than Week and Year Ago

New York, Feb. 17.—Business failures in the United States during the first week of February totaled 263, against 268 in the preceding week and 291 in the corresponding period of 1934, Dun & Bradstreet reported.

'HOT OIL' DEBATE BY HOUSE PUT UNDER GAG RULE

Measure to Circumvent Court Decision.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—With debate limited to three hours under a gag rule, the house of representatives will take up new "hot oil" legislation for probable passage tomorrow.

The bill was drawn to meet objections of the Supreme court in connection with section 9-C of the NIRA relating to oil production, the third largest industry in the country. The court held last month that prohibition by the President of interstate shipments of oil exceeding state quotas was an unconstitutional delegation of powers by the legislative branch of the government.

Section 9-C delegated to the President the right to determine how much oil would move in interstate commerce, while the new legislation would delegate that right to the states.

New Features Added.

The bill was passed by the senate, but as it emerges now from the house interstate and foreign commerce committee it presents several new features in amendments.

The committee in its report declared that the bill provides for "federal control only as supporting the enforcement of the valid state law." The measure would leave to the oil producing states the entire authority to determine how much or how little shall be produced within their boundaries.

One committee amendment of importance was the proviso that "contraband or hot oil" seized under violation of the bill would be forfeited to the United States.

"It would be folly in dealing with a defendant to impose a fine," the committee report stated, "the amount thereof being ridiculous as compared with the value of the cargo. To then turn around and deliver back to him the same goods which he had previously possessed in violation of the law and for which he had been convicted."

The house committee also reshaped the senate bill so that the law would be temporary, expiring June 1, 1936.

President May Abrogate Act.

"This bill," the committee explained, "is essentially 'stop-gap' legislation to meet the objections pointed out by the Supreme court in the 'hot oil' cases to the constitutional validity of section 9-C of the national industrial recovery act. If it is enacted, it will again check the movement of 'hot oil' until the entire question can be more thoroughly considered."

Another proviso inserted into the measure by the house group was that the President may declare the law inoperative in his sole discretion when he finds that the supply of petroleum and byproducts is so limited as to cause a lack of parity between supply and demand.

American Shipbuilding.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me rating and information on American Shipbuilding?—Miss E. V. W.

Answer: American Shipbuilding company's main business is construction and repair of ships operating on the Great Lakes. Shipyards are at Cleveland and Lorain, O.; Buffalo, N. Y.; South Chicago, Ill., and Superior, Wis. Most of its business comes from haulers of iron ore and steel and grain carriers. A separate division of the company does machine and structural steel work for industrial plants.

Increase in repair work and the job of converting two bulk freighters into self-loaders pulled the company out of the red in the last fiscal year. For the year ended June 30, 1934, net income was $207,000 or $1.58 per common share. This compared with losses of $241,000 and $175,000 for the two preceding years. Net income in the June 30, 1931, year was $43,000, or 21 cents per share of common, against net income of $766,000 for the preceding year.

Current position on June 30, 1934, was strong. Cash assets of $1,116,000 compared with total current liabilities of $263,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 628 shares of $100 par 7 per cent noncumulative preferred and 126,238 shares of no par common. Dividends on the common have been paid regularly since 1917. The current rate is 50 cents a quarter. Extras have been numerous.

The preferred is medium grade. The common is speculative.

"Quite Worthless."

Investors' Guide: Back in 1926 my father purchased a thousand dollar bond on Euclid Court Apartments of Cleveland, O. Euclid Court 7s were transferred into common stock in Hampton Court Apts., known as Hampton Court, Inc. In exchange for the bond, he received $1,300 common stock. There has not been any information as to the status of my father's stock in six or seven years. I certainly would appreciate any information you could give me.—S. T.

Answer: The following communication from the law firm of Holliday, Grossman and McAfee, Cleveland, states clearly the sad fate that has overtaken your father's stock:

"For detailed information concerning this issue we suggest that you write to Willard W. Wilson, of Cleveland Trust company, who is familiar with steps that have been taken in connection with the foreclosure of the first mortgage.

"We are informed that the first mortgage bonds have been in default for several years and that a foreclosure action has been pending for some time. The first mortgage bonds are selling at $8 to $10 on the hundred. We further understand that the stock of this company is considered quite worthless."

COAL INDUSTRY FACES TWO BIG TESTS THIS WEEK

Wage Parley and Guffey Bill on Schedule.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The nation's 11 billion dollar bituminous industry will have two hot coals in its hands this week—negotiations for new wage contracts for 650,000 miners and a congressional bill to regulate it as a public utility. Tomorrow the operators and spokesmen for the United Mine Workers of America sit down to bargain the new wage scales to come after the existing agreements expire at midnight on March 31.

Tuesday a senate subcommittee takes up in hearings the bill by Senator Guffey [Dem., Pa.], designed to permit regulation of the bituminous coal industry as a public utility and described as the most drastic measure ever proposed for the industry. The hearings will be conducted by Senator Neely [Dem., W. Va.].

Authoritative sources said an early recess of the wage conferences might be decided upon to eliminate conflict with the Guffey bill hearings which Neely has indicated may be extensive.

Ah Contracts Expire.

When the wage conference gets under way tomorrow afternoon only the Appalachian region will be represented, despite the fact that for the first time in history all the union's contracts with bituminous operators expire simultaneously. However, coal men explain, the Appalachian conference, representing about 70 per cent of the nation's soft coal tonnage, will "set the pace" for the rest of the industry.

Hour and wage standards fixed by this group will form the basis for contracts with operators in the Alabama, Illinois, Indiana, and western fields.

John L. Lewis, international president of the mine workers, had nothing to say tonight about the demands the organization would present, but there was an indication they would include a bid for a 30 hour week in the mines.

May End Differentials.

Informed sources also said there was substantial prospect the union would move for elimination of wage differentials between the north and south, by extension of the $5 daily basic wage throughout the industry.

A spokesman for a large group of operators scoffed at the suggestion that northern operators would offer only superficial opposition to the shorter work week and differential elimination on the theory that the effects would be hardest on their southern competitors.

"We're not going to yield an inch on anything," said this spokesman, who desired his name be not used.

Guffey Bill Provisions.

The Guffey bill would place the industry in the hands of a national coal commission, within the interior department, possessed of broad powers to fix prices and allocate production.

A 25 per cent tax on sales of all producers also would be provided, but a 99 per cent "drawback" would be available to all operators complying with the program.

In addition, the measure provides for creation of a national coal reserve, as recommended by the national resources board, through purchase of marginal mines. A federal expenditure of $300,000,000 would be authorized for the initial steps in this program.

Miscellaneous.

A FEW MEN WHO WOULD LIKE TO GET INTO BUSINESS WITHOUT INVESTMENT ON THEIR PART WILL BE SELECTED TODAY!

If you are a steady, dependable man, known in your community, a West Side or West Suburban resident, and have wished seriously to get into a business of your own, being held back chiefly by lack of capital or fear of failure, you will be interested to know these facts pertaining to this immediately available opportunity.

Our business is based on backing good men in an independent business calling for no investment on their part, no overhead or other obligations. It is year-round and is good for at least the next ten years as a source of expanding profit. It will pay, according to the man's ability and willingness to apply himself, from assuredly $1,600 to possibly $3,250 the first twelve months, and gradually more through succeeding years, and commission checks will be paid promptly, we furnishing everything.

It was on this same basis that I came into this business nearly seven years ago. My experience had been mechanical, but my earnings in this business are approximately three times my best boom-period earnings in my trade, in which I rated high. You do not need to be that we will accept only men with business or trade experience, because there is a farmer in one of our Illinois branches who has made as much money in his first two weeks in this business as he had carned in 7 months in his employment on an Iowa farm. This man naturally was a high-class man, with aspirations. We don't want men who have only muscle to recommend them. A man must have thinking power and be courteous and neat in this business, because here is genuine independence and permanency! We have a man in this office who is far more handicapped than most men, and whose two-day earnings preceding the writing of this invitation to you, were $69.

A Mr. S. came into this business just 6 months ago, a stranger in Chicago—ready to account himself a failure. But Mr. S. now enjoys a real income—and because Mr. S. is a very high-type man, his progress has been rapid. Yet neither he nor these others were skilled in electrical service, machines or units. They found out that they could master the specialization of contacting customers and that they were being established in a business with a tremendous number of assured customers that the average American grocer enjoys! Further, in this business men find that they are not confronted with ruinous competition, nor need they ever fear price-cutting. No coded business ever shielded its dealers more fully than this great business, which was one of the first to sign up under NRA requirements, and which has never offered the public or its men any investment security of any kind, and which never had to be reorganized or refinanced during the blackest period of the depression, but paid its men promptly and fully at all times.

I could name a long list of men making good right here, but space does not permit. If am ready to talk to West Siders of character between 26 and 42 years of age if they will come in earnestness and will put in from 90 to 120 minutes with me—because that time is absolutely required for us to find out if we can get together. I will see you at 1:30 p. m. today, Monday, Feb. 18, if you call promptly—not a minute later than this time. Come to 329 at 9 S. Kedzie-av. and if we arrive at an agreement I shall aim to have you in earnings this week—which would be only the beginning of years of progress and increasing success.

THE FAIR

Will place immediately a few men with cars in positions offering attractive earnings on permanent basis because of definite income possibilities. Permanent work. Future assured real worker who can show results with home appliances. All store sales and leads turned over and full protection given on territory. File application Monday 9 to 10 or 1:30 to 2:30. Employment dept., 7th floor.
